PREMIER ASSAILS LIBERAL OPPONENTS ON IRISH REPRISALS

WILL STAMP OUT MURDER

Talk of Christmas Truce Prevails, but Premier Says No Settlement Is Possible Now.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Andrew Bonar Law, Government leader in the House of Commons, proposing the health of Premier Lloyd George at a complimentary dinner given to the latter at the Constitutional Club tonight, paid a glowing tribute to the Prime Minister, referring particularly to his hopefulness and buoyancy during the last two years of war. On one occasion only it seemed that this buoyancy was absent.

"I was the first of his colleagues whom he saw after the German offensive of March 21, 1918," said Bonar Law. "It seemed to me then for a moment that, although neither his courage nor determination had diminished, there was no less of buoyancy, but within half an hour he had composed and dispatched a telegram to President Wilson to the effect that we were up against the crisis of our fate; that it did not matter what America did next year or six months hence, but if it was to be of any use it must be done then, as that was the only way it could render effective aid, by placing men in Europe to fight side by side with Frenchmen and Englishmen. I hope it will be long remembered to President Wilson's credit that the affirmative answer came the same day, and it was the knowledge that these men were to be counted upon that was one of the vital facts in turning the tide of that hour."

Defends Coalition Policy.

Lloyd George, responding to Bonar Law's toast, defended the necessity of a coalition government during the war and since. He said:

"The times have changed, problems have changed and methods of dealing with them must be changed as well, and men who do not realize that are not fit for responsibility in a great epoch. Countries where it is not realized have had griefs. America, where they have not signed peace with Germany, and even Greece are illustrations of the same truth.

"The perils were so great, the difficulties so enormous, the burdens were so heavy that no single party, however powerful, could cope with or carry them. That is why we came to the conclusion that you had to get both political parties concentrating their energies, their talent and their zeal to pull the country through the greatest trial with which it ever has been confronted, and we succeeded."

The Premier then accused his political rivals of using reprisals as a manoeuvre to get rid of him. He said:

"There is a well organized, highly subsidized murder campaign going on in Ireland against the men who are discharging the elementary duties of civilization in that country. One of those duties is the guardianship of order, security of life and property. While the police are discharging those elementary duties of civilization and carrying out tasks hich are most difficult they are entitled to the support of every honest citizen, Liberal as well as Conservative.

"What is happening? I am really ashamed to say that men belonging to the party I belong to should be attacking these people, holding them up to obloquy, not only of this country, but of the whole civilized world. Hundreds of policemen and soldiers have been killed treacherously, but there is no map issued by the London Liberal Federation to mark the spots where they fell in defending liberty. The map is for the murderers.

"Cotton warehouses are burned, with material which would provide employment and food—none too plentiful now—for thousands in this country, and a poor boy who tried to give information that would extinguish the flames is shot like a dog in the streets. I have not yet heard of a leaflet issued by Abingdon Street to denounce the murderers of unarmed men done to death in the presence of pleading wives.

"I have not yet heard that Sir John Simon had gone to Oxford to denounce that infamy, where men who had been shot, lying wounded on a lonely, dreary hillside road in Ireland, were mutilated while wounded and defenseless. I have not yet heard of a demonstration to be organized in Albert Hall to denounce that brutality.

"No. Their denunciation, their time, money, talents and enthusiasm have been devoted to holding up to execration the victims and not their assassins. Believe me, this is not liberalism.

Pained by French Attitude.

"Have they reckoned on the effect abroad of all this? I am sorry to see the French journals publishing this attack on England. That French journals should send men to Ireland to scavenge among the people who conspired to destroy France at its darkest hour in 1918—for material to slander the nation that stood by them in their darkest days and lost 600,000 lives in France to defend the liberties of that country.

"I believe Frenchmen will agree with us in saying they are ashamed of all

Committee for Return To Convention System

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Decision to recommend to the Legislature that candidates for State offices filled by vote of the whole people, for United States Senator and for Supreme Court Justiceships be nominated in party conventions composed of delegates elected by the party membership was reached by the joint legislative committee on codification of the election laws at an executive conference here tonight, according to an announcement made by Senator James L. MACSWINEY'S WIDOW HELD AT QUARANTINE

Vessel Arrives Too Late for Daylight Examination of Her Passengers.

BIG THRONG DISAPPOINTED

Only Five, Out of Thousands Applying, Can Go on Pier—Special Landing Refused.

Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, widow of the Lord Mayor of Cork, who died recently in Brixton Prison, England, while on a hunger strike in protest against his conviction and imprisonment under the British Government, did not reach New York yesterday, as expected, because the White Star liner Celtic, the vessel on which she is coming here, was held at Quarantine last night, in order that her passengers may be examined by the Quarantine officers in daylight.

The Celtic, delayed by strong westerly gales and heavy seas, did not arrive at Quarantine until 5:30 o'clock last night, and Dr. Cofer, Health Officer of the port, decided that she must wait there until morning.

The managers of the White Star Line were willing to have the Celtic come up to her pier at once, but Dr. Cofer stood firm against it. He said that there was a great deal of typhus fever in Europe, and it was his duty to see that the disease, nor any other of a similar nature, did not enter the United States.

The Celtic passengers will be examined first thing this morning; the vessel is expected to reach her pier at the foot of West Nineteenth Street at 10 o'clock. The first passengers to land will be Mrs. MacSwiney and her sister-in-law, Miss Mary MacSwiney. Their baggage will be examined on the way up the harbor, so that they may leave the vessel the moment she is made fast.

A delegation of five women only from among the thousands who have applied for permits to meet the Lord Mayor's widow will be permitted to go on the pier. They are Mrs. Oswald Garrison Villard, Chairman; Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of the Governor; Mrs. John F. Hylan, wife of the Mayor; Mrs. Rosa Downing of Washington and Mrs. James Walsh, representing Irish societies in this city. A pass has been issued to Frank P. Walsh, who is Mrs. MacSwiney's attorney in the United States.

Huge Demand for Passes.

Byron R. Newton, Collector of the Port, explained yesterday that he had issued the passes to these five women only because it seemed the best manner to solve a problem with which he had been burdened for three days.

"Since Monday," the Collector said, "I have been simply inundated with telegrams and letters from all parts of the United States requesting passes to the U. S. Coast Guard cutter or to the pier for delegates to meet the widow of the Lord Mayor of Cork.

"I decided that the women at the head of the movement select five from the various committees and I would give them passes to the pier but not to the Coast Guard cutter. This did not satisfy them and I was besieged by delegates and committee members all day.

"I thought that the best thing for the visitors would be to land them quietly somewhere. Directly the gangway has been made fast the two women will land on the pier with their baggage. They will be met by the committee of five.

"No other passes will be issued for the pier, and the outside gates, where it is expected several thousand Irish sympathizers will assemble with a band and banners to greet Mrs. MacSwiney, will be kept closed this morning.

"The issuance of the passes to the committee to go inside the customs baggage lines today to meet the Celtic is a technical violation of the regulations of the Treasury Department.

"When the news was spread that the Celtic would not dock today ten determined women called upon me and demanded that I should have Mrs. MacSwiney and her sister-in-law, Miss Mary MacSwiney, taken off the ship after she anchored in Quarantine and brought up to the city on a tugboat. I replied that I could not permit the two women visitors to land from the Celtic unless the other passengers were given the same option.

Delegates Indignant.

"When I told the ten women delegates that Mrs. MacSwiney would remain on the liner for the night they were indignant. They said that they must go down the bay and see her at once, and upon my replying that there was no chance of their being allowed to do so they told me that I should hear from them again and then departed.

"Two Coast Guard cutters have been ordered to convey reporters, women writers, photographers and motion picture operators from the Battery this morning to board the Celtic before she leaves Quarantine for the pier."

Collector Newton said that in issuing only five passes for the committee to

CAN'T HAVE LOANS AND CONSTANTINE, GREEKS ARE TOLD

Supreme Council Announces That It Will Withdraw Financial Aid if He Returns.

MAY ALTER SEVRES TREATY

Premiers Will Meet After Greek Plebiscite to Discuss Action to Be Taken.

ATHENS IN CONSTERNATION

Unexpected Severity of Allied Terms Leads to Talk of Canceling the Plebiscite.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The Allied Supreme Council today publicly announced it would withdraw financial support from Greece should ex-King Constantine be returned in the plebiscite of Sunday. The Council considered territorial reprisals should he be enthroned.

The Council also decided that the allied Premiers should meet a fortnight hence to discuss conditions as they existed after the Greeks registered their choice in the plebiscite.

The conferees also resolved to make a formal protest against the issuance by the Greek Government of 200,000,000 drachmas in currency despite the opposition of the Allies.

The view of the Allies is that an issue of new currency by the Greeks could be undertaken only with the consent of the Italian, French and British Governments under the old agreement, and that the issue of the 200,000,000 drachmas by the new Government was made without authority.

Briefly summarized, the position of the Allies is that they want to warn the Greeks vigorously that their Government must conform, to a great extent, to the wishes of the Allies, and that if the admonitions in yesterday's note and today's statement relative to the withdrawal of financial support are ineffective the Allies are prepared to take even sterner measures, which were discussed today.

As the Treaty of Sèvres has not been ratified, it is within the power of the Allies to modify it, and they are keeping this fact to the fore, at least as regards Smyrna. It is known that some of those at the conference today expressed the belief that Smyrna would be safer, from the allied point of view, in Turkish hands than in those of the Greeks under Constantine.

The wish was expressed, however, not to go so far as to threaten the Greeks, before the plebiscite, with the loss of part of the territory alloted them under the treaty.

While the Premiers are in accord that the sternest measures should be taken if Constantine is recalled, they have not agreed on what stand to take if the Greeks choose Prince George for their King.

Tomorrow the conference will discuss German reparations.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The conference between the representatives of the British, French and Italian Governments continued at 10 Downing Street today. At its close this official statement was issued:

"The following resolution was adopted: That, before taking final decision as regards the steps which ought to be taken with a view to the establishment of lasting peace in the East, the three powers agree that it is necessary to know the decisions of the Greek Government and people."

This resolution has special reference to the question whether the Turkish treaty should be torn up or not. Whether the Allies decide that the treaty is useless and must be scrapped will depend directly on the action taken by the Greek people and the immediate course of events in Greece.

The Allied representatives further agreed to protest against the issue by the new Greek Government of 200,000,000 drachmas worth of new currency, despite the opposition of the Allies. The Venizelist Government made a similar issue of currency, but it had the approval and authority of the three powers. The new Greek Government has no such authorization.

Under the 1897 agreement the Greeks have no right to make an issue of this kind without first obtaining the approval of Italy, France and Great Britain.

GENEVA, Dec. 3.—Constantine's conviction that the Greek people will, on Sunday, demand his recall is unshaken by the news that the Allies have warned the Athens Government that his restoration to the throne will be unpleasing to them. At the same time it was intimated today through ex-Minister Streit that Constantine did not wish to make a statement, because he desired to say nothing which might be interpreted as an attempt to influence "the free decision of the Greek nation," and because he was convinced that if he were to express his willingness in the interests of the Greek people to renounce his claim to the throne, such declaration would lead to unrest, and probably disorders, in the country.

Meanwhile there is obviously a feeling of uneasiness among the ex-King's ad-

"Dollar Princess" Arrives in Athens; Tenderly Embraced by the Queen Mother

ATHENS, Dec. 3.—Distinguished exiles are flocking back to Greece. Relatives of the Royal Family, including Princess Christopher, formerly Mrs. Leeds, has arrived in Athens.

She and her party, coming from Venice by passenger steamer, were trans-shipped to a Greek destroyer off Patras, on board of which were Princess Andrew and Christopher and Mr. Rhallis, Jr., Minister of Marine. At Piraeus the arrivals were welcomed by Queen Mother Olga, who is also Regent, and a Ministerial deputation.

The Princess, on setting foot on the land of her adoption, was tenderly embraced by the Queen Mother.

Unhappily the destroyer was late, and night had already fallen, to the great disappointment of the crowds which had waited throughout the afternoon in the hope of seeing and giving a cordial welcome to the new Princess, whose charm and wealth and the liberality with which she has financed the cause of Constantine have made a striking appeal to the Greek imagination.

The citizens of Athens, too, had decreed themselves another holiday, and throughout the afternoon had lined the route on the outskirts of the city, watching for the coming of "the Dollar Princess," as she is already familiarly called in Athens. These same Athenians were bitterly disappointed, because the unpunctuality of the destroyer had intervened between themselves and a glimpse of the American woma nof fabulous wealth who has united herself to Greece and her destinies.

For the moment the coming of Princess Christopher has overshadowed the expected advent of Constantine.

ASSEMBLY CANNOT HAMPER COUNCIL

Report Presented to League Says Each Body Must Respect the Others' Powers.

TALK OF CUTTING ARTICLE X.

Its Elimination Would Cause No Surprise — Nations Must Ratify Amendments.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Dec. 3 (by telephone to Paris).—There was no public session of the League of Nations' Assembly today. The Assembly will consider in session tomorrow the basic question of the relation of the powers of the Council and the Assembly. No problem has caused more difficulty at Geneva than this.

Many of the smaller nations wish the Council to be considered as the government of the League, that is, according to European usage, responsible to the Assembly or Parliament. The larger powers, which control the Council, are not willing to accept this view, taking the stand that the Council and the Assembly are co-ordinated bodies, but absolutely refusing to accept the proposition that the Assembly can review the decisions of the Council.

The report of Commission No. 1, which is to be presented, supports the contention of the big nations that the powers of the Council are not subject to curtailment, construction or modification by the Assembly. It points out that the covenant is very hazy on the relative jurisdiction of the two bodies. The report quotes Article III., which says: "The Assembly may deal at its meetings with any matter within the sphere of action of the League or affecting the peace of the world." Then it quotes Article IV. that "The Council may deal at its meetings with any matter within the sphere of action of the League or affecting the peace of the world."

The United States would be a member of the Council if it joined the League and thus is directly interested in the decision on this much mooted point. It may be taken for granted beforehand that the commission's report will be adopted by the Assembly, as it has already been approved by the forty-one nations.

Not Like a Parliament.

The report begins:

"It is impossible to consider the Assembly as a Chamber of Deputies and the Council as an upper chamber. The objection to this view is that while in certain matters the Council and the Assembly have rights, in others they have special rights and that the two bodies are not called to discuss exactly the same points. If the Assembly were a Chamber of Deputies and the Council an upper chamber, the same subjects would be discussed before them.

"It is also impossible to consider the Assembly as a legislative and the Council as an executive body. The truth is that the League has no analogy in constitutional law. Article II. of the covenant provides that the actions of the League should be effected through the instrumentality of the Assembly and the Council. It follows, therefore, that the League is a single organization which will have at its disposal two organs."

The report then goes on to review where each has jurisdiction. Various matters are placed under the League in the covenant, but the covenant does not always state whether the Council or the League is intended. In conclusion, the following views are presented:

"First, the Council and the Assembly are each invested in part with powers and duties. Neither body has the jurisdiction to render a decision in a matter which is common to the other.

"Second, the Assembly has no power to reject or modify a decision which falls within the exclusive province of the Council. The same respect must also be shown by the Council for the decisions of the Assembly.

"Third, under the covenant the representatives sitting in the Council and the Assembly render the decisions of their respective States and in rendering the decisions they have no standing except as such representatives.

"Fourth, the Council will present a report each year to the Assembly."

Nations Must Ratify Amendments.

It has been agreed in discussions among the delegates, following the postponement of action on amendments at this session, that amendments to the covenant and the world court and disarmament measures, and, in fact, all

REPUBLICANS WON'T EXPEL SOCIALISTS

Governor-Elect Miller and Party Leaders Decide Legislators Chosen Shall Be Seated.

FEAR EFFECTS OF EXPULSION

Bronx Figures Cited to Show Fight on Socialists Would Hurt Republicans Here.

There is to be no Socialist problem in the State Legislature while Governor Miller is in ofice. The Governor-elect is in favor of allowing elected members of the Socialist Party to keep their seats and the two Socialist Asemblymen and one State Senator chosen at the last election will not be disturbed when the new Legislature meets, at the beginning of the year.

The Governor-elect made this clear to Republican leaders during the last few days, when several conferred with him as to his attitude on the question which stirred up so much excitement during the last regular session and at the special session in September, when regularly elected Socialist Asemblymen were ousted. Mr. Miller told the leaders it was his intention to give the new Assemblymen and Senators so much constructive work to do that it would not be necessary for them to waste their time on anything else.

Mr. Miller gave this information to George A. Glynn, Chairman of the State Committee, and Richard W. Lawrence, party leader in the Bronx, among others. Mr. Lawrence was more interested in his attitude toward the Socialist question than any other leader, as two of the three Socialists in the new Legislature are from the Bronx—Assemblyman-elect Samuel Orr of the Fourth Assembly District and Senator-elect Emil Seidel of the Twenty-second Senatorial District. The one other successful Socialist at the last election was Charles Solomon of the Twenty-third Assembly District, Kings County. Both Orr and Solomon were expelled from the Assembly by the last Legislature.

Mr. Lawrence gave the Governor-elect data to show how the Republican Party in his borough suffered at the last election because of the Socialist expulsion incident. The aggregate vote cast for the eight Socialist candidates for the Assembly was 12,000 greater than the vote cast for the Socialist candidate for County Clerk of the Bronx. Assuming that the County Clerk vote was the normal Socialist strength, the Republicans figure that they lost 12,000 votes because Speaker Sweet insisted that the Socialist Assemblymen should not sit during the last session.

Mr. Miller has been against the expulsion of the Socialists all along. When the matter was before the regular session he did not take a pronounced stand, merely registering his disaproval of Speaker Sweet's action. When the special legislative session was held in September, however, Mr. Miller had been designated as the Republican candidate for Governor and his views on the question were sought. It is understood that an agreement was reached at that time between Mr. Miller, Speaker Sweet and the party leaders of counties affected that the Socialist Assemblymen should be allowed to retain their seats if they won in the special election.

This agreement, it is asserted, was broken by Speaker Sweet, who insisted that some of the Socialists be expelled. Mr. Sweet is said to have declared that he could not hold the Republican Assemblymen who voted for expulsion.

The Governor-elect's decision to leave the Socialists alone has been approved by the New York City Republican leaders, who are looking forward to the Mayoralty election next year. The city leaders opposed Speaker Sweet from the beginning, but he had the backing of up-State Republicans. No argument was necessary, it is said, to convince Mr. Miller that the party in the city might suffer materially if the incoming Legislature, overwhelmingly Republican, should keep up its fight on the Socialist Party.

DRY PHILIPPINES HIS AIM.

Senator Jones's Bill Also Prohibits Consuls From Serving Liquor.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Extension of the Volstead act to the Philippine Islands and to Consular districts in China is to be proposed by Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington. His bill, he said tonight, would clear away all doubt as to the application of prohibition enforcement to the Philippines.

One provision would penalize in the Philippines or American Consular districts the serving of beverages containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol at public or official functions.

HARDING DECIDES TO MAKE ADDRESS IN SENATE MONDAY

Believes He Can Speak Without Offending Wilson or Violating Proprieties.

SOME SENATORS OPPOSED

One Friend Thinks President-Elect Would Only Make a Brief Speech of Farewell.

SHIP REACHES PORT TODAY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP PASTORES, Dec. 3 (via Charleston, S. C.)—While President-elect Harding would like to take his seat in the Senate unostentatiously Monday noon when the Congress session opens, he realizes that his change of status has made this impossible.

He is, therefore, prepared to speak. The assumption is that after the prayer of the Chaplain the presence of the President-elect will be noted by Vice President Marshall or Senator Lodge, a speech by Mr. Harding following.

Mr. Harding feels that he can speak without offense to President Wilson and that no proprieties would be abused since Mr. Harding is still Senator and would not be talking as an outsider.

In the circumstances the President-elect's taking his seat on Monday seems likely to eclipse other features of the opening of Congress, although Mr. Harding hopes to avoid all show.

Mr. Harding plans to leave Washington on Tuesday night for Marion. Conferences on the League of Nations will begin Monday, the 13th, with some of the conferees expected to arrive on Sunday.

Senator Harding has already sent out some invitations to persons with whom he wishes to confer, but will not make the names public until the list is completed. He will make a statement some time next week.

The President-elect says he has been benefited by his vacation. He was tense when he left Marion and is now relaxed.

He is pleased with the results of his Panama visit, having gained information obtainable in no other way. He was greatly impressed by Latin America, as represented by the Panama Republic, and is determined upon a better understanding. His visit impressed upon Mr. Harding the desirability that Congressional committees make no decision without visiting the scene. He thinks the Canal problems are not realized in the United States.

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP PASTORES, Dec. 3 (By Wireless to The Associated Press).—Cool weather greeted President-elect and Mrs. Warren G. Harding today. The Pastores was off the Carolinas this morning and, in spite of a heavy wind from the north, she was making good headway.

Mr. Harding and his party appeared today clad in warmer garments, having discarded the white suits they wore while in the tropics.

As Mr. Harding neared port today there was renewed discussion among his companions regarding the possibility that he might choose some other place than Marion for his conferences on the League of Nations and other subjects which must be thrashed out before he assumes office. He has been urged by some friends to spend the Winter in a Southern State, where there are better hotel and railway facilities. Hot Springs, Va.; White Sulphur Springs and various Florida resorts have been suggested, but it was said today that no decision had been reached.

Both Senator and Mrs. Harding are understood to favor remaining in Marion the coming Winter if practicable.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Republican Senators do not think President-elect Harding will make a set speech in the Senate next week even if he should follow out his announced intention to speak there.

One Senator who is familiar with Mr. Harding's point of view hazarded the opinion that Mr. Harding might desire to make a brief speech, expressing his appreciation of the Senate and reviewing some of his experiences in the last six years.

"I do not believe that Mr. Harding would violate the traditions and attempt to make a speech that could be interpreted as partisan," said one Senator. "Mr. Harding has always been most scrupulous in his official acts, and I am certain that if he should speak at all it would be merely to say good-bye to those with whom he has been associated for six years."

Republican leaders agree that it would be a mistake if the President-elect should make a partisan speech and attempt in any way to anticipate President Wilson's message, which will be sent or read to Congress on Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—Republican Senate leaders are opposed to the suggestion that President-elect Harding deliver an address at the opening session of the Senate, and it is understood that their views will be given to Mr. Harding by Harry M. Daugherty, personal representative of the President-elect, who left today for

Obregon Expresses Hope Of Friendship With Us

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 3.—More than 500 visiting Americans were the guests of President Obregon today at a banquet at which General Obregon expressed his appreciation at the honor paid him by the Americans coming to witness his inauguration. Octaviano A. Larrazolo, Governor of the State of New Mexico, responded to the President on behalf of the visitors.

CONSERVATIVES WIN NEW LABOR COUNCIL

Elect All Officers of Body Formed for American Federation Unions.

GOMPERS GREATLY PLEASED

State Federation Head Says Result Means Elimination of Radical Element Here.

The conservative element in labor circles in this city won out Thursday night in the election of officers of the newly chartered Central Trades and Labor Council of Greater New York and vicinity, according to the announcement last night by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, following the canvass of the vote at the Hotel Continental. There were 742 ballots containing more than 40,000 names, and the count required all the time from 11:30 yesterday morning, until 7:30 o'clock last night.

John Sullivan of 126 East Ninety-eighth Street, Vice President of the New York Federation of Labor, for more than thirty years actively identified with the conservative element in the labor movement in this city, was elected President of the new central body over Edward I. Hannah, former President of the Central Federated Union, by 56 votes. Ernest Bohm, who was Secretary of the Central Federated Union, was defeated for Corresponding Secretary of the new organization by William F. Kehoe of the Brotherhood of Teamsters. William Kohn, State Chairman of the Farmer-Labor Party and formerly Vice President of the Central Federated Union, was defeated for Vice President by John P. Coughlin, formerly President of the Brooklyn Central Labor Union. Eric Eriksson of Brooklyn was elected Treasurer over William G. Holder. John C. Hilsdorf of Brooklyn was elected Financial Secretary without opposition.

Thomas J. Curtis, a Deputy State Compensation Commissioner, was the only Labor Party man elected. He was named as a member of the Executive Committee of Fourteen. Abraham Lefkowitz of the Teachers' Union was among those of the Hannah organization who were defeated for a place on the committee. The conservatives elected thirteen of the fourteen members.

James Fagan, George H. Stilgenbauer and James J. Crehan were elected Trustees. They had opposed the radical element in labor in this city. Fred Rauscher was elected Sergeant-at-Arms. Nathan Marks was elected Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms, defeating, among others, William Zaranko, who was a star witness before the Lockwood Legislative Committee. Captain William A. Maher of the Masters, Mates and Pilots and Samuel Squibb were among those named on the official ballot for the Executive Committee who did not receive a vote.

Mr. Gompers declared he was entirely pleased with the result of the election. The new central body, which takes the place of all other central unions of the American Federation of Labor in this city, was formed at the instance of Mr. Gompers, who did not like the radical policy of the Central Federated Union. It represents about 750,000 unionists in Greater New York.

James P. Holland, President of the New York State Federation of Labor, declared that the victory for the conservatives was a distinct slap at the aspirations of the Farmer-Labor Party, and also meant the annihilation of the radical element in this city, so far as the American Federation of Labor was concerned.

ERIE WORKERS PLAN RELIEF FOR COMPANY

1,800 Would Take Week's Vacation to Avert Necessity of Laying Off Some Indefinitely.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Eighteen hundred Erie Railway employes, realizing that railway finances throughout the country are in a critical condition and that the climax in a corporation's financial affairs come in the last month of the year, will request the Erie to give them a week's vacation in the last week of this month, thereby saving the company approximately $125,000. The plan originated among the employes of the Erie's shops, who have talked it over and have arranged to hold a meeting within the next few days when the request will be formally voted.

The men realize that the Erie and other railroads are laboring under financial difficulties; that the readjustment now going on throughout the country has curtailed shipments and passenger traffic and is cutting into the revenues of the corporation and that unless co-operation is effected many employes must eventually be laid off.

With this in view the employes have considered various propositions and finally decided upon a voluntary vacation as most feasible. They believe that if they lay off for a week it would avoid the necessity of laying off a few for a longer period or indefinitely. With this in view, they will submit the proposition to the officials of the Erie and believe that their request will be granted. If this is done and later it is found that further retrenchment is necessary, the men will consider another "vacation." It is believed, however, that, with this aid at the close of the fiscal year, finances will improve and further curtailment will be unnecessary.

BUILDERS' MINUTES TAMPERED WITH; SENT TO GRAND JURY

Records of Supply Bureau Falsified Before Lockwood Committee Gets Them.

SECRETARY BLAMES WOMAN

Joseph Penny Shifts Responsibility for Interpolations to Miss O'Dea, Clerk.

TOWING MONOPOLY SHOWN

Raised Rates on Hudson 1,000 Per Cent.—Contractors' Ring Controlled Steam Shovels.

The Lockwood committee's examination into the affairs of the three New York City organizations of manufacturers and dealers in building materials took a sudden turn yesterday when Marvyn Scudder, the committee's accountant, and two typewriter experts testified that the minutes produced by the Builders Supply Bureau and the Association of Dealers in Masons' Building Materials had been tampered with, and substitutions and interpolations made throwing grave doubt on the authenticity of the documents. Over the protest of Martin Conboy, attorney for the organizations, the committee ordered the evidence sent to the Extraordinary Grand Jury at once.

This evidence to be sent to the Grand Jury will consist of the testimony as to the quotation cards destroyed by Elisabeth O'Dea, clerk of the Builders Supply Bureau, the disappearance of the quotation card index which served as a key to the cards, the destruction of similar cards of the Masons' Supply Bureau of Brooklyn by Ernest Braun, its secretary, the disappearance of a file of monthly reports made to the Manhattan bureau by Arthur Hammond, its accountant, whose exact location the committee has been unable to learn and the whereabouts of other persons whose testimony is sought.

Mr. Scudder and the typewriter experts testified that a batch of memoranda purporting to be the minutes of thirty-six meetings of the bureau held from Feb. 19, 1920, to Nov. 4, 1920, had been written at the same time, not earlier than Nov. 4, 1920, on a fresh typewriter ribbon and interpolated in the looseleaf book used to hold the minutes. Mr. Scudder said that there were instances of minutes prior to Feb. 19, 1920, having been substituted, but that every record of the meetings covering a period of nine months this year had been substituted by others uniformly written on a fresh ribbon.

Penny Shifts Blame to Girl.

Joseph Penny, secretary of the bureau, put the responsibility for the typing of the minutes on the shoulders of Miss O'Dea, who swore that she typed the minutes from time to time and not at the same time. Asked to explain how it came about that the typewriting of what purported to be minutes of thirty-six meetings this year was all uniform, she said that she used her machine only on that work and typed no other records during the nine months. Prior to February, 1920, she declared, she had done "outside work" on the machine. After that date she did no further work of that character. Samuel Untermyer, counsel to the committee, demanded to know how it happened that she ceased to do "outside work" in February. Her explanation was that it "just petered out."

Among the other developments yesterday before the Lockwood committee at the City Hall were the following:

The announcement that for five days process servers have been looking for Contractor McCarthy of the Builders' Supply Bureau and John P. Kane, leading spirit in the Masons' Supply Bureau. Mr. Conboy volunteered the information that Mr. Kane was recovering from a serious operation. He did not give the whereabouts of Mr. McCarthy.

Evidence of a towing monopoly of scows hauling brick, ice and other commodities down the Hudson River, in the hands of the Cornell Towing Company, which has increased its prices in recent years from 300 per cent. to 500 per cent. above previous prices, was introduced. It was testified that in 1917 the company killed a competitor by cutting down its price from $75 a barge to $15 and that when competition was killed the price jumped to $75. Since then the Cornell Towing Company has increased its price for towing a scow to $300. It was indicated that the committee, after delving into the towing monopoly, would take up the alleged monopoly of docks with a view to disclosing the enormous sums of money that were unwarrantably piled on the prices of building commodities.

Contractors' Ring Revealed.

Testimony was given as to the activities of the Contractors Protective Association, an organization in the city of forty-seven excavators, said, trucking and house-wrecking contractors which appointed committees to fix prices on the hiring of motor trucks, for dirt and rock excavation and for rates of labor and equipment to be charged builders using them on a per diem basis. It was also revealed that delegates of the Hoisting Engineers Union appeared before the contractors with a plan to call off their men on all firms not affiliated with the organization.

Assertion was made that Hudson Valley brick manufacturers with a normal output of 1,200,000,000 brick have been putting out one-third that number, and the admission by a brick manufacturer that the Greater New York Brick Company was formed to obtain uniform prices.

The production of "work sheets" used by Arthur Hammond, accountant for the Builders Supply Bureau, in going over the monthly reports for the bureau members, disclosed that the fourteen members were known by numbers.

Testimony as to the substitution of the minutes was given first by Mr. Scudder, who was accountant for the Hughes insurance investigation and the Untermyer money trust investigation.

Mr. Marvin took up the records purporting to be the minutes of meetings as far back as December, 1916, and said that in some cases there were interpellations. Some of the minutes appeared in heavy typewriting and some in light typewriting.

"What does the situation indicate that you have described?" asked the examiner.

"It indicates to me that the typewriting that is heavy was all written at the same time."

Typewriter Experts Testify.

George W. Gaylord, manager of the supplies department of the Oliver Typewriter Company, and Henry D. Higginbotham, typewriter experts, corroborated the testimony of Mr. Scudder. Mr. Gaylord said the records purporting to be the minutes of the thirty-six meetings in 1920 must have been written at the same time, for the reason that the density of print was uniform throughout. The minutes of preceding meetings showed a regular normal variation in print, indicating that they were written on various dates. A new ribbon was placed on the machine, he said, and they were written at the same time.

Mr. Higginbotham said that the minutes of the meeting on Feb. 19 were darker than the record of the previous meeting, Feb. 12, indicating that a different ribbon had been used. From then on and up to Nov. 4, 1920, he found the density of the print and the appearance of the work all of the same shade, indicating that these minutes had been typed at one writing.

Secretary Penny of the bureau, who had supervision of the minutes, said that he did not know whether or not the minutes were written at one time. He said he passed the minutes over to Miss O'Dea, the clerk, who did the typewriting.

"So the responsibility, if any, for that you put upon Miss O'Dea, do you?" asked Mr. Untermyer.

Mr. Conboy jumped to his feet and objected to the question. Chairman Lockwood banged his gavel to cut the lawyer short. Conboy insisted in objecting. He was told he would have to refrain from further interruption, and sat down.

The stenographer repeated the question, and Penny answered, "Yes."

Mr. Untermyer informed the witness, "in all frankness and fairness," that the committee held that the minutes were substituted. Penny had no explanation to make concerning the minutes.

A protest made by Mr. Conboy in writing was read into the record. It asserted that the purpose of the investigation was not to gain knowledge for remedial legislation, but in order to fasten upon the members of the Association of Dealers in Masons Building Materials and the Builders Supply Bureau the guilt of various crimes, and that the members were therefore not witnesses, but parties interested.

In reply Mr. Untermyer insisted that the testimony was directly in connection with remedial legislation, and that the committee had a right to inquire whether the records purporting to be minutes of the organizations were authentic or not. Chairman Lockwood ruled that the records and testimony were within the scope of the examination.

Following Miss O'Dea's testimony, Mr. Untermyer asked the committee to send the entire evidence to the Grand Jury. Mr. Conboy declared that the statement in the presence of Miss O'Dea, who appeared shaken by her ordeal on the witness stand, was "disgraceful and contemptible."

Untermyer Wants Conboy Ejected.

Resenting the continued interruption Mr. Untermyer asked the sergeant at arms to remove Mr. Conboy from the room. "We are sick and tired of this—books destroyed, people disappearing, minutes disappearing—most disgraceful," Mr. Untermyer asserted. Turning to the committee the examiner said:

"Mr. Chairman, we have been endeavoring to investigate combinations, and this among others. We have met with destroyed cards, destroyed papers, files missing; all sorts of irregularities clogging our investigation, so that we cannot keep on with the main purpose of it; and I suggest to the Chairman that this whole subject of destruction of the papers of the bureau, the subject of these minutes and everything connected with that subject, be sent to the Grand Jury, and let them go on with the investigation. We cannot continue. We have not the time."

Chairman Lockwood said the minutes and exhibits would be sent to the Grand Jury.

Subsequently Mr. Scudder was recalled and examined on the minute book of the Association of Dealers in Masons' Building Materials. This book was also kept in loose leaf fashion in the same way as the minute book of the bureau, with the exception that the pages were numbered by machine type.

The witness said that in the cases of pages in which minutes appeared to have been interpolated the ink used in numbering the page was different from that used in the rest of the book, and that the supposedly interpolated pages were not signed by the Secretary. In the minutes found in regular order the Secretary's signature was found on the page, he said.

Sidney J. Treat, Secretary of the association, was called on by Mr. Untermyer to "explain this." Treat readily admitted that the minutes had been inserted under his direction.

Q.—Will you explain how it happened that they are different in the particulars described from the others? A.—The stenographer, in starting the minutes, evidently made a mistake, which could not be corrected on that sheet. She, therefore, had to destroy the sheet, and take a blank sheet and number it with a numbering machine that we have in the office there, and went on with her minutes.

Q.—How do you know? A.—Because she told me she did it.

Treat said the minutes were unsigned "through my negligence." He was asked if that was the best excuse he could make and replied it was the only excuse he had.

Q.—How does it happen, in these instances of substitution, not a single one is signed? A.—There is not any substitution.

Q.—There is a substitution, isn't there? A.—No, I beg to differ. These minutes were written at the time they were dictated.

Evidence of Towing Monopoly.

Testimony concerning the towing monopoly was given by Frank Melton, a house-wrecker, and Everett Fowler, President of the Greater New York Brick Company, and connected with the firms of Everett Fowler & Son and the Excelsior Brick Company.

Melton said that in 1917 the Cornell Towing Company towed a scow load of second-hand brick for him from Breaker Island, near Albany, to New York for $75. A competitor lowered the price to $35 and the Cornell concern put him out of business in a month when they reduced the price to $15. With the competing concern out of business the price jumped back to $75 and has since gone to $300, as Melton said he must now pay at the rate of 50 cents a ton. The weight is computed by the Cornell Company's representatives, he added, and he had to abide by the weight that he was told his material amounted to. The new rate went into effect two months ago.

Mr. Fowler said that the Cornell Towing Company was the only one on the river, and had a monopoly of the towing. Questioned by Mr. Untermyer, he admitted that the increases in recent years in towing charges had been from 500 per cent. to 1,000 per cent. of former years. In 1906 he paid 15 cents a thousand to have his brick towed from Haverstraw to New York. Now the rate is 40 cents and an addition of 20 per cent. for coal, or a total of 48 cents per thousand. He estimated that three tugs might draw 25 to 30 barges of brick at a time, and the revenue to the Cornell Towing Company for the work would be about $5,000.

The excessive towing charges made a heavy tax on the brick business, he declared. He said the towing prices were altogether too much and told the committee that the Cornell company also towed ice, cut stone, gravel and other commodities.

It was Fowler who said that the output of the Hudson Valley brick yards, which formerly was 1,200 million, was now about one-third that number, from 400 to 500 million.

Fowler admitted that about 75 per cent. of the brick manufacturers in the district got together and organized the Greater New York Brick Company, as a selling agent, the purpose being to get a uniform price for their product.

William K. Hammond, a brick manufacturer, testified that three selling agents handled the output of about fifty brick manufacturers putting out most of the brick for the New York market. They are the Greater New York Brick Company, Emmons & Roberts and Barnes, McNamara & Morrissey.

How Brick Prices Are Fixed.

Mr. Untermyer questioned the witness on the manner in which uniform prices on brick are arrived at. Every day the market price is quoted to the manufacturer by the selling agent, he said. He admitted that the price was uniform for a given day, but said that the buyer was usually a shrewd man who "nibbled here and nibbled there" in order to attempt to get a lower price.

"What good does it do for him to nibble when the price is uniform?" Mr. Untermyer asked.

"Not a bit," replied Hammond.

Mr. McLaughlin, Secretary of the Contractors' Protective Association, said that it was not affiliated with the Building Trades Employers' Association.

The organization has four committees of four men each, excavating, sand, trucking and membership. McLaughlin read from the minutes of a meeting which took place on Nov. 19, 1919. The record showed that a committee was appointed to fix the rate at which motor trucks should be hired out by the members and to report at the next meeting.

"George Gillifeather made a motion that something ought to be done in regard to having a fixed price on dirt and rock excavation," the minutes continued. "The motion was seconded and referred to the excavating committee to report their views on this matter."

At the meeting held on Feb. 19, 1920, two union delegates were present and an entry appeared in the minutes indicating that after Matthew McConville and Timothy Gorman, representing the Steam and Shovel Engineers, spoke about "The Iron League Association," Mr. Crimmins moved that the association keep on the side of the Building Trades Employers' Association in the event of a strike. McConville raised the question of getting in as many men as possible into the employers' organization because one contractor had hired out a steam shovel to men who were not members.

Contractors Squeeze Outsiders.

On March 18, 1920, McConville again appeared at the association's meeting, and the entry in the minutes showed that he made a speech. The record said:

"Mr. McConville, representing the steam shovel engineers, suggested that this association take some action in regard to out-of-town firms coming to this city and taking contracts from builders, and that his association would refuse to give them engineers unless they became members of this association, and citing an instance of a firm from Philadelphia, also one doing work in Long Island City.

"He also spoke about having steam shovel owners from the Bronx become members of the association, and a committee should be formed and be known as the steam shovel committee, to be appointed by the Chairman or the Board of Directors, and to arrange a meeting of the same on March 24, 1920, at 4 P. M."

Q.—What they wanted was to force other steam shovel owners into the contractors' association? A.—No, sir.

Q.—What was the idea? A.—They were inviting them in to become members.

Q.—They were inviting them and telling them they could not get any engineers unless they did come in? A.—That was Mr. McConville's expression.

Q.—It was a sort of invitation with a kind of whip over it; in other words, if they didn't come in they could not get any engineers to work their steam shovels? A.—I could not answer that.

Q.—They did come in? A.—Quite a few members from the Bronx came in.

Q.—That is, the Hoisting Engineers' Union through McConville was working with the Employers' Association to get the owners of steam shovels into the association! A.—I would not answer that.

Q.—Doesn't it say so? A.—He made that as a suggestion.

At the meeting held on April 13, 1920, a minimum schedule for various classes of labor was made only on jobs on a pier diem basis. The contractors agreed to charge their customers $9 a day for common labor with the use of tools, $10 for rockmen and $63 a week for labor foremen. Other charges fixed were plasterers, $72 a week; blacksmith, including forge and fuel, eight-hour day, $11; blacksmith's helper, $8; drillers, $9.50; driller's helper, $8; watchmen, including lanterns and oil, per night, $6.

The witness said the contractors receiving $9 a day for common laborers and $10 for rockmen were paying these men $6 a day. He estimated that the use of tools was about 50 cents a day, and that the remainder was profit for the contractor. Only one inquiry has come in for men on the per diem basis, he asserted.

In the minutes of May 28, 1918, appeared an entry that the Kiosk Company, dealers in second-hand brick, had been fined $500 for using their chauffeurs when chauffeurs employed by one of the members went on strike.

The next session of the committee will be held in the Board of Estimate room in the City Hall at 10:30 A. M. on Tuesday.

UNION CHIEF ATTACKS ROADS

Says They 'Farm Out' Repair Work While Discharging Shop Men.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Railroads of the country were charged today by William Johnston, President of the International Association of Machinists, with wholesale discharge of shop employes and with checking work in their shops in order "to farm out" repair work to contractors at greatly increased costs. Mr. Johnston said he had submitted the matter to Bert M. Jewell, Chairman of the Railway Department of the American Federation of Labor, who is in Chicago attending sessions of the Railroad Labor Board, and that Mr. Jewell would use his own discretion in presenting the matter to the board.

"This practice carried on throughout the country," said Mr. Johnston, "would amount to millions of dollars each year. Of course, the ultimate cost will be borne by the people of the country, either in taxes paid, to give the guaranty to the roads, or in increased rates.

"The proposition appears to be a matter needing the closest investigation. I know that in one case the railroad is interested in the contractor's business to whom the contract for repairs to the rolling stock was let. In such a case the profit accruing from the overcharged repair work goes right back into the pockets of the railroad. And yet this item of expense must be covered in the Government guaranty."

President Johnston charged that the Union Railroad of Pittsburgh was one of the carriers farming out its repair work at a cost above that for which it could be done in the company's own shops.

Mr. Johnston declared the railroads were attempting to break the spirit of the men by laying them off, declaring that discharges on some railroads were reaching the wholesale point.

BOLSHEVIKI CRUSH UPRISING IN WEST

Balakovitch's Hopes of Rushing on Warsaw Shattered, Reports in Warsaw Say.

WARSAW, Dec. 1 (Associated Press).—The Bolsheviki have smashed all the detachments of General Bulak Balakovitch and the remnants are fleeing toward Poland, some crossing the frontier near David Grodek, north of the Pinsk marshes, where they were disarmed, according to last reports received here.

This ends the adventurous plan of General Balakovitch to rush to Moscow with a handful of men after arousing millions of peasants against the Soviets while en route.

General Balakovitch is reported to have disappeared, but is believed to have reached Poland, where he will be interned, if found, in accordance with the terms of the Riga agreement between the Poles and Soviets.

The young General had 12,000 men when he fought with the Poles, but was reported to have gathered 20,000 when he began the campaign that went against him about the time the Bolsheviki swept General Baron Wrangel out of the Crimea. The Bolsheviki captured his men a few thousand at a time, and the remnants have since been desperately trying to reach Poland. The furthest point the crusaders reached was about Mozyr, to the east of the Pinsk marshes.

BACKER IDENTIFIES $25,000 BRIBE AGENT

Says Brindell's Brother Matthew Was One of the "Mutt and Jeff" Collectors.

ON TRAIL OF SECOND MAN

Tells of Visit to Long Island City During Which "Stranger" Was Recognized.

George S. Backer, the builder who is on trial before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions on the charge of committing perjury to shield Robert P. Brindell, said yesterday that he had identified Matthew Brindell, a brother of Robert, as one of the two strangers whom he had described as "Mutt and Jeff" before the Lockwood Committee.

The identification took place, Backer said, between the date of his testimony that he had paid the bribe to two strangers who looked the Bud Fisher creations and the date of the indictment accusing him of perjury for giving this testimony.

It was on a Sunday between his appearance before the Lockwood Committee and his indictment for perjury, Mr. Backer said, that he met the two Brindells in Long Island City, where he went in company with George Atwell, a wrecker. Atwell gained prominence recently as the originator of the theory that the Wall Street bomb was sent by sympathizers with Zaranko's union, a rival of Brindell's, and was intended to kill Brindell men at work on the job at Broad and Wall Streets.

Backer said that immediately after telling of "Mutt and Jeff" before the Lockwood Committee he had set out to find the two men of comic build and features who are alleged by him to have received the bribe of $25,000 in behalf of "Bob" Brindell as the price of allowing work to continue on the big building at Thirty-first Street and Seventh Avenue. He hired others also, he said, to search for copies in the flesh of the copyrighted short and tall men.

On Track of Other Stranger.

Backer did not reveal whether he desired the jury to understand that Matthew Brindell was the "Mutt" of his Lockwood committee testimony or the "Jeff." He set the stage, however, for a possible further sensation by indicating that he was on the track of the second "stranger," and might unveil him before the trial was over. After telling of meeting Robert P. Brindell in Long Island City, Backer was asked:

"Did you see anybody else there?"

"I did."

"Was he or was he not one of the strangers?"

"He was."

"What was his name?"

"Matthew Brindell."

"Did you recognize him at once as one of the strangers?"

"After a few minutes I recognized him."

"Had you seen him before to know him?"

"No."

"You had only seen him before to do that business with him, if it may be called that?"

"Yes."

Backer said Atwell told him the name of the man was Matthew Brindell, but that he kept his own counsel regarding his meetings with Matthew and told no one at the meeting at Long Island City.

"How did you return from that meeting?"

"Mr. Brindell drove us back in his car."

Backer told nothing of the conversation in Brindell's sedan. The identification of the "stranger" and the story of the meeting in Long Island City was told sketchily in the last five minutes of the session, because of the anxiety of Edmund L. Mooney, counsel for the defense, to rush in the identification and "catch" the jury with it before adjournment time. Mr. Mooney told Judge Rosalsky that this was his plan and got special permission to change the subject of examination just before the close of court. The trial does not go on until Monday at 11 o'clock, and the last impression of the jury, which must stay with them for two days and a half, is Backer's revelation of the "stranger's" identity.

Denies Statement in Levy Letter.

Mr. Backer identified a letter he had received from Ephraim B. Levy on Oct. 8, 1920, fifteen days before Mr. Levy went before the Lockwood Committee and exposed the corruption that honeycombed building operations in New York. In this letter Mr. Levy complained that Backer, who was under contract to supervise the Seventh Avenue building for a fee of $35,000, rarely put in an appearance there; that he had made use of a superintendent in the employ of Levy for work on some other building operations of Backer and that he had failed to push the building to completion, as he contracted to do.

Backer denied that the statements in the letter were true. He said he was on the job whenever needed, that he had not used any of Levy's employes on other work and that the building was then practically completed. This was brought out in corroboration of one of the contentions of the defense, which is that Levy colored his story against Backer in order to procure his conviction, which would strengthen Levy's position in refusing to pay the $35,000 fee.

Another letter identified by Backer was a self-exculpatory communication to Brindell, saying that he desired it to be known that he had advised Levy against working men overtime contrary to Brindell's wishes and that he was not a consenting party to acts discountenanced by the labor executive.

Backer, a short square-built man with light wavy hair and ruddy complexion, wore an anxious look as a rule and gave no rein to his alleged love of jesting, on which he blames all his troubles. While matter-of-fact in his answers, he frequently seemed to discern a funny side in things and laughed without apparent provocation, while every one else in the courtroom was serious.

Tells of His Career.

Backer came to this country in 1891, started as a newsboy and rose to be a millionaire builder, according to his story, but he never conquered the English language and spoke with so marked an accent that much of his testimony was indistinguishable. In his twenty-nine years in this country, he had not learned to pronounce his own name and called himself "Becker." He landed here with $17.32, he said, sold papers, worked as a sailor, ran an eating-house, clerked in a store and peddled chandeliers before going into real estate and studying building. With these beginnings, he made such a position for himself in the industry, according to the testimony, that Levy thought it worth while to offer him $35,000 to cast a supervising eye over the Seventh Avenue building in his time spared from other building operations.

Backer insisted that he was an enemy of Brindell and had tried to get the builders generally to fight him and break his power. His alleged distaste for the bribery he practiced as a go-between for Levy and Brindell was corroborated by Robert T. Brooks, President of the George A. Just Company, structural steel contractors, who was a witness yesterday. Telling of a conversation in Backer's office, he said:

"Mr. Backer said to me: 'Brooks, those fellows want $25,000 to let that job go on. It's dirty business. You've known me all these years and know I have never been mixed up in a muss like this. It's a dirty practice.'"

Mr. Brooks said that Brindell's power dated back only to January of this year.

Joseph Fennimore and John W. Noble, superintendents for Backer, corroborated the story of their employer that two strangers had called on him in the latter part of May. Noble identified one as Brindell.

Character witnesses called for Backer were Charles Wetmore, architect, of 8 West Fifty-third Street, and Walter E. Belknap of the Bankers' Trust Company.

INDICT 2 BUILDERS' OFFICERS.

Philbrick and Penny Held for Refusing to Answer Questions.

John A. Philbrick, former Chairman of the Builders' Supply Bureau, and Joseph Penny, the Secretary, who refused repeatedly on Thursday to answer the questions of Samuel Untermyer before the Lockwood Committee, were indicted yesterday by the so-called "additional" Extraordinary Grand Jury on the charge of violating Section 1330 of the penal law, which runs:

> Refusing to Testify—A person who, being present before either House of the Legislature or any committee thereof authorized to summon witnesses, willfully refuses to be sworn or affirmed, or to answer any material and proper question, or to produce upon reasonable notice any material and proper books, papers or documents in his possession or under his control, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

The indictment was voted after the jury had before it the transcript of the testimony of the two men on the preceding day before the Lockwood Committee, where they pleaded the Constitutional right not to testify on the ground that it might incriminate or degrade them, but admitted that they were not sure their testimony would have this effect and that they felt disinclined to "take a chance."

They were held in $1,000 bail each by Supreme Court Justice McAvoy and allowed until next Friday to plead and make motions.

TETRAZZINI'S VOICE HEARD 400 MILES AWAY

Radio Telephone Carries Her Songs From This City to Naval Ships at Sea.

Mme. Louisa Tetrazzini, standing in her apartment in the Hotel McAlpin last night, gave, with the aid of the radio telephone, a musical evening for hundreds on board naval ships at sea and in port within a radius of 400 miles. The prima donna sang four songs into a specially equipped telephone, tuned to transpose her voice to the telephonic receiving sets with which nearly all of the navy vessels are now equipped.

Amplifiers on board the vessels had been rigged to project Tetrazzini's voice on ship board. The crews were assembled at 9:30 last evening, the hour set for the concert, and telephonic radio stations had been ordered to suspend traffic for thirty minutes.

When William H. Leahy, the prima donna's manager, received word from B. Collins Buckner of the radio staff in the Whitehall Building that everything was set, Mme. Tetrazzini, with three musicians, grouped themselves near the transmitter.

"We have a treat for Mme. Tetrazzini," came a voice from somewhere. "Private Fred Bennett of Fort Wood, Staten Island, is going to sing 'A Tumble Down Shack in Athlone' for her."

The soldier's voice came clearly over the wire to Mme. Tetrazzini's room, and, although there was no amplifier, the prima donna and her friends could hear it very plainly. A chorus of "bravas" from those in the McAlpin followed the song.

Then Mme. Tetrazzini sang the "Polonaise" from "Mignon," "Rondo" from "La Sonnambula," in which she sent her high F sharp far out to sea, "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling" and "I Milioni d'Arlecchino."

After the songs Tetrazzini talked with some of the men in the Whitehall Building and on the Pennsylvania, in the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

"Fine," was the comment from the Pennsylvania. "Some ship cut in, but we shut them up and they listened, too."

Naval officers said that the experiment in long distance entertainment for the men on shipboard was successful, although definite reports from the ships, which would give the range of the entertainment, were not received.

W. D. VANDERLIP RETURNING.

Will Visit Washington to Confer on Trade With Russia.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Washington D. Vanderlip, the American who recently returned from Russia with the announcement of important concessions in Siberia granted to an American syndicate through him, will sail for New York on Saturday on the Aquitania.

Mr. Vanderlip said today that upon arriving in the United States he would proceed to Washington and confer with his backers and also with leading Republican Senators regarding the opening of trade with Soviet Russia.

ANOTHER BANK CLOSED.

Nineteenth North Dakota Institution to Suspend.

BISMARCK, N. D., Dec. 3.—Closing of the Citizens' State Bank of Antler, in Bottineau County, due to depleted reserves, was announced tonight by O. E. Lofthus, State Bank Examiner. This is the nineteenth bank to close in North Dakota since Nov. 15.

Mr. Lofthus said plans are under way for re-opening of the closed institutions, but none has resumed yet.

The State Industrial Commission, at a meeting this afternoon, adopted a resolution authorizing the Bank of North Dakota not to honor checks or drafts drawn by County Treasurers unless the money is needed to meet urgent obligations. The commission supervises the bank. Payment of two drafts drawn on the Bank of North Dakota by Treasurers of Logan and Norton counties was refused today on the ground that the Initiative act, effective yesterday, is not retroactive and does not give authority to County Treasurers to draw funds deposited before Dec. 2, except to meet obligations.

MACSWINEY'S WIDOW HELD AT QUARANTINE

pass the customs lines on the pier he had only followed the precedent set when the Pilgrims, General Nivelle and other distinguished foreigners arrived in the United States.

After the Celtic had anchored in Quarantine the police boat Patrol went down the bay with 200 women delegates from various committees to give the widow of the Lord Mayor of Cork a hearty welcome to New York, but no one was permitted to go aboard the Celtic. Among those on the Patrol were Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, and officers of the Friends of Irish Freedom.

When Mrs. MacSwiney and her sister-in-law appeared at the rail the crowd on the police boat cheered her. Other passengers on the Celtic cheered for Lloyd George in reply to the enthusiasm of the Patrol party. In a short time the Patrol returned to New York.

At 8 o'clock today the Women's Committee, headed by Miss Jeannette Rankin, will go to Quarantine accompanied by five tugboats filled with men and women belonging to the Irish societies, and a small flotilla will escort the Celtic to her pier.

The delay in the arrival of the Celtic was a great disappointment to thousands of Irish sympathizers who had arrived in the city in the morning, wearing crepe bands around their arms as a token of grief for the death of the Lord Mayor of Cork and to show sympathy with his widow. They haunted the Chelsea piers, the White Star office and the Custom House until late in the afternoon, when it became known that Mrs. MacSwiney would not be landed until today.

PREDICTS REPETITION OF CUBA IN IRELAND

Cohalan Tells Providence Economic Club We May Have to Intervene for Humanity.

LOYAL COALITION OBJECTS

Its Leader Says Sinn Fein and Bolshevism Are Allied Enemies of United States.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 3.—Drawing an analogy between Cuba and Ireland, Justice Daniel F. Cohalan of New York declared in a debate here tonight before the Economic Club that "America may at any time call forth similar action to that taken by us in Cuba in the interests of humanity."

Justice Cohalan and John R. Murphy, Boston Police Commissioner, spoke for Irish independence, while Demarest Lloyd of Boston and P. W. Wilson, New York correspondent for The London Daily News, spoke for non-interference on our part.

Describing conditions in Ireland, Justice Cohalan said that the English Government had broken down there and had been replaced by "uniformed thugs" and "organized bandits."

Ireland, he asserted, was being held in subjugation, while England devised means to meet the competition caused in the new mercantile marine of the United States. Failure of the British Government to improve the shipping facilities of Irish harbors had diverted most of the foreign trade to British ports, he said.

"The problem of Ireland is basically in England's eyes an economic one, and all her great wars have proved how far England is prepared to go for economic and industrial advantage," Justice Cohalan said, adding: "The world, and particularly our country, is interested in the intensely human side of the question of Irish independence, but we have not yet come fully to realize how completely political independence rests upon economic independence. England might recognize the political independence of Ireland if she could retain economic control of Ireland, but with the latter are bound up interests that England regards as vital to her continued world power.

"What interest has America directly in the solution of this absorbing problem? Aside altogether from the sentimental side of the question, its solution is a matter of first importance to our country from the economic point of view. Locked up with the fate of Ireland is the control of the seas, and upon the freedom of the seas rests economic liberty or economic thralldom for the world. • • •

"England today controls absolutely the seven seas, and while we hear much of her disposition not to interfere with the use of the seas by all the peoples of the earth, the fact remains that whenever the whim, or prejudice, or interest of her governing class requires it, she may shut out from the seas any or all of the other nations of the world, including our own country. • • •

"The final step in the cases of Spain, of France, of Holland and of Germany, when all indirect steps had failed, was that of war in order to drive by force those flags from the seas. Can there be serious doubt of similar action in our case when English interests require it?

"Ireland is the gateway to Europe and English statesmen have for years insisted that its control was an essential condition of English world power. • • • So long as England controls Ireland and with that control retains her control of the seas, so long will the ultimate attempt to destroy American commerce be an ever growing certainty."

Loyal Coalition's Views.

Demarest Lloyd, President of the Loyal Coalition, speaking on "the problem of Ireland," said:

"The Irish movement has been definitely balked in the realm of American politics. It is not finally disposed of. It will continue to operate in one form or another. The real object is not primarily concerned with the 'Irish Republic' or with Ireland. It is a movement of disintegration between allied nations and particularly the English-speaking peoples.

"Since the Democratic convention, therefore, the effort has taken the form of the MacSwiney resolutions and cablegrams the Villard Committee of One Hundred to issue Sinn Fein publicity, flag riots and the like.

"That revolutionary activities are Sinn Fein is perfectly logical, but, in addition to being pro-German, the Sinn Fein movement is an ally of bolshevism. Both Sinn Feinism and bolshevism were pro-German and anti-British during the war. The present Russian revolutionary movement is the only one which has accorded an official recognition to the Sinn Fein 'republic.' Soviet money has been traced to England here. It was sent in the interests of Irish and English revolutionists. Bolshevists in England, here and everywhere are practically unanimous in their support of Sinn Fein. In America the Socialist and Farmer-Labor Parties are the only ones which favor recognizing the 'Irish Republic.'"

BREAD AND BUTTER DROP.

Lower Wholesale Costs Reflected in Chain Store Retail Prices.

One of the large chain stores is now selling sixteen-ounce loaves of bread at 9 cents, a drop of 2 cents from the price charged in most other stores. The reduction is made possible, it is explained, on account of the decrease in the price of flour.

The drop of 8 cents a pound in the wholesale price of butter has been reflected in the retail price by another corporation owning a large number of stores in this city and elsewhere. Butter that sold last week at 67 cents a pound is now selling at 59 cents in this chain of stores. The retail price has been reduced to 59 cents by some of the other stores in competition, but there are many others that continue to sell the same grade of butter at 70 to 81 cents a pound.

PREMIER ASSAILS LIBERAL OPPONENTS

this. But it is not merely effect abroad—in France, in America, where you have always a certain type of journal which gives heavy headlines to any attack on Great Britain and never prints the reply. Have they thought of the effect on the murder gang itself? They are encouraged, they are stimulated, they are supported by this action.

"The real danger is the encouragement that will be given to the forces of disorder by the appearance that this country is weakening. It is not. You can turn this Government out, but as long as it is there, we mean to exhaust every resource and power we possess to stamp out this thing. The country that made such sacrifices during the war, that won such triumphs, that showed such endurance, is not going to be beaten by a gang of murderers at our own door. We are doing it in the interests of Great Britain, yes, but we are doing it in the interests of Ireland. It is not that you won't get peace in Ireland. You won't get consideration of the best method of establishing peace until you destroy the terror.

"I was asked by somebody the other day, 'Supposing there were an election in Ireland, what would happen? Would the Sinn Feiners be returned?' He said, 'Yes.' I said, 'Does that mean Ireland supports them?' He said, 'Oh, no, it means no man dare put up against them. It means no man dare go to the poll to record his vote against them.'

"What is the good of talking about the liberties of Irishmen when you get these Bolshevist tactics to produce anarchy and despotism in Ireland? To make Ireland a free agent in discussing the problems of Ireland you must break the terror. But having done so, when the tumult is suppressed, we must have the double courage that is needed to concede, conciliate, stamp out murder, suppress revolution and restore freedom to Ireland. Then face our problem. Let us establish concord. Let us make Ireland a worthy partner in this great empire. That is one of the tasks of the coalition."

MOVES FOR TRUCE BEGIN OVER IRELAND

Moderate Sinn Fein M. P. Sees Hope Through Labor Visit and Horror of Crime.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, Dec. 4.—The Daily Chronicle's political correspondent writes:

"The possibility of conversations between the Sinn Fein leaders and the Government still is being mooted in political circles here. The idea is stimulated by the fact that Arthur Henderson and others of the Labor Party delegation to Ireland have had a talk with Arthur Griffith at Mountjoy Prison in Dublin. Henderson made no secret of his desire to build a bridge if he can between the antagonistic interests, and there is reason to believe that he communicated his desire to the Government before he set out for Ireland. The Government, of course, always has shown willingness to listen to any representative body of opinion in Ireland, and only on Thursday, in the House of Commons, Premier Lloyd George emphasized this attitude.

"In the meantime a very significant change in the attitude of some Irish local authorities has taken place. Under the Restoration of Order act the Government has stopped grants in aid to the Irish local authorities in respect of local taxation account, &c., when they do not take the prescribed steps to give compensation for injuries to life or property under the Malicious Injuries act. Just recently the County Councils of Tyrone and Galway have agreed to pay such compensation, and as a result the Government has withdrawn its embargo on grants in aid to these authorities. The County Council of Westmeath also is in course of adopting the same attitude. This is a very notable change of front and will strengthen the administration in Ireland and help to restore order."

The Executive Committee of the National Council of Evangelical Free Churches passed a resolution yesterday expressing its horror and detestation of the campaign of murder and terrorism by which the Irish revolutionaries have sought to gain their political ends. The resolution proceeds:

"The committee will support his Majesty's Government in any steps that may wisely and rightly be taken to restore public order in Ireland and to safeguard the freedom and safety of all its inhabitants. The committee is, however, constrained strongly to condemn any policy or practice of reprisals, because it substitutes vengeance for justice and still further exasperates animosities already existing."

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Society of Friends (Quakers), a statement was adopted earnestly supporting a suggestion made in the House of Commons and by religious leaders both in England and in Ireland, for a "truce of God," during which all parties may come together.

Sinn Fein M. P. Is Hopeful.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The possibility of a Christmas truce in Ireland seems to be connected with a suggestion made by Roger N. Sweetman, a Sinn Fein member of Parliament for North Wexford, that advantage be taken of the Labor Commission in Ireland to bring about a conference between the commission and the Irish Labor Party, the Irish "Peace Conference" and the Catholic hierarchy to enlist all moderate opinion in Ireland in the support of the appeal for "a truce for God."

Mr. Sweetman is a wealthy landowner of moderate views, and it is believed here that he will be supported by a large number of Sinn Feiners representing moderate opinion. It is feared, however, that the arrests of Arthur Griffith, the founder of the Sinn Fein, and Professor MacNeill, which are believed to have been made without the approval of the governing authorities in London, and the detention of these men without any charge having been made against them, may handicap the peace efforts.

Mr. Sweetman's idea is to bring about a cessation of bloodshed in the hope of attaining an atmosphere which will be better suited for political negotiations, which are considered impossible as long as the extremists on both sides of the controversy are swaying affairs.

There are rumors in the Parliamentary lobbies that indirect negotiations are proceeding between members of the Government and Sinn Feiners. The London Times gives prominence to the report and says:

"The rumors seem not entirely baseless, though the precise character of the negotiations, if such they may be called, can at present only be surmised."

There seems to be no doubt, adds the paper, that Arthur Henderson has at least an informal mandate to explore the avenues which might lead to Irish peace.

Countess Markievicz Convicted.

DUBLIN, Dec. 3.—The court-martial of the Countess Georgiana Markievicz, member of Parliament for the St. Patrick's division of Dublin City, was concluded today. The Countess was charged with conspiring to organize a "Fianna Direann," or body or Sinn Fein Boy Scouts. The decision of the court-martial will be promulgated later.

In her testimony today the Countess indignantly denied making the statements attributed to her by the Crown counsel, who credited an officer with declaring that the Countess on one occasion murdered a British officer and soldiers and that on another occasion some one who arrested her himself was murdered.

In an emotional speech the Countess declared that the Boy Scout movement was started in 1909, long before the Irish Volunteers, and that, according to English law, it was not illegal to drill boys of 15 years of age and teach them their history and language. The Countess said she stood on the principles of freedom as enunciated by President Wilson.

The statement that "the decision of the court-martial will be promulgated later" signifies a conviction. In trials by court-martial the fact that a conviction has been registered and sentence imposed cannot be divulged except by inference until the "confirming authority" has approved both conviction and penalty. An acquittal, on the other hand, in British practice, is always announced and the verdict read in open court.

Report Three Killed Near Bandon.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Three civilians are reported to have been shot dead this afternoon near Bandon, County Cork, following the ambushing of a party of police, says The Central News Dublin correspondent. The police escaped without casualties, he adds.

FEW IRISH RAILWAYS RUNNING

Only the Ulster Lines Give Full Service—Hurts Export Trade.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Outside of the six Unionist counties of Ulster, THE NEW YORK TIMES learns from an authoritative source, the Irish railroads are entirely disorganized. The Ulster lines are unaffected and communication between Belfast and Dublin by the line running down the east coast is as regular as ever, but the railroad from Dundalk to Enniskillen, along the south of the six counties, is closed altogether.

So also are two important lines in the southwest from Waterford to Limerick and from Limerick to Tralee, while on the great trunk lines of Ireland from Dublin to Cork, from Dublin to Clifden, in Galway, and from Dublin to Sligo, both passenger and freight trains run only intermittently. Small roads serving the interior of Galway now carry freight only. This paralysis of the Irish railroads, THE NEW YORK TIMES was informed, has not been ordered by the Government. The latter is comparatively indifferent to the situation, as it has all the motor transport it needs for its own purposes. The lines are closed and trains taken off simply because the companies have dismissed so many men for refusing to handle soldiers or munitions that they have not staffs for fuller service.

The Irish Railwaymen's Union is due to meet in the next few days to discuss the entire situation. Meanwhile there has been only one attempt to wreck a train, and it is suggested that the immunity of the lines from outrage is due to the Government not making any effort to run military trains.

The export of butter and bacon from Ireland to England has naturally been affected by the lack of trains, but it has not ceased entirely. Bacon, for example, is coming forward irregularly, but butter supplies are looked for by Christmas.

HAMON DEATH CLUE SOUGHT IN CLOTHES

Kansas City Police Deny Trunks of Fugitive Woman Contained Diary.

HUNT FOR HER KEPT UP

Trail Lost in Texas — Prosecution of the Couple Had Been Planned.

Special to The New York Times.

ARDMORE, Okla., Dec. 3.—James H. Mathers, senior member of Mathers & Coakley, who will succeed Russell B. Brown as County Attorney on Jan. 1, will not prosecute Clara Smith Hamon, accused of killing Jake L. Hamon, the Oklahoma Republican National Committeeman and multimillionaire.

The incoming County Attorney's law firm has been retained for the defense since the day after Hamon died. If Hamon had lived, this firm would have been engaged to prosecute him on the charge of living with Clara Smith Hamon, in violation of law and defiance of the moral sentiment of the community, made by the present County Attorney's office.

Mr. Mathers will recommend the appointment of the present County Attorney to prosecute Clara Smith Hamon in case she is arrested.

In a statement issued tonight C. A. Coakley, Mr. Mathers's partner, said:

"When Jake L. Hamon died, gentlemen devoted to law and order called at the office of this firm and requested us to defend Clara Smith Hamon in case she should be apprehended and prosecuted for the death of Jake L. Hamon. This request was accepted and the firm of Mathers & Coakley has been from that day, is now and will continue to be retained to defend Clara Smith Hamon against any and every accusation or charge that may be legally and formally filed against her."

Mr. Coakley further stated that "the defense in the case awaits with utmost composure any effort that may be made to convict Clara Smith Hamon on the charge of having killed, without ample justification, Jake L. Hamon."

ARDMORE, Okla., Dec. 3.—The small calibre revolver with which, it is charged, Clara Smith fatally shot Jake L. Hamon, Republican National Committeeman from Oklahoma, in a hotel room here on the night of Nov. 21, and the bullet-pierced clothing worn at the time by the millionaire oil man and politician, was ordered brought before Russell B. Brown, county attorney, today for examination, in an effort to solve the mystery of the shooting.

County authorities today continued to direct a search throughout the Southwest and extending into Mexico, for Miss Smith.

No representative of County Attorney Brown was present at the opening in Kansas City, Mo., yesterday of two trunks said by the police there to be the property of Miss Smith.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 3.—The contents of two trunks, said by the police to be the property of Miss Clara Smith, accused of shooting Jake L. Hamon, were being held at headquarters here today pending word from Ardmore, Okla., officials as to what disposition should be made of them.

The trunks, which arrived here soon after the shooting of Hamon, were opened at the request of Russell B. Brown, County Attorney at Ardmore, in the hope that something might be found that would throw light on the case. According to the police, however, the examination revealed nothing, the contents being made up of woman's wearing apparel, a photograph of Hamon, one of Miss Smith, a collection of newspaper clippings and a book of verse. No letters or writings of a personal nature were found, although they were searched for particularly, the police said.

Detective Boyle of the Kansas City Police Department, who, with a representative of the Ardmore County Attorney, examined the trunks, said today:

"I examined the trunks thoroughly and there was no diary or other papers which might have any bearing on the case. A book of newspaper clippings and several photographs were the only things I saw removed from the trunks. The trunks were then sealed."

Boyle said an Ardmore representative, whose identity he did not know, kept matter taken from the trunks.

Calling cards found among the woman's belongings bore the name "Clara Smith Hamon," Boyle said. A railroad pass made out to "Clara Smith Hamon" also was found.

An alleged diary of Miss Smith was published today by newspapers in Chicago and other Middle Western cities, with the claim that it was found in one of the trunks here. The story, which was copyrighted, asserted that the diary had been found by a newspaper man.

RANGER, Texas, Dec. 3.—Frank L. Ketch of Ardmore, Okla., administrator of the estate of the late Jake L. Hamon, asserted here today that his trip to Texas had no relation to the fatal shooting of Mr. Hamon. He said that he came to Ranger to look after the railroad interests of the late oil man. Mr. Ketch said he was accompanied here by Jake L. Hamon Jr. The two, he said, expected to leave tomorrow for Fort Worth and from there to return to Ardmore.

SWEETWATER, Texas, Dec. 3.—The police and Sheriff's office denied tonight that a brother of Miss Clara Smith had been arrested here while trying to overtake his sister in an automobile. They also disclaimed any knowledge of the woman or her brother passing through Sweetwater. It had been reported that a woman dressed as a man passed through the city in an automobile headed for El Paso Thursday.

Try to Lower Shoe Prices in Lima.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 2.—Shoe manufacturers and importers have been called together by the Government Supply Commission to find measures to bring about a decrease in shoe prices. The scarcity and high prices charged for footwear have become a subject of concern here and newspapers have been devoting considerable space to the situation.

BEGIN INTERNING PRISONERS.

Group of Sinn Feiners Is Taken to Camp in County Down.

DUBLIN, Dec. 3.—The first group of Sinn Fein prisoners to be interned under the Government's recently announced plan left Dublin last night for Ballykinler, County Down, but the number was not made public.

The Ballykinler camp is on the shore of Dundrum Bay and contains old huts which were used during the war by men in training for the Ulster Division.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, announced in the House of Commons on Nov. 30 that the Government intended to intern Sinn Feiners who, there was reason to believe, were connected with the Irish Republican Army. He added that interned prisoners would be given treatment similar to that accorded prisoners of war, but said this would not involve recognition of the persons interned as prisoners of war nor would it grant them that status.

REPORT DE VALERA ILL.

Billious Attack Confines Him to Hotel in St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 3.—Eamonn De Valera, the Irish leader, is too ill to receive visitors at the local hotel where he is staying, physicians attending him said today.

He is confined to his bed with a severe billious attack. He had intended to leave for New York yesterday to meet Mrs. Terence MacSwiney upon her arrival there.

SENATOR ON IRISH INQUIRY.

Norris of Nebraska Becomes Associated With Villard Body.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska has joined the Villard organization styling itself a commission on conditions in Ireland, according to a statement authorized today. Senator Norris, it was said, will take an active part in the inquiry that is being made by the organization into the situation in Ireland.

It was announced that the commission will resume its hearing at the Hotel Lafayette, Washington, on Dec. 8, to hear the testimony of Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, the widow, and Miss Mary MacSwiney, the sister of the late Lord Mayor of Cork. A large attendance is expected and tickets of admission will be issued.

HOUSTON OPPOSES WAR FINANCE LOANS

Tells Congress Committee Evils of Reviving Corporation Would Offset Relief to Farmers.

SUPPORTED BY HARDING

Opinion General in Washington That Congress Will Not Heed Warnings.

CALDER TO INTRODUCE BILL

Supporters Claim Enough Votes to Override Veto if Measure Should Reach President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—David F. Houston, Secretary of the Treasury, appearing today as a witness before the joint Senate and House Committees on Agriculture, opposed the revival of the War Finance Corporation as a means of providing financial relief for the farmers of the country. He declared such a step would mean the borrowing by the corporation of a huge sum and that the resultant evil would more than offset any temporary relief the farmers might receive. Such action, he said, would also put the Government back into the banking business, which he considered unwise.

Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, who also gave his views, supported in all essentials the stand taken by the Secretary of the Treasury. Governor Harding contended that the cure for the evil was one that called for the co-operation of all elements, bankers, producers, distributers and consumers. There was too much hysteria, and the time was at hand for everybody to join in an effort to bring about a more settled state of mind on the part of all the people.

However, despite the warnings of the Secretary of the Treasury and the head of the Federal Reserve Board, it is the general opinion tonight that one of the first things Congress will do after it assembles will be to pass legislation that will restore to activity the War Finance Corporation or a similar organization which will have the authority of Congress to go to the assistance of the farmers of the country. It is considered certain that President Wilson will veto any such measure, but this does not worry those who are supporting the proposed legislation. They claim they will line up the solid vote of the cotton, wheat, corn and cattle States and will be able to pass the bill over the President's veto.

Calder to Introduce Bill.

Senator Calder of New York, it is understood, will introduce a bill of this nature probably on Monday. There was a conference today among Senators and Representatives from the cotton and grain States, and it was said the conferees were unanimous in support of the proposed legislation.

Secretary Houston was in the witness chair most of the morning. At the outset, while expressing his sympathy for farmers, he said that as head of the Treasury Department it was necessary for him to point out that up to the present the Treasury Department had been unable to find any feasible way to bring about any substantial relief to those who are clamoring for help.

He called attention to the fact that Europe had been making progress; that its nations had again directed their attention to production, and that the success attending their activities was shown by their increased export trade. Even Germany had succeeded in "a measurable degree" in reviving her export trade.

In the Secretary's opinion, retailers had been trying, in a great many instances, to maintain high war prices despite reduction in production costs. How long they will be able to keep this up he was unable to estimate.

As to banking interests, Secretary Houston said the Federal Reserve Board had tried to accomplish all that could be done consistent with safety to promote the orderly marketing of agricultural products.

"Furthermore," continued the Secretary, "I do not think that in time of peace it is advisable for the Treasury Department to continue in the banking business, thus paralleling the activities of the regular banking institutions. I should think that, taking the situation as a whole, if it is deemed advisable to secure a large volume of exports, we had better continue under present conditions and facilitate the organization of export corporations under the provisions of existing laws. One such corporation has already been organized in the South and another is about to be organized in Chicago."

If revived, the Finance Corporation would have to borrow money from the very people who were now financing exports, and this might "add very largely to the borrowing the Government is now compelled to make." As for Germany's buying powers, it was impossible, until the extent of her reparation obligations was determined, to estimate the value of any market Germany could offer.

"Has the Finance Corporation any available funds at this time?" asked Senator Norris.

"Only what it can borrow," replied Secretary Houston.

If Europe could put up good security, Europe, the Secretary said, could be financed. He did not think the Treasury of the United States should be asked to accept securities that good business would not accept.

"I want to suggest," he continued, "to all here that nothing more fateful could happen to this nation than to embark on an unsound banking or fiscal policy. If, even in a measurable degree some of the schemes now suggested were adopted, we would be confronted with a situation from the effects of which we would not recover for many years. I hope we all realize that our hardships are part of the struggle we have engaged in and we must bear with them as we did in the war."

Says Bankers Will Aid.

Governor Harding explained that the war inheritance situation was universal. A year ago there was a selling market and prices were high, while today there was a buying market and there were few buyers. "The Federal Reserve Board," he continued, "was more apprehensive over conditions a year ago than it is today. This may sound a bit startling, but the fact is that a year ago there were many people who realized that the conditions then existing were impossible, and that we were in a fool's paradise. Then conditions were as abnormal in a way as they are abnormal in the opposite direction at this present moment.

"The Federal Reserve Board has nothing to do with prices or living costs. It is purely a banking organization. And as to the farmer I think what concerns our farmers most in the present situation is their uneasiness as to their own future. The fact that the farmer has been able to get credit is proved by their complaint that at present prices they cannot pay their debts. I know the banking business right well, and if the average debtor will be perfectly frank with his bank and will show that he is willing to do the right thing he will get the extension he asks. We must remember that a bank prospers only as the community in which it functions prospers. I am quite sure that in cases where liquidation is not possible and the farmer is all right, that he will be carried along."

Governor Harding expressed the opinion that when the holiday season had passed the country would see some stabilization in prices, with an advance in some things where prices are too low and a reduction where prices are too high in others. If there was some way of opening up trade with Germany and Austria, Governor Harding said, he believed conditions would be greatly improved, but he agreed with Secretary Houston that before help from that quarter could be had in any appreciable size the reparation problem must be definitely and finally solved.

He suggested that the cattlemen might be aided by the Farm Loan Banks if Congress saw fit to pass needed legislation.

The hearings will be resumed at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Advocate Reduced Production.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 3.—Reduction of production "to minimize losses," a protective tariff "against the importation of cheap wheat, grain, wool, hides and other similar farm commodities" and the enactment of a Federal law to stop gambling in grain futures, were advocated by the Directors of the Missouri Farmers' Association, in a statement made public today. The statement endorses the action of wheat growers who have withheld their product from the market.

Bankers Appeal to Congressmen.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Dec. 3.—A committee representing the South Dakota Bankers' Association today sent a telegram to United States Senators and Congressmen from this State urging legislation for the fixing of a minimum price at certain terminals for surplus grain on hand at the end of the crop year. The bankers declared that the proposed extension of credit would not meet the present crisis.

FIRE IN UNION LEAGUE CLUB.

Fifty Guests Routed From Beds by Blaze Due to Cigarette.

A fire which started in a pantry of a dining room on the third floor of the Union League Club, 1 East Thirty-ninth Street, shortly before last midnight, caused $500 damage before it was extinguished by employes of the club. The blaze is believed to have been caused by a cigarette accidentally thrown into a quantity of felt.

J. A. Rogers, manager of R. D. Brooks, steward of the club, first saw the fire and sounded the alarm. About fifty guests of the club, partly dressed, were taken to the first floor in an elevator. The blaze was extinguished before the arrival of the firemen.

Among those who were stopping at the club were Congressman B. S. Fairchild, former Governor Benjamin B. Odell, Captain R. D. Barr, U. S. A., J. J. Lyons and General J. W. Wheelan, U. S. A., attaché to the Ministry at The Hague.

INDICT NEW YORK OIL MEN.

Chicago Grand Jury Acts in Black Diamond Investigation.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—The Cook County Grand Jury today voted true bills against nine men, following its investigation into the Black Diamond Oil Company.

Those against whom the bills were voted, as announced by the State's Attorney's Office included John D. Cameron of New York, general manager of the company; Jacob Mettler of New York, President; A. C. McLoughry of Chicago, Treasurer, and Eugene F. Foley of New York. The company was organized in 1917.

ITALIAN DEPUTIES GO TO CALM D'ANNUNZIO

War Now On Between "Regency" and Kingdom, but Fiume Thus Far Is Quiet.

MINISTRY MORE HOPEFUL

Chances for a Peaceable Settlement Brighter, Says War Secretary—Sentiment With Government.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Fourteen Italian Deputies, representing all political parties, have left for Fiume, says a Rome dispatch to the Central News, to endeavor to persuade Gabriele d'Annunzio that his resistance is inopportune.

TRIESTE, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—Up to 1 o'clock this afternoon Gabriele d'Annunzio's declaration of a state of war between Italy and the regency of the Quarnero, the Fiuman Government, which was to have taken affect at midnight, had been productive of nothing but complete silence. So far as appeared, no operations were under way on either side.

Official word from the Fiume administration on the situation was lacking, no communique having been issued by the D'Annunzio administration.

Communication between Fiume and the Islands of Arbe and Veglia has been cut by an Italian patrol in the Gulf of Quarnero, and supplies cannot be taken to them from the city. Thus the poet-soldier's occupational forces there appear to be isolated.

Railroad traffic was functioning late last night, but the usual restrictions were enforced on the line of demarkation between Fiume and the occupation zone outside, passage of the d'Annunzian legionaries through the lines being forbidden.

A member of d'Annunzio's staff told The Associated Press yesterday that d'Annunzio wished recognition of his services in occupying Fiume from Parliament, and that he would become conciliatory in that event.

"No one can deny," he continued, "that d'Annunzio saved Fiume, but no mention has been made of his work in recent Parliamentary orders."

The cordon of Carabineers surrounding Fiume was increased yesterday, and a very strict watch was being kept on all approaches to the city.

Rome Is More Optimistic.

ROME, Dec. 3.—More optimistic views regarding the situation at Fiume prevailed early today in political circles, the belief being entertained that a satisfactory solution would be found of the problem presented by the refusal of Gabriele d'Annunzio to make the acts of the Fiume Government and the disposal of his forces conform with the treaty of Rapallo.

"The news from Fiume is becoming reassuring," said War Minister Bonomi at a late hour last night. "The situation has improved and a peaceful solution is virtually sure, and perhaps not far distant."

The Chamber of Deputies, acting with almost unprecedented speed, last night appointed a special commission comprising representatives of all the constitutional parties to go to Fiume in an effort to convince d'Annunzio that the highest interests of the mother country required his submission to the Adriatic settlement with the Jugoslavs.

Although newspaper and other commentators are now freely declaring that the present attitude of d'Annunzio can hardly be regarded as the highest form of patriotism, praise for the previous acts of the soldier-poet is general, it being felt he was the principal factor in saving Fiume from a status which would have been unsatisfactory to Italian opinion. With this feeling prevalent, the attacks which d'Annunzio is making with his usual vehemence upon every one in disagreement with him are receiving little or no attention, and all in authority from the King down are ignoring his denunciations and appealing to him to prevent serious complications.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Dec. 3.—The nation as a whole, although recognizing the services rendered by d'Annunzio in the past, does not think this an appropriate moment to oppose the policy of the Government. The comment of the Tribuna clearly sums up the feeling in Italy:

"The wish to save the Italianity of Fiume was accomplished for sentimental reasons and in this all Italians were in accord with d'Annunzio. But this is a question of strategical boundaries, annexation of islands and extravagant missions of sentimentalism against which another and much larger question rises which dictates to Italians to maintain integral national discipline and safeguard the dignity of Italy before the world.

PUEYRREDON TO DECIDE IF ARGENTINA STAYS IN

Buenos Aires Expects Early Notice of the Country's Withdrawal From the League.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—Rejection by the Assembly of the League of Nations of Argentine proposals in favor of the admission of all countries to the League may result in the withdrawal of this country from the organization, it was learned here last night. It was said that a cablegram was expected from Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentine Foreign Minister and chief of the Argentine delegation at Geneva, notifying the Government of his decision in the matter.

Foreign Minister Pueyrredon is understood to have received instructions from his Government before leaving for Europe to withdraw from the League if it appeared that the Assembly would refuse admission to all sovereign States and if Argentina's proposal for the constitution of the Council on a basis of equality of representation of all nations was not adopted. He was empowered to make a decision in accordance with his instructions, and it is known that, in view of yesterday's action by the Assembly and the opposition to Argentina's proposals there, this Government might receive a cablegram at any moment saying that the delegation had withdrawn from the Assembly.

Reports that France has questioned the legal status of the Argentine delegates at Geneva are denied at the Foreign Office, where emphasis is placed on the statement that such reports could not be connected with the possible withdrawal of the Argentine representatives.

RUSSIAN POPULATION FALLS.

Census Indicates 10 Per Cent. Drop Since 1914—Cities Much More.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 3.—Preliminary returns of the Russian census show decreases in the population of more than 10 per cent., compared with 1914, due to epidemics and war losses.

Moscow's population has dropped 45 per cent. and that of Petrograd 71 per cent.

GERMANY SHOCKED BY MONEY SITUATION

Leading Banker Tells Reichstag Country Is Heading Toward Austrian-Russian Conditions.

CABINET CRISIS LOOMING

Finance Minister Gives Committee Until Tuesday to Decide on Remedial Legislation on Income Tax.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—After experiencing a shock regarding the serious food situation, Germany has had a "Jack Johnson" fired at her by Herr Havenstein, President of the Reichsbank and one of the highest financial authorities in the land. Only comparatively short reports of his speech, made before the Finance Committee of the Reichstag, appeared in the press, but it is learned that his straight talk to the committee was much more sensational and pessimistic than such reports represented it to be. His gloomy outlook may be summed up in one of his sentences, to the effect that if Germany "proceeds on her present financial path she will reach the Austrian or Russian conditions in two years."

The circumstances which led to Havenstein's appearance before the committee shed an additional lurid light on the palsied financial policy of the Government. A year ago a measure was passed called the National Emergency Sacrifice. It was really a sort of income tax, payable over a period of from thirty to fifty years. After it had been a year in force it was found that it was bringing in only 1,000,000 marks for every billion expected, so the Government introduced a measure to hasten payment, and that is now before the Finance Committee.

The "unholy alliance" of Democrats and Junkers, however, is intent on weakening considerably the effect that this new measure would have. It would be thought that a measure which was bringing in only one-thousandth part of what was expected could stand speeding up, but even Dr. Dernburg, who calls himself a Democrat, declares that the committee must "draw the poisoned teeth" in the face of such opposition.

Dr. Wirth, Finance Minister, called Havenstein to his aid and the Reichsbank President spoke plainly to the committee. He painted a black picture because "he could paint no other," and recommended speeding up of the emergency sacrifice measure in conjunction with a big compulsory loan. These two things he declared, would bring in 35,000,000,000 marks, and that would hold up the increase of the floating debt—already 148,000,000 marks and likely to be increased by another 30,000,000 by the end of the year—check printing of new notes and stabilize values.

The Government considered this proposal, but the People's Party Ministers, reflecting also the Democratic and Conservative vested interests, secured its rejection. Herr Wirth as good as gave the committee until Tuesday to make up their minds on the matter, so it is not improbable that Germany may on that day find herself faced with a Cabinet crisis brought about by the resignation of Herr Wirth.

Leading articles in the press today skate skillfully around the subject, and banking circles are split into two camps. Meanwhile the German Ambassadors to three great Entente Powers, Dr. Sthamer, in London; Dr. Mayer, in Paris, and von Berenberg Gossler, in Rome, have arrived in Berlin and I learn that they will take part in highly important Government conferences, the main subject of which will be finance.

constructive acts of the League being in the nature of treaties are subject to ratification by the members of the League, that is to say, by Parliaments or Governments, as the case may be. However, before any proposed amendment could reach the Parliaments of member nations it would have to be passed by the League.

There is no definite rule of procedure laid down in the covenant for action by the League on proposed amendments. Dr. von Hamel, legal adviser to the League, has held that in their action on proposed amendments the Council and the Assembly shall adopt the same rule of procedure as is laid down in Article XXVI. for the action of member Governments. That is, the Council must approve unanimously, and a majority of the Assembly must approve, just as afterward the amendments must be ratified by all the nations represented in the Council, and by a majority of those represented in the Assembly.

It is the hope of the League leaders that America will lay down changes in the covenant under which she would join the League, and then the Council and the Assembly would act on those proposed changes, which would subsequently be submitted to the member Governments.

[Article XXVI. of the League covenant reads: "Amendments to this covenant will take effect when ratified by the Members of the League whose Representatives compose the Council, and by a majority of the Members of the League whose Representatives compose the Assembly. No such amendment shall bind any Member of the League which signifies its dissent therefrom, but in that case it shall cease to be a Member of the League."]

Motta Pleads for "Live" Court.

The speech yesterday of President Motta of Switzerland on proposed amendments to the covenant attracted much attention in the Assembly. When he said that there must be compulsory jurisdiction for the world court he was interrupted by cries of "Good!" in all directions, in which, however, the representatives of England, France and Japan did not join. In fact, it was the big powers which cut this clause out of the constitution of the new court in favor of an agreement to hear an appeal by both parties concerned. M. Motta continued:

"We want a live court, not a dead one. I intend to work for this great idea. Its accomplishment would mean great progress in the world."

Encouraged by further applause, M. Motta continued:

"Many changes ought to be made in the pact of Paris which was drawn up by the victors of the great war. This Assembly has just heard the argument, which we cannot admit, that revision of the covenant means revision of the Treaty of Versailles. I wish to make it clear that I do not want to suggest revision of the treaty, but I consider that the covenant is bound to the treaty only by external bonds.

"The question of revision of the treaty concerns the great powers which drafted it, but the covenant of the League is universal, and not the property only of those who won the war. It provides in itself for revision. I do not wish to hurt any one's feelings in saying this, but it is my duty to put before the Assembly the sentiment of Switzerland."

M. Bourgeois went to the defense of Balfour, who had been voicing French sentiment in arguing about the inadvisability of amending the treaty. In courteous language Bourgeois thanked Motta for not wanting to revise the treaty and repeated the argument that the two documents were inextricably intertwined. He said that he was sure every one would agree that amendments were not to be barred forever, but he thought that the amendment committee should carefully examine all proposals, and if it decided that they affected the treaty it should declare itself to have no competence in the matter.

President Hymans then put the resolution drafted by the amendment committee to a vote. Everybody seemed to favor acceptance, but when the President asked, "Will the nays stand up?" Pueyrredon arose to his feet.

Immediately the hall became a scene of disorder. When silence was restored Pueyrredon said:

"I oppose the resolution. I want amendments to be discussed by this Assembly."

Again there was silence. The covenant says that Assembly decisions must be unanimous. The Assembly itself has decided that action taken by the adoption of commission resolutions must also be unanimous.

Then Viviani arose. He declared that this was a question of procedure rather than of action and, therefore, could be decided by a majority vote. Hymans, evidently wanting to cut the discussion short, ruled to that effect. Accordingly the resolution was adopted by a majority vote. "Very good," said Pueyrredon.

After the Assembly adjourned the incident aroused great discussion. Many delegates thought that Hymans gave a wrong ruling, but he was apparently justified by French and Belgian parliamentary procedure. However, an interesting debate is promised on the point.

Catalans Seek Freedom From Spain.

GENEVA, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—The Catalans have asked the League of Nations to free them from Spanish rule, the Montenegrins are repeatedly appealing to the Council and the Assembly for the independence of their country and for relief from alleged cruelties by Serbian troops of occupation, and among the almost innumerable odds and ends in the League mail are demands for a revision of the treaty of Sèvres.

These and minor complications are preventing the Council or the Assembly from pushing ahead with the big program of the present meeting.

Meantime the Financial Committee of Twelve appointed to continue the work of the Brussels Financial Conference has been diligently working out a plan for an international credits institution. This committee took the rough sketch of the plan prepared by the Brussels Conference as a starting point for its work. After twenty-odd sittings here it has virtually completed the draft of a plan, which will be submitted to the Council in a few days.

Announcement of this progress toward a practical solution of one of the world's biggest problems is hailed with the greatest satisfaction by many delegates, who had acquired the impression that the Council was permitting the recommendations of the Brussels Conference to remain in pigeonholes.

Talk of Eliminating Article X.

The presentation and adoption of a resolution eliminating Article X. from the Covenant of the League before the end of the present session of the Assembly would occasion no surprise here, it was declared in some quarters when the Assembly began its meeting today.

Assertions were made that yesterday's decision of the Committee on the Admission of New States, which held, in effect, that the article does not guarantee the territorial integrity of any member of the League, represented the view of a majority of the delegates at the present meeting.

The possibility of again bringing before the present Assembly the entire question of amendments to the covenant will, be discussed at a special meeting of the Steering Committee called by Paul Hymans, Chairman of the Assembly, for Monday morning, according to a statement made by Honorio Pueyrredon of the Argentine delegation to The Associated Press today.

M. Pueyrredon said that the calling of the meeting was the result of the feeling among many of the delegations which had developed by reason of the decision of the Assembly to delay the discussion of the question of amendments until its next meeting. Several South American countries had already requested that their vote in the premises be recorded with that of Argentina, M. Pueyrredon added.

Denies Argentina Plans Bolt.

M. Pueyrredon denied a report from Buenos Aires that Argentina was considering withdrawing from the League because of the decision of the Assembly not to discuss amendments proposed by him and others. M. Pueyrredon expressed the belief that Argentina may have become needlessly excited over this move of the Assembly and exaggerated its importance. No such step as a withdrawal was being contemplated by Argentina, M. Pueyrredon continued, but he said he still felt that the Assembly had delayed for months the most vital question for which it was called together.

The secretary of M. Hymans called on M. Pueyrredon today and asked if it was the impression of the Argentine delegate that all discussion of amendments had been blocked by the Assembly, or merely the Scandinavian proposals. M. Pueyrredon said that he regarded the action of the Assembly as a definite delay on the entire question of amendments. The secretary of M. Hymans then informed him that a way might be found to interpret the rule so as to permit the proposed Argentine amendments to come up again at the present Assembly.

The discussions in the Assembly have provoked considerable criticism, especially among the small nations, and M. Hymans's effort to bring up the matter again is regarded by M. Pueyrredon and other delegates as a move to anticipate the further growth of resentment and to satisfy Argentina. General discussion of the whole question of amendments to the covenant probably will come up before the present Assembly as a result of next Monday's meeting.

Draft Economic Blockade Plan.

A definite plan for the use of the economic blockade against members of the League breaking the covenant was unanimously adopted by the sub-commission on blockade. The members of the commission expressed the belief that the plan would give the League a very effective weapon against offending members and would do much to prevent serious international disputes from developing into actual wars.

The members declared themselves confident that the scheme would be ratified by the full commission and later by the Assembly of the League. Details of the plan will be published in a few days, it was announced. A public session of the Armaments Commission will consider the plan.

The General Committee of the Assembly met this morning for the purpose of formulating plans to speed up the work of the Assembly with a view to its completion by Dec. 10 or 11. Sir Eric Drummond, the General Secretary of the League, informed the committee that he believed it would be almost impossible to complete the unfinished business before Dec. 18 or 20, but the committee decided that it would attempt to end the present session by Dec. 11.

To this end the committee determined to urge all the commissions to get their reports in shape for submission as quickly as possible.

Delay Report on Council Election.

The committee to which was referred the question of how to choose the four elective members of the Council of the League had not reported. The question is whether these members shall be elected for four years or two, and it is still being debated whether their terms of office should begin from the first entry of the Council into operation or from the present meeting of the Assembly. If the latter idea prevails the four representatives must be elected here.

The chance of Brazil returning to her place on the Council is considered excellent, but Greece, it is thought, will lose her place. Sweden has strong support as successor to Belgium, while Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Portugal are eventual candidates. The chances for Portugal were much improved by the success of Dr. Affonso Costa, head of her delegation, in putting through an amendment providing that the committee to study amendments to the Covenant may consider suggestions from any source.

This was a quiet day among the committees. A great many of the delegates took the opportunity to get some rest, as most of them are beginning to feel the effects of the intense efforts made in the work of the Assembly and the almost nightly entertainments which the delegations are giving each other in the process of making acquaintances.

REPORT WILSON FAVORS DISARMAMENT PLAN AID

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The State Department today received the formal request from the Council of the League of Nations to co-operate with the League in the task of making a preliminary study of the problem of international disarmament, the text of which had been cabled to THE NEW YORK TIMES from Geneva when it was framed.

No decision has been reached by the State Department concerning the reply to be made to the invitation to appoint American representatives to attend the meetings of the Armaments Commission. The official text of the invitation was sent to the White House by the State Department late this afternoon.

There was an inclination to believe, however, that President Wilson would authorize compliance by the State Department, to whom the invitation was addressed, on the conditions laid down in the invitation itself, that is, that the American representatives would sit as consultors only. Whether he will do this without seeking the advice of Congress on the subject remains to be developed.

WILSON MEDIATION PERSONAL.

Washington View Was Misconstrued —Morgenthau at White House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—State Department officers said today that a misconstruction had been placed upon their statement yesterday as to whether President Wilson would act officially or personally in naming a mediator to act for him in an effort to settle the trouble between the Armenians and Turkish Nationalists. They said that the President would act personally and not officially in appointing a mediator, but explained that it would be difficult, of course, to differentiate between Woodrow Wilson personally and as President of the United States.

Should the negotiations not be concluded before President Wilson retires next March 4 the mediator appointed by him would continue to act as his representative.

Henry Morgenthau, former Minister to Turkey, whose name has been mentioned as a possible selection of the President as mediator, called today at the White House. He did not see the President, but spent some time with Secretary Tumulty.

Asked if he would accept the task of mediator, Mr. Morgenthau said that he always was "at the service of the President." He added that his visit to the White House was merely to convey his respects to Mr. Wilson.

The reply to the League of Nations Council to President Wilson's acceptance of the rôle of mediator reached the White House last night.

OPPOSE DUTCH HELP AT VILNA.

Minister Van Karnebeek Said to Have Advised Against It.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 3.—Much opposition has arisen in Holland to Dutch participation in the League of Nations Vilna Guard.

According to the Handelsblad's Geneva correspondent, Foreign Minister Van Karnebeek, who is one of Holland's delegates to the League Assembly, has advised against it. Van Doorn, a member of the Second Chamber, directed a question in Parliament asking for information, but so far has been unanswered. According to some Dutch papers, volunteers for a Dutch contingent for Vilna were sought in The Hague barracks last week.

The strongest opposition comes from the Communists, whose newspaper, the Tribune, says that participation would mean nothing more or less than war on Russia.

DOUBTS ARMENIAN PLAN.

But Curzon Says Britain Will Give Moral Support to Wilson.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Dec. 3.—A telegram tonight from Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, to the League Council casts doubts on the wisdom of Wilson mediating for Armenia, citing the fact that the Armenians are now negotiating for themselves.

Lord Curzon, replying to the same message of invitation that was sent to Washington, says that Britain is not ready to undertake the task, but adds that she is willing to give Wilson moral support.

REPORTS JAPANESE ARMY IN FORMOSA

Correspondent Says Force Put at 30,000 Is Camped Within 24 Hours of Philippines.

SAYS HE SAW SITE BY NIGHT

Declares Fleet of Transports Adding to Force There Has Been Seen by American Skippers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—In a copyrighted wireless message to Manila, sent from a steamer off the coast, a Chicago Tribune correspondent says:

"Japan is maintaining on the lower end of Formosa, within twenty hours' sail of the important harbor of San Fernando Bay in Union Province in the north end of the Philippines, a large military camp.

"Tokio is adding to this camp unobtrusively by means of a fleet of transports plying between Japan and the Formosan camp.

"These transports are carrying men and supplies. Although reports from several sources fairly reliable have persisted that there are now 30,000 troops in this camp, I have not yet been able to verify it. I have just investigated this camp, however, by night from the sea. It appears to cover several hundred acres, and to judge from the brilliance of the light and their wide extent, being visible for miles at sea, the population of the camp is equal to that of a large city.

"American skippers along the China coast have been reporting the activity of Japanese transports between Japan and Formosa for several weeks. They have passed them at sea apparently carrying heavy loads of men and supplies.

"The explanation given by minor officials of the Japanese Government is that 'some military policemen' are being sent to Formosa to put down the natives who have shot some of the military police.

"American Army and Navy officials are inclined to doubt the figure of 30,000, but are restless, nevertheless, because even 20,000 troops would outnumber the American land forces in the Philippines."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Undersecretary of State Davis declared tonight that the State Department had no information that Japan was concentrating a military force on Formosa Island.

Inquiries at the Navy Department indicated that the Navy has no information on the subject.

JAPANESE WARN BRITISH MISSIONARIES

Help to Korean Would Give Right to Assist Indian Buddhists, They Say.

TOKIO, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—The military commission at Chien-tao, Manchuria, has addressed a letter to the Canadian missionaries there in answer to charges made recently by the missionaries that massacres, alleged to have been committed by Japanese troops, had taken place and that villages were burned. The letter emphasizes that the Japanese military expedition to the district was due to the fact that the Chinese authorities co-operated with the outlaws, and declares that churches and schools were burned only where there was incontestible evidence that they had been used as "breeding places of iniquity."

In such cases, the letter points out, it was impossible to hold even court-martials, therefore the troops executed insurgents on the spot after a simple inquiry, which included villagers' evidence, but took the utmost care to avoid an indiscriminate massacre.

Warning is given in the letter that any spiritual or material assistance the British missionaries give the Korean malcontents will lead to a breach in the good understanding between the two countries. It says there are many insurgent races in India, and that if British Christians assist the Korean malcontents the Japanese Buddhists are entitled to assist the anti-British elements in India.

AUSTRALIA WITH US IN IMMIGRATION POLICY

Her Commissioner Here Tells Harvard Union That Commonwealth Is Ready to Co-operate.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 3.—Australia stands ready to co-operate with the United States along the lines suggested by Senator Lodge in regard to Asiatic immigration, according to a speech by Mark Sheldon, Commissioner for Australia in the United States, at the Harvard Union.

Senator Lodge stated recently in an address in Philadelphia that he would like to make an arrangement with Canada, Australia and New Zealand in matters dealing with immigration from Asia. The Senator had added:

"Their danger is the same as ours, and the shadow hangs darkest over Australia. We must face it, and it might as well be understood that it is in no sense of hostility to any nation."

Commenting on these remarks, Mr. Sheldon said:

"Our Prime Minister, the Right Hon. W. M. Hughes, has repeatedly in the past, and only within the last few months, held out a similar invitation to the United States. Our views and interests are identical on this question. We, like you, desire to avoid any conflict, but on the other hand, we are determined to maintain our policy. I am sure that any approaches for a general understanding on this question, consistent with the views of Australia, would be gladly welcomed not only in Australia but by the other members of the British Empire."

The Commissioner referred at some length to Australia's "white policy." He said in part:

"This policy of a 'white Australia' has been criticised by outsiders as one tending to retard the development of Australia. Undoubtedly there is a great deal of truth in that. Australians themselves realize this, but they have not been led away from what they believe is a great ideal, and for the sake of a temporary gain to discount the future. For what they believe to be moral as well as economic reasons they are determined to hold and maintain Australia as a white man's country."

WANT TO ABOLISH JERSEY BLUE LAWS

Justice Minturn Leads Campaign to Fight the Program of the Lord's Day Alliance.

Provoked by the campaign of the Lord's Day Alliance to force the entire country to return to a rigorously Puritan Sabbath, men of unquestioned standing in New Jersey have roused themselves to an effort to free that State from the existing blue laws, it was announced last night.

An unsuccessful attempt was made last year to rid the New Jersey statute books of laws which prevent citizens of that State deciding for themselves the manner in which they shall spend Sunday. This failure is attributed in part to the presence at committee meetings of those who confused things by standing up for the Puritan program. This difficulty is to be avoided now by restricting membership on the committee to those who believe in liberty of conscience and making attendance at meetings dependent entirely upon receipt of invitations.

The new movement is headed by Supreme Court Justice James F. Minturn, and it is announced that it will conduct a very active campaign. The program in detail has not been announced, but initial steps were taken, it was learned last night, at a recent meeting at the home of General Bird W. Spencer in Passaic. It was said last night that another meeting would be announced in a few days and that it would be devoted to formulating plans for the repeal of existing blue laws as a first step in fighting the Alliance program.

Among those identified with Justice Minturn whose names were announced last night were General Spencer, Mgr. John A. Sheppard, Vicar General of the Newark diocese, George R. Beach, President of the Hudson County Bar Association and former Assemblyman Harry C. Whitehead of Passaic.

Justice Minturn said yesterday that disregard and contempt of law were the natural results of the application of rigid Sunday observance and that the country was breeding a generation who were not law abiding and whose disregard of law was "tacitly winked at" by the judiciary. He cited the regular Monday finding of moving picture theatre proprietors in Passaic County $1 for holding Sunday shows as a travesty of law, and said the fines merely were looked upon as a liberal license fee. "That is the kind of thing I am going to try very hard to abolish," he added.

The committee of the Board of Managers of the New York Civic League appointed to investigate the blue law activities of the Lord's Day Alliance and to recommend a course of action, issued a statement yesterday in which it said the league was opposed to commercialization of the Sabbath and called for efforts to repeal the Sunday baseball and moving picture laws. It said it believed efforts to keep the whole day free from secular sports by law would be misuse of the legislative power and laid emphasis upon its opposition to forcing persons to work on Sunday. Canon William Sheafe Chase of Brooklyn, President of the league, and other officers signed the statement.

TO SCARE BURGLARS WITH MOTORCYCLES

Estimate Board Grants $50,000 to Try Out Hylan Plan to Frighten Thieves with Noise.

SEE CRIME WAVE END NEAR

President Curran's Suggestion to Use Brass Bands, as Being Noisier, Is Scorned.

The New York Police Department is to try a new way of putting an end to the depredations of burglars. Police Lieutenants are going to patrol all night in motorcycles to "surprise" the burglars and to keep in touch with uniformed men on post. The new scheme was disclosed at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate.

At that meeting the Board granted a transfer of $50,000 from Police Department accruals for the purchase of the motorcycles over the protest of Borough President Curran. President Curran wasn't exactly opposed to the innovation. On the contrary, for once he went the City Administration one better and gravely suggested something even more radical. He thought it might be much more certainly effective to pursue burglars with brass bands. But the Board scorned him and clung to Commissioner Enright's plan for the motorcycles.

"Those motorcycles are as noisy as a brass band," said the surprised Borough President, when the request was made. "Burglars will hear them coming. Wouldn't it be better to purchase Fords?"

"We want them to be noisy, so as to make burglars run," explained the Mayor.

Mr. Leach said that $50,000 would not be enough to buy Fords, and explained that the motorcycles were to be used all night and as much of the day as was possible. He said they would be used to "surprise" burglars as well as to check up on patrolmen, and said one advantage would be that they could be kept at station houses ready for instant use. That ended the discussion.

Meantime Acting Commissioner Leach found occasion to defend the department's record before the board. He said that in cases from felonies to murders the figures this year show 33 per cent. fewer than in 1915, 30 per cent. fewer than 1916, 25 per cent. fewer than 1917 and 11 per cent. fewer than 1919. Burglaries, he said, showed 50 per cent. fewer than in 1915 and 33 per cent. fewer than in 1916-17.

Suggests Round-Up of Gun Toters.

In deciding the "fair and reasonable" rental in a housing law case before him yesterday in the East Eighty-eighth Street Court, Justice John R. Davies, allowing an item because of the increase in taxes for 1921, remarked:

"Like every other citizen of New York City, I do not object to a raise in taxes if for value received. But we are all dissatisfied that the Police Department doesn't seem to be taking any effective steps to prevent or frustrate these continuous burglaries and holdups. We expect our Police Department to keep our houses and streets and public places safe, and with the splendid body of men in the department it can be done if intelligently directed.

"Instead of sending the captains around to make welfare speeches at clubs, we ought to have specific plans for a better system of revolver license regulation and an effective round-up or series of round-ups of all revolvers and guns in this city.

"The present automobile round-up is interesting, but a city-wide and thorough round-up of illegal gun carriers, such as was had to collect the draft slackers during the war, would be more satisfying and more in the line of necessary police duty."

BERGER'S APPEAL ATTACKS JUDGE LANDIS

Holds That Anti-German Prejudice Unfitted Him to Preside at Espionage Trial.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—An attack on the eligibility of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who presided at their trial, will form the basis of the appeal to the Supreme Court of Victor L. Berger, editor of The Milwaukee Leader, and four other Socialist Party leaders, now under conviction of having violated the Espionage act. The briefs were filed today in preparation for arguments, which, on the Government's motion, have been advanced to the calendar for next Monday.

Those convicted with Berger were Adolph Germer, National Secretary of the party; William F. Kruse, editor of The Young Socialists' Magazine; Louis Engdahl and Irwin St. John Tucker. Sentences of twenty years' imprisonment were imposed upon each.

COMMUNIST CHIEFS SEND APPEALS HERE

Centre Their Attack on Socialists, Demanding "Revolutionary Fighters."

CRITICISE THE PLATFORM

Internationale Finds Victor Berger Reactionary and Tells Workmen to Leave Party.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Lenin's declaration to the Communists of Moscow that the world revolution which the Russian Communists seek has progressed slowly, and that Communists must exercise patience, is being paralleled and accompanied with vigorous appeals from the Communist Internationale leaders at Moscow, who are also leaders in the Russian Soviet régime, to Socialists and workmen throughout the world to abandon the "centre," become out-and-out Communists and resort to direct action."

The text of two such appeals reached Washington today, through German sources, one a "proclamation" to the proletarians of all countries, the other an appeal to members of the Socialist Party in the United States. The "proclamation" addressed to the "proletarians of all countries" has just been printed in Die Roth Fahne (The Red Flag), the German Communist organ, and is signed by Zinovieff, President of the Petrograd Soviet and member of the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party, who attended the recent sessions of the Communist Internationale at Moscow. The proclamation seeks to incite workmen in all parts of the world to rise against established Governments and concivdes:

"We demand of the workmen of all countries that they call their comrades up to active assistance of the Soviet Republic and with all means at their commands.

"We desire to drop the defensive and proceed to the offensive.

"The Socialist traitors and the 'centre' Socialist Parties know very well that the workmen of the entire world are filled with enthusiasm for the Russian proletariat and for the Soviet Government.

"But the Soviet Government at present needs assistance through actions. actions.

"We need real revolutionary fighters, no diplomats!"

The letter from the Communist Internationale to the Socialist Party of the United States, as published in the German Independent Socialist newspaper Volksblatt, deals with the attitude of the Socialist Party of the United States toward the question of fusion with the Third Internationale and urges workmen in this country to abandon the Socialist Party and join the United Communist Party of America. In this letter the Russian Communist and Soviet leaders criticise and condemn the Socialist Party of the United States, which would deliver workmen over to "world imperialism" and pictures the "Internationale as an organization of attack" and the "General Staff of the World Revolution, which is to bring about the forcible overthrow of capitalism in the whole world and which is to obtain the dictatorship for the proletariat of the entire world."

The letter reads:

"Dear Comrades: The official declaration of the Socialist Party of the United States concerning its fusion with the Third Internationale has been received by the Executive Committee of the Communist Internationale. We have also received a report concerning the national convention of the Socialist Party which took place at New York in May, 1920. This report contains a decision regarding the relations to the Internationale and was carried by the convention of American Socialists.

"We have also in our possession the second resolution brought in for the minority by Victor Berger. We say to Berger's resolution: It is honestly reactionary, and we are astonished that a party which calls itself Socialist could bring it in at the conference. The other resolution of the minority which is completely covered by the resolution accepted by the referendum (except the amendment by George Landsbury, containing his opinion concerning Lenin's views on the conditions of admission to the Third Internationale), must be thoroughly discussed.

"It is, as a matter of course, most valuable for us to be sure of the sympathy of the American Socialist Party when the Communist Internationale is threatened by the capitalist forces of the entire world. But, after all, this latter circumstance is scarcely a sufficient reason for a party to join the Communist Internationale, just as little as it is a reason for the latter to admit such a party which merely grants us its sympathy. But the resolution does not mention any other cause for fusion. Its movers evidently entirely misunderstand the rôle of the Communist Internationale.

"The Internationale is by no means a mere organization for the defense of the proletariat. It is an organization of attack, it is the general staff of the world revolution, which is to bring about the forcible overthrow of capitalism in the whole world and which is to obtain the dictatorship for the proletariat in the entire world. It is the communist Internationale which has something to say to the foreign parties desiring to be admitted. The communist Internationale is not 'Moscow' but a centralized and disciplined organization which now comprises the overpowering majority of the revolutionary workmen's parties of the world.

"We say to the workmen of the United States: The Socialist Party of the United States is no workmen's party, but an auxiliary organization for the American bourgeoisie, for world imperialism. It does not lead to socialism, but delivers you up to counter-revolution. Workmen, leave this party. It is your enemy. Join the united communist party of America. This is the party which represents your real interests."

WOMEN DIVIDE ON SMOKING.

Bridgeport Club Forbids It and a Controversy Arises.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 3.—Smoking has been banned in the clubrooms of the Bridgeport Business and Professional Women's Club, which has nearly one thousand members. The action of the Executive Committee of the club in ruling against smoking divides the membership into two camps. Those who favored installing ash trays in the lounge rooms of the club have issued a denunciation of what they term the "narrow-minded action of the highbrows" in placing the ban on smoking.

A communication to The Pharos, the club publication, which charged that devotees of the cigarette habit displayed "low-down" propensities, drew from another of the members the following statement: "Smoking makes a woman neither a 'high brow' or a 'low brow.'

NIVELLE PICKS WRONG HERO.

Mistakes Boston Elevator Runner for Verdun Defender.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Theodore Roosevelt Jennings is an elevator man at the City Hall. After he had carried General Georges Nivelle and his party to the office of Mayor Peters today he almost lost control of his car when the defender of Verdun said to him:

"Ah, mon brave enfant," I did not think to meet you here. I would hardly recognize you without your fez and your baggy trousers of the wartime. You fought valiantly for France."

Jennings hastily explained.

"These trousers are pretty baggy," he stammered. "But I been faithful to this here elevator throttle clear through the war, General, much as I wanted to get away from it. But they also served who stan's an' waits, I reckon."

Then General Nivelle, who had mistaken Jennings for a Moroccan Colonel who fought under him at Verdun and on the Aisne line, recognized his mistake and laughed more heartily than any one else in the party.

Ontario Farmer Says It Has Reduced Grain Products There.

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—Protective tariff legislation builds smokestacks in cities but decreases population and production in the country, declared J. J. Morrison, Secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, who appeared today before the Dominion Tariff Commission.

The rural population of Canada steadily increased until 1881, when protection first became fully effective, he said. He added that since then there had been a steady decline in grain and farm products in Ontario.

WOULD BAR ALIENS TO LESSEN CRIME

Kings County Grand Jury Calls on Congress for Stringent Immigration Laws.

FOREIGN COLONIESAMENACE

Presentment Says "We Are Likely to Be Submerged" Unless Comprehensive Steps Are Taken.

Declaring that undesirable aliens were responsible for many of the crimes of violence investigated by it and other Grand Juries, the Kings County Grand Jury for November yesterday issued a presentment embodying a plea to Congress for legislation that will "prohibit the immigration into the country of all who cannot read and write English and who do not possess an intelligent understanding of the fundamental ideas of human liberty."

Racial hatreds have been found responsible for many crimes of violence, the presentment says, and old feuds and customs of aliens have caused suffering among law-abiding classes of the population. The immigrants' lack of knowledge of the language, customs and ideals of this country has hampered the Kings County Grand Jury from finding out all the facts on crimes.

Figures made public at the Immigration Station at Ellis Island yesterday by Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis disclose that 548,069 aliens have arrived at this port in the last eleven months, and that only 2,703 were sent back to their countries as unworthy of entrance into this country. Deportations of radicals and other undesirables during the same period were 637.

The presentment of the Kings County Grand Jury, signed by William Shaddock, foreman and J. Van V. Smith, secretary, follows:

"The experience of the Grand Jury for November, for the County of Kings (which we are assured does not greatly differ from that of other recent Grand Juries) is such as to have caused us to give most earnest thought as to the origin of much of the crime with which we have had to deal.

"A study of the record of our proceedings shows that all of the homicides and most of the graver, more desperate and heinous crimes were committed by foreigners who palpably have no understanding of the genesis or genius of American institutions. They not only have not been assimilated, but seemingly are unlikely, under present conditions, ever to be assimilable.

"The facts as to many of these crimes show the presence in this city of foreign colonies whose existence is a perpetual menace to the lives and property of our law-abiding and law-loving citizens. From the testimony of witnesses, some of whom were participants in these heinous crimes, it has been clearly revealed that inter-racial hatreds, with their attendant feuds and vendettas, have been transplanted to this country. These feuds have been aggravated and perpetuated by the increase and extension of these foreign colonies.

Colonies an Increasing Menace.

"The formation and growth of these foreign colonies in our midst have subjected our institutions to a great strain. Unless their growth is prevented by the exclusion of countless thousands of like elements which are constantly arriving at the Port of New York, these colonies will be a constantly increasing menace and may threaten the submersion of the American elements in our population.

"The securing of evidence and the taking of testimony as to most of the grave crimes has become next to impossible in the language of our country. Every additional immigrant of this type but adds to the difficulty of protecting the lives and property of the law-abiding section of the community—of those who are of native birth or were readily assimilable. The cost of administering our courts and of maintaining a constantly increasing police force in order to cope with these law defying elements, is an ever increasing burden to this community.

"In the face of these conditions our people may well pause and inquire whether it will be possible to keep the wellsprings of our institutions pure if they are to continue to be subjected to the infusion of such elements—elements which are not merely unassimilable, but largely hostile to the fundamental principles of liberty. Our institutions were subjected to a great strain during the war by reason of the divided allegiance of certain foreign elements. This prevented the nation from functioning unitedly in its efforts to preserve democracy.

"Unless steps are quickly taken to prevent the admission of those millions which wish to come, although hostile to our institutions, we are liable to be submerged by elements who have no devotion to the great ideals of human liberty, have no regard for justice, nor respect for the sacredness of human life. America would then cease to be a beacon light to lead the nations to the complete establishment of democracy.

"The stream of our national life cannot rise higher than its source. To permit any further pollution of this stream is to jeopardize our national existence. To allow any further admixture of races in our midst is to intensify both our foreign as well as our domestic problems. It will foster disunion instead of promoting union. Instead of continuing as a nation of high ideals, we shall degenerate into a mere medley of races, a hodgepodge of nationalities.

"We, therefore, earnestly request the Congress of the United States to enact such legislation as will prohibit the immigration into the country of all who cannot read and write English, and who do not possess an intelligent understand- of the fundamental ideas of human liberty.

"We further request that comprehensive measures be taken for the education of every adult of foreign birth at least in the rudiments of simpler education such as will enable them to understand our form of government.

"WILLIAM SHADDOCK, Foreman.
"J. VAN V. SMITH, Secretary."

DEFENDS COURT PAYCHANGE

Brooklyn Clerk Says Alterations in Budget Schedule Were Proper.

The insertion of salary increases totaling $41,360 in the budget sheet of the Supreme Court in Kings County, discovered Thursday by the Justices of the court, who have sole authority in the matter, after the items had been passed by the Board of Estimate and were before the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen in their final form, was due, it developed yesterday, to the addition to the schedules of the bonuses granted city employes generally. The addition was made in the office of S. Devoy, Chief Clerk of the courts in Brooklyn, whi said yesterday that the employes were entitled to the extra pay and that it was perfectly proper for him to include it.

Supreme Court Justice Manning, one of the three Justices who appeared before the Finance Committee and had the unauthorized items cut out, declared yesterday that it was too early to say what punishment, if any, would be given to the persons who changed the figures. Justice Cropsey, who also protested the increase, said that "a meeting ought to be called and something done about it."

JEWS ASK FOR OPEN DOORS TO AMERICA

Appeal to Federation of Labor to Exempt Them From Restricted Immigration Plan.

In behalf of the Hebrew workers throughout the country who wish to be exempted from the immigration restriction plan of the American Federation of Labor, representatives of the United Hebrew Trades of this city conferred yesterday with the subcommittee on immigration of the Federation of Labor at the Hotel Continental. It was announced by the representatives of the United Hebrew Trades at the close of the conference that they had strong hopes of favorable action by the Executive Council of the federation.

The reasons given for desiring to be exempted from the operation of the restrictions suggested by the American Federation of Labor are that in certain sections of Europe large numbers of Jews are massacred and persecuted in various ways, which ill treatment has caused many in the past to flee to the United States, and may in the future compel hundreds of thousands of others to come to this country.

In a statement issued following the conference, H. Lang of the United Hebrew Trades said that the sub-committee had given them a careful hearing and seemed to be deeply impressed with the argument advanced for placing no further restrictions in the way of immigration of the Jews. The subcommittee had no power to act, Mr. Lang said, but the members promised to present the situation to the Executive Council for its careful consideration.

Besides Mr. Lang the United Hebrew Trades were represented by Max Pine, Secretary of the organization, and Israel Feinberg of the Cloak Makers' Union. The subcommittee of the American Federation included Matthew Woll, Vice President, and Frank Morrison, Secretary of the organization.

Fund Inquirers Seek Time Extension

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Authority to continue its investigation into campaign expenditures until March 4, will be asked of the Senate by the committee headed by Senator Kenyon, which has been conducting such an inquiry since May. Under the resolution authorizing the inquiry, the committee was ordered to conclude its work and file a report next Monday, but the committee decided that this would be impossible.

HARDING TO ADDRESS SENATE ON MONDAY

Norfolk to greet the Senator on his arrival from Panama.

A substitute suggestion by the Senate leaders was that Mr. Harding take his seat in the Senate Monday, answer the rollcall and take part in other proceedings, but without making an address. Mr. Daugherty told Republican leaders that he had no knowledge of Senator Harding's plans for his stay here.

DECLARE KNOX SURE TO GET CABINET OFFER

Agreement With Harding on Panama Tolls Makes Him More Acceptable—Daugherty Sees Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Gossip that Senator Knox would be selected as Secretary of State in the Harding cabinet became strong today after Harry K. Daugherty, President-elect Harding's personal manager, called upon the Senator. But Senator Knox said that the discussion did not bear upon politics.

It can be said authoritatively that Mr. Knox has not been approached by the President-elect regarding the cabinet place and that it is Mr. Knox's desire to remain in the Senate. Nevertheless, those in a position to speak with authority say that Mr. Knox will be asked to become Secretary of State.

As contrasted with ex-Senator Root, it is said that Senator Knox holds the same views as Senator Harding, not only on the League of Nations and foreign affairs generally but especially upon the Panama Canal tolls questions.

Mr. Harding has announced that one of the first matters he will recommend to Congress is the exemption of American coastwise ships from canal tolls. In August, 1912, Congress passed a bill including a clause exempting American coastwise vessels from fees for passing through the canal. There was a protest from Great Britain on the ground that this violated the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. As Secretary of State, Mr. Knox held that the treaty was not violated, and began negotiations with Great Britain on the subject. Before these were concluded Senator Root introduced a bill in the Senate to repeal the toll exemption. This was just before President Wilson took office. In March, 1914, President Wilson asked for the repeal of the tolls exemption, and this was done after a sharp struggle, in which Senators Lodge and Root, among other Republicans, supported the President's view.

The Republican platform declares for the restoration of tolls exemption, and Senators Borah and Knox will bring the matter before the Senate at the coming session.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—Reluctance to have Senator Knox resign his seat and go into the Cabinet was voiced today by Senator Penrose. He said that he would much prefer to have Knox remain in the Senate.

Senator Penrose gave his views to newspaper men today after he had spent the afternoon in conference with Senator Watson, during which they discussed Federal patronage and legislation which will come before Congress at the short session and in the new Congress.

"I've made a good many bluffs at going to get well," Penrose said vigorously tonight. "This time I'm going to make good. I'm sick and tired of playing he invalid. I want to get out and tell somebody to go to ——.

"Senator Knox is a good man wherever you put him. My own judgment is that he would prefer to remain as Senator than go into the Cabinet. I have not consulted him, but he has had the honors, and I would much rather see him remain in the Senate."

Mr. Penrose said that he purposed going to Washington after New Year's, when his committee would begin hearings upon revenue legislation which would be proposed when the new Congress met.

VIRGINIANS PREPARE WELCOME

Newport News and Norfolk to Entertain Him.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Dec. 3.—The master of the Pastores advised the steamship company today that his vessel, bringing President-elect Harding, should reach Old Point quarantine at 9 A. M. tomorrow if the present weather continued.

A party of citizens will meet the ship. Customs officials tonight received telegraphic instructions from the Treasury directing them to give free entry to the President-elect and his party and extend all possible courtesies.

From quarantine the Pastores will proceed to Newport News. Here Mr. and Mrs. Harding will visit a shipyard where three battleships and two battle cruisers are under construction. Afterward a reception will be held in the Academy of Music, and it is expected the President-elect will make an address. A tour will follow through the business section.

After luncheon the President-elect and his party will cross Hampton Roads to visit Norfolk. The afternoon will be spent viewing points of interest in Norfolk, with possibly a visit to the navy yard and the naval training station.

A dinner in honor of Mr. Harding will be given in the evening. The President-elect and his party will leave Norfolk about 11 P. M. on a special train for Bedford.

PRESIDENT IS EAGER TO SPEAK MESSAGE

So Much Improved in Health That He Wants to Go Before Congress on Tuesday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—President Wilson has gained so much strength in the last month that he is very eager to read his annual address to the Senate and the House in joint session Tuesday.

President Wilson has insisted that he is able to read his message, but Rear Admiral Grayson, his physician, and members of the President's family have advised against the effort. The President has not decided as to his course.

Each House of Congress will name a committee on Monday to inform the President that it has reassembled and awaits his annual communication. The President will receive this committee, it was stated, today, and then make known whether he will follow his custom of reading his message in person or will transmit it to the two Houses. The belief is that the President will finally accept the judgment of his physician and not appear in person.

There has been a marked improvement in President Wilson's condition in the past month, or since the election. Fears that the defeat of the Democratic Party would have a bad effect on his health were not realized.

The President has been practicing for some time walking in his room and on going to and from his motor car. About a week ago, with renewed strength to encourage him, he began a new effort. He now rises from bed without assistance, is able to seat himself in and rise from chairs, which he had not been able to do previously, and walks freely about the White House. It is said that he gave up using his wheel chair a week ago and could now go to the Capitol without the help of chair or cane.

The President is now able to use his left arm more than at any time since his stroke of cerebral thrombosis crippled the muscles. He can raise it to his head, as he does occasionally to adjust his golf cap when motoring.

A decided revival of the President's former cheerfulness and jocularity has been apparent recently. He looks better in every way.

The President and Mrs. Wilson are still seeking a house for a permanent home. They have examined many places, but have reached no decision.

Advertising has been described as an "inexact science." There are, however, certain laws and principles which guide the construction and application of advertising; certain elements which enter into the appeal of and response to an advertisement. These principles, and discussions of them, have been published from time to time by advertising authorities.

We mention four books representative of a complete collection of advertising literature. They treat of the subject from various angles and are of interest to all connected with the advertising profession.

THE PARTS MEN PLAY, by A. Beverley Baxter, is a story of the parasitic, purposeless, artistic social set that plays with Life. "A Second Mr. Britling," says the London Standard. Another great book that equals The Age of Innocence and Miss Lulu Bett.

CABLE CONVENTION ON ROUTING LIKELY

International Conference in Washington May Decide for "Via Traffic" Regulation.

WOULD FAVOR AMERICANS

Sender Could Then Direct How Message Would Be Sent and Make Use of Wireless.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—"While the big powers appear hopelessly deadlocked on the disposition of the German cables, there is every prospect that the International Communications Conference in session here will evolve in any event a cable and radio convention of vast benefit to the American people," writes Arthur Sears Henning, Washington correspondent of The Chicago Tribune, in a dispatch tonight to his paper.

"Conditions practically throttling the development of extensive wireless communication in the United States and fostering British cable monopolies at the expense of American rivals will be wiped out if America accepts the treaty being formulated as a substitute for the existing cable and radio international agreements," the dispatch continues.

"Under the terms of the proposed agreement, American telegraph and cable companies would be required:

"1—To route a message as directed by the sender, known as 'via traffic.'

"2—To make but one sending charge on the same message sent to two or more addresses at destination.

"3—To include the sending time in the message without charge.

"Unlike all European telegraph and cable companies, the American concerns refuse to do any of these things, and the Western Union and Commercial Cable Companies are leading a stubborn fight to thwart the adoption of the proposed international agreement."

"This is how the refusal to accept 'via traffic' puts a crimp in the wireless concerns:

"A Chicago business man wishes to send a message by wireless to London. The message must be carried by land wire to the American wireless station on the Atlantic Coast and from the wireless receiving station on the English coast to London by land wire. The British telegraph company will carry the message over the English land wire to London, but the American telegraph company will not receive the message if it is routed by wireless.

"The American Telegraph Company also owns a cable, and it says to the sender that if it receives the message it must go by cable. There is no way for the business man to send his message by wireless unless he addresses it to the radio company.

"Then the telegraph company will deliver it to the radio company and charge for that service only. But the radio company does not know the distant sender and will not send the message unless it is prepaid, while the telegraph company refuses to accept from the sender and turn over to the wireless concern the charge for the radio transmission.

"The result is that practically all foreign messages are sent by cable and the radio companies are getting precious little business. The Marconi company tried to buck this combination for years, finally gave up and jumped at the chance to sell out to the General Electric Company, which is seeking to swing a vast radio undertaking. The General Electric has completed an enormous plant equipped with unheard of innovations for the rapid transmission of overseas messages, but, cut off from senders by the telegraph companies, it is without business.

"The refusal to accept messages routed by the sender has also operated to restrict American competition with British cable monopolies in notable instances. The only American cable system reaching South America directly is the All-American company. But unless the American business man can file his message at the All-American office in New York it cannot be routed over that system. The Western Union will send it via London over a British cable and the Postal via the Azores over a British cable.

"American capital naturally has been wary of investing in cable lines competing with the British under such circumstances."

GOV. COX A LIFE MEMBER.

Accepts Distinction Conferred by National Democratic Club.

Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, defeated Democratic candidate for President, yesterday accepted a life membership in the National Democratic Club. In a letter to John M. Riehle, President of the club, who invited him to accept such membership, Governor Cox replied:

"I feel highly complimented to be made a life member of the National Democratic Club. It has had a useful career. When I reflect upon the distinguished names with which my own is now being associated, very frankly I am constrained to observe that I have been honored quite beyond my deserts."

LOWERS AIR MAIL RECORD.

W. L. Smith Flies From Cleveland to Mineola in 2 Hours 48 Minutes.

W. L. Smith, United States mail pilot, established a new record yesterday of two hours and forty-eight minutes between Cleveland and the United States Air Mail Field at Mineola. The record previous to this flight was three hours. Mr. Smith, whose regular route is New York and Cleveland, used a De Haviland-4 and carried eleven pouches of mail, weighing 347 pounds.

"I said yesterday morning before starting out that I believed I would break the record," said Mr. Smith. "I left Cleveland at 10:37 A. M. and arrived in Mineola at 1:25 P. M. I flew at an average altitude of 5,000 feet, and there was a strong west wind to aid me."

TO DEMAND HEARING ON NEW LIGHT RATES

Corporation Counsel Prepares Papers for Court Action Against Electric Companies.

WANTS PROOF FOR PUBLIC

Public Service Commission's Construction of the Law Also to Be Attacked.

Papers being prepared by Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien for court action to prevent the three big electric companies in the city from continuing to charge small consumers an increased rate based on the cost of coal above $3 a ton will ask the Supreme Court to direct the companies to appear before the Public Service Commission and justify, by facts and figures, this surcharge.

"I shall ask the Court," said Mr. O'Brien, "to direct the New York and Brooklyn Edison Companies and the United to appear in a public hearing before the Public Service Commission, with the city's representatives present with the right to cross-examine witnesses and submit for public inspection facts and figures to prove that the 10 or 14 per cent. increase in rates to pay for the increase in coal is fair and equitable.

"I shall also seek a judicial determination on the meaning of that section of the Public Service Commission law which provides for the advertising and publishing of proceedings relating to rates."

Mr. O'Brien said that the papers probably would not be ready for filing with the court until next week.

The New York Edison Company yesterday sent a circular to its retail customers in which appeared this paragraph:

"Under an order from the Public Service Commission for the First District the exact cost of coal is reported from month to month, and this adjustment is covered by a monthly rider which is on file at the office of the commission as well as all of the offices of this company, where it may be consulted at any time."

Mann Won't Be a Candidate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Representative Mann of Illinois, former Republican leader of the House, disposed today of reports that he would be a candidate for Speaker of the next House, issuing a statement in which he said that he was not and would not be a candidate. He added that neither would he be a candidate for the leadership, a position now held by Representative Mondell.

CLOTHING WORKERS' CRISIS DUE MONDAY

Union Promises Definite Reply Then to "Ultimatum" of Manufacturers.

STATEMENTS BY BOTH SIDES

Employers Insist Some Means Must Be Found to Lower Present Labor Costs.

The controversy between the Clothing Manufacturers' Association and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America is expected to reach a crisis Monday night, according to statements made by both sides last night. In resolutions adopted by the manufacturers on the night of Nov. 30 the union was informed it had until Monday to accept the terms of the manufacturers for continuing negotiations. The union, through President Sidney Hillman, replied that the proposal would be submitted to the clothing workers at meetings to be held Monday evening, "at which they will definitely formulate their answer to your ultimatum."

William Handler, President of the Clothing Manufacturers' Association, in a statement issued last night, said:

"Heeding the insistence of the public upon lower prices of clothing, manufacturers have studied the existing situation and have concluded that every element entering into the production of clothing must contribute its share in order to lower prices.

"Material and other items entering into the cost of a suit of clothes have come down, and it remains only for labor to work out with the manufacturers a way to lower production costs.

"With this end in view, negotiations with the union have been begun to arrive at some amicable and practical method by which labor costs may be reduced without materially lowering the earning power of the operator. The manufacturers are anxious also to keep as many of their operatives employed as possible, and believe this can be accomplished if a proper cost basis of production can be assured so that they can compete successfully with other markets."

The manufacturers made public the following resolution adopted on the night of Nov. 30:

"Resolved, That the association continue the conference with the union for the purpose of fixing conditions of labor, provided the union agrees on or before Dec. 6, 1920, that all workers shall individually be responsible for a daily standard of production, to be agreed on and calculated upon base rates prevailing in other competitive markets, and that in the event of the failure of any worker to produce such standard of production the employer shall have the right to reduce wages pro rata or to discharge the worker substantially under-producing."

President Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers in his reply said the resolution contained a paragraph, which, he had since been informed, was not intended to be embodied in the original resolution, but since it had been brought to the union's attention they would have to take cognizance of it. He said that this paragraph read:

"Resolved, That in the event the Association fails to receive an affirmative reply to the above proposal within the time fixed, then the Association shall put into effect the proposal aforesaid."

HOOVER OPENS DRIVE FOR CHILDREN'S FUND

Obligation Rests on Us to Save Future Civilization in Europe He Says in Boston.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—"I would rather have the American flag implanted in the hearts of the children of Europe than flying over any citadel of victory," said Herbert Hoover today in presenting to a gathering of business men and women here the obligation upon this country to supply the needs of 3,500,000 of youthful sufferers by the war in Eastern and Central Europe. The occasion marked the formal opening in New England of the nation-wide campaign for $23,000,000, which it is estimated will be required to keep the children alive until the next harvest.

"These are children of friend and enemy, of Jew and Gentile, of Catholic and Protestant," said Mr. Hoover. "No matter what conflict there may be as to our views on our international relationships, this mass of children is no part of our contentions.

"The war collapsed among both Allies and enemy in the face of the greatest famine in 200 years. The food supply for all that 200,000,000 people east of the old western front was largely exhausted by poor crops and destruction.

CITY COLLEGE I. R. T. STATION

Delaney Tells Dean How Subway Stop's Name May Be Compounded.

If the City College can raise sufficient funds to pay for a tablet and its insertion in the Interborough subway station at 137th Street, Broadway, the station will hereafter be known as "137th Street-City College," providing the Interborough company consents. The agitation to have the station named for the college, or vice versa, has progressed to this extent.

Transit Construction Commissioner John H. Delaney, writing to Professor Frederick Robinson, Dean of the School of Business and Civic Administration, explained the conditions under which the name of the station could be compounded and stated that he saw no reason why the end sought by the college could not be achieved.

BOND THEFT REVEALED.

1,000,000 Francs in French Securities and $50,000 in Liberty Bonds Taken.

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 3.—French Government bonds to the value of 1,000,000 francs and $50,000 in Liberty bonds were stolen from the offices of B. B. and R. Knight, Inc., in this city, on Aug. 14, it became known today, when circulars offering $7,500 for information leading to arrest and conviction of the thieves were distributed.

Colonel Webster Knight, a member of the firm, although admitting the theft, refuses to say to whom the bonds belonged. The circulars were sent out by Doremus & Co. of 44 Broad Street, New York. Colonel Knight said police and private detectives had been unable to discover any clues.

American Counterfeits in Germany.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The profits to be made at existing high rates of exchange for American money in Germany have stimulated counterfeiting, according to advices reaching the State Department today. An American ten-dollar bill has suddenly appeared in circulation in Germany, being detected as a counterfeit through the fact that the word "America," instead of being spelled with a "c," is spelled with a "k." A thorough investigation is under way by the German police.

TWO LANDLORDS ARE FINED.

One Threatened Tenant by Mail, the Other Removed a Telephone.

Two landlords were found guilty in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday of violating laws in their proceedings toward tenants.

Mark W. Brenen, 59 years old, of 162 West Seventy-eighth Street, was convicted of writing a threatening letter to Charles A. Collman, a tenant, of 34 Manhattan Avenue, because Collman had complained to the Health Department and caused Brenen to be fined $100 for not giving enough heat. Health Commissioner Copeland was the complainant in the prosecution of the landlord. Brenen will be sentenced on Monday.

Frank E. Schaeffler of 609 West 177th Street was fined $250 for removing a telephone from the apartment of Arthur Saddon, an attorney, living at 605 West 177th Street, after a dispute. The conviction was on a charge of violating Section 2040 of the Penal Law forbidding such acts by landlords. Schaeffler paid the fine under protest and gave notice of appeal.

FOUR BOY BANDITS GET $2,500 PAYROLL

Woman Cashier of New York Roofing Company Held Up—Youths Flee in Auto.

TWO RECOGNIZED BY BOY

He, However Refuses to Reveal Their Identity or His Own For Fear of Injury.

Miss Mary McCartin, cashier of the New York Roofing Company, 535 East Nineteenth Street, near Avenue B, was held up and robbed of more than $2,500, representing the company's weekly payroll, yesterday afternoon by four youthful bandits who escaped in a limousine. A boy who saw them flee from the building said he had recognized two of the bandits as youths of the Gas House district.

The boy refused to disclose his name because he feared the bandits would harm him. For the same reason he refused to disclose the identity of the bandits.

As a result of the robbery several concerns in the neighborhood decided to pay their employes by check.

The four bandits appeared in the Roofing Company offices about half an hour before the employes were to have been paid. In the office with Miss McCartin were Max Power and Alvin Anderson, two employes. Two of the highwaymen held the employes in a corner while the other two swept up all the pay envelopes in sight, ignoring a safe in which there was more money. Then one called to his companions, "let's beat it," and, still covering the woman and two men with revolvers, they backed from the room and fled downstairs. Running across the street, they got into the automobile, trace of which was lost in the traffic on Avenue B.

Miss McCartin, a middle-aged woman, followed the bandits downstairs and notified a patrolman. He questioned her about the hold-up, but found no trace of the motor car. The bandits, she said, were not masked, but wore their caps so low over their eyes that she was unable to give a clear description of them.

John W. Faison of 599 Third Street, Brooklyn, is President and F. M. Stearns of Ridgewood, N. J., is Secretary of the company. When Mr. Stearns was notified of the robbery, he said:

"They're becoming quite common. It's time the police did something."

He said it was the custom of the company to pay its employes on Friday, but expressed surprise that the amount stolen was so large.

Four alleged boy bandits, none more than thirteen years old, were arrested yesterday at Grand Central Station when about to buy tickets for Buffalo. They were implicated in at least twelve burglaries in the Bronx, all committed on Thursday night, according to detectives. They gave their names as Morris Blum, 13, of 2,031 Monterey Avenue; Mario Giannalabigna, 11, his brother Guido, 13, both of 2,007 La Fontaine Avenue, and Thomas D'Allessandro, 13, of 2,374 Third Avenue.

When arrested D'Allessandro had a flashlight and a loaded revolver, while Blum had $81. The four were turned over to the Children's Society for the night. With the exception of Mario Giannalabigno, the boys have been under parole for other offenses, the police said.

Tunis Bergen Moran, 28, of 476 Decatur Street, Brooklyn, was held in $25,000 bail by County Judge Dike after he pleaded not guilty to charges of grand larceny and unlawfully possessing a revolver. He described himself as a moving picture artist. He was charged with having robbed several rooms in the Bedford section of Brooklyn.

Six burglaries in the Flushing section are charged to three youths, Frank Zabrisky, 19, of 18 Twentieth Street; his cousin, Stanley Zabrisky, 17, of 20 Twentieth Street, and Frank Husak, 17, of the North Hempstead Turnpike, Flushing. They were arraigned before Magistrate Conway in the Flushing police court and held for the Grand Jury.

Frank Zabrisky was arrested in the Boston Hotel, the Bowery, on Thursday, and at the time was told his father had just died. The detectives took the boy to view his father's body before locking him up. The funeral services were being held for the parent while the son was being arraigned in the court.

Leon Rellan, 28, and Belmonde Costila, 27, who gave 216 Harvard Street, New Haven, Conn., as their address, were arrested on a charge of robbing guest rooms in the Grand Hotel, Broadway and Thirty-first Street. Magistrate Schwab, in the Jefferson Market Court, held them to the Grand Jury in $25,000 bail each.

Appeal for Convent

The friends and former students of St. Michael's Presentation Convent, 419 West 33rd Street, are appealed to for $52,500, with a view of extending its usefulness by establishing it as a diocesan community. The project has the sanction of Archbishop Hayes, who gives his support to the plans, which include a mother house and novitiate.

St. Michael's School was established nearly half a century ago by the late Monsignor Arthur J. Donnelly, who brought from Ireland six nuns of the Presentation order. Many eminent men and women have been graduated within its walls since its establishment.

The campaign starts on Sunday, December 5th, at 4 P. M., with a mass meeting in the Church auditorium, and ends on December 19th. Contributions should be addressed to the Rev. Mother M. Gabriel, at the convent, and will be gratefully acknowledged.

TAKE BODY FROM STRATHMORE RUINS

Ironworker, Believed to Be the Sole Victim, Found Buried Under Wreckage.

THRONGS WATCH RESCUERS

Then Take Part in Affecting Service as Priest Blesses the Body.

The body of John Chester Smith, ironworker, was discovered before 8 o'clock last night buried under twenty tons of wreckage in the ruins of the collapsed Strathmore apartment house at Broadway and Fifty-second Street.

A little more than three hours later the body of the man believed to be the only victim of the accident had been freed at the peril of hardy wreckers, and thousands of silent, saddened spectators massed along Broadway had taken part in an affecting service for the dead.

The ironworker's wife, who for two days had clung to the neighborhood where her husband last was seen alive, praying constantly that he might have escaped, had been persuaded to return to her home at 67 Macombs Dam Place, the Bronx. Smith's father, Walter A. Smith, himself an ironworker, who rushed here from Syracuse to help in the search, stuck to the job.

Found by a Steeplejack.

Fred Walker, a steeplejack, on whom the Building Department calls frequently for help in particularly dangerous emergencies, was the first to work his way through the gap in the wall and begin the hazardous search amid tangled wreckage.

Just before 8 o'clock he came upon a man's left hand. He called the father of Smith and James J. Manamy, a brother-in-law. They recognized a signet ring of mennal metal, a compound of nickel, which Smith had fashioned for himself and wore on the little finger.

After that the father was persuaded to leave. A dozen wreckers joined Walker, contemptuous of the danger of bringing tons of brick and iron and mortar down upon themselves. With jacks and crowbars they worked steadily to lift great girders that they might extricate the body. Soon they came upon the right hand, but it was the work of more than an hour to clear a way to the trunk.

Just as that was accomplished, Father Patrick F. O'Connor, a Fire Department chaplain, crawled through the débris to the body and blessed it, while the wreckers, bareheaded, stood about with tears streaming down their cheeks.

Long before the chaplain arrived word that the body had been found and that the dangerous work of recovering it was under way had spread to the watchers, and so many thousands had massed along the west side of Broadway that it was necessary to call out police reserves to hold them in check.

Body Blessed by Priest.

Word was passed that the chaplain was approaching and, a moment later, at the wave of a hand from one of the wreckers, the watchers bared their heads and stood silent until word came to them that the blessing was over.

It was necessary to lift the wreckage of the first floor ceiling before the body could be extricated.

With that accomplished the wreckers crawled under the débris, put a rope around the body, and slowly drew it forth.

Smith's body was badly crushed from the waist down. The upper part of the torso was little marred and the face almost untouched. Men who had worked with him professed themselves not quite convinced that no spark of life could be left. To satisfy them, the police summoned an ambulance from Bellevue Hospital. The surgeon, Dr. Macmanus, applied his stethoscope to Smith's heart and told the watchers their hopes were groundless.

The body was freed just after 11 o'clock. As soon as it was laid out on the floor of the Bowman store Father O'Connor said a prayer for the dead, the wreckers standing about in a semicircle. Once more word was flashed to the crowd across the street that a sad rite was to be performed, and once more the thousands of watchers took their silent share in the grief over the one victim of the accident.

Official Inquiry Begins To-day.

Assistant District Attorney John R. Hennis of the Homicide Bureau was notified as soon as it was established definitely that a man had been killed in the collapse. The official investigating machinery of the city had been held in abeyance, as it had not been established that any one had been killed. Injuries in such an accident are matters for redress in the civil courts, whereas if a person is killed it must be determined whether there was criminal negligence, in which case the person or persons responsible are guilty of manslaughter.

Mr. Hennis will begin such an investigation today. He has subpoenaed several men who were working on the building when it collapsed. He said he would also examine Walter J. Salmon, President of the Strathmore Leasing Company, for which the building was being remodelled.

WON'T FOLLOW McCLURE'S.

Publishers of Other Magazines Say They Will Not Reduce Prices.

Other magazine publishers in this city do not intend, for the present at least, to follow the lead of McClure's, which announces in the December issue that the price of the periodical had been reduced from 25 cents to 15 cents, and that the reduction would occasion "no change in size, quality or quantity of reading."

The Century Magazine not only contemplates no reduction in its price of 35 cents, but says that any revision would be upward, as has been the case with St. Nicholas Magazine, a Century publication, the price of which recently was increased from 25 to 35 cents. The price of Scribner's Magazine, 35 cents, it was explained, is in keeping with the prices charged by other magazines in the same class.

The Munsey publications do not intend to lower their prices, because, it was asserted, the best sellers are already being offered for only 10 cents. There will be no change in the price of Collier's Weekly, for which the annual rate is $2 and the price per copy 5 cents. No reductions, it is stated, are contemplated by the Hearst publications, including Hearts's, Cosmopolitan, Harper's Bazaar, Good Housekeeping, Motor and Motor Boating.

Magazine Publisher Indicted.

The Federal Grand Jury indicted William S. Brewer yesterday on a charge of using the mails to defraud. It is alleged that Brewer was connected with the publication of a magazine called A. E. F., or Fun in France, and that it was sold in large numbers on the pretense that proceeds were for ex-service men.

Anti-Alien Law Majority 446,397.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 3.—Official figures announced today show that the Anti-Alien Land Leasing law was adopted in the November election by a majority of 446,397. The vote was: Yes, 668,483; no, 222,086. Seven other amendments or initiative measures were adopted, including the Alien Poll Tax law, which had a majority of 520,712.

DR. RUMELY ON THE STAND.

Tells How He Got Sielcken to Put Up $1,500,000 for the Mail.

Dr. Edward A. Rumely, testifying yesterday in the Federal Court at his trial on an indictment charging him with concealing from the Government in 1917 the alleged German ownership of The Evening Mail, told of his intimacy with anti-militarists in Germany before the war and the manner in which he got the late Herman Sielcken, the "coffee king," to advance approximately $1,500,000 for the purchase and maintenance of the newspaper in 1915.

Dr. Rumely's testimony was substantiated in part by a deposition of Professor von Schultze-Gaervernitz, a leading German Liberal before the war, taken in Berne, Switzerland, in 1918.

Dr. Rumely testified he was born in Indiana and that his grandfather, Meinrad Rumely, was the inventor of a thrashing machine, with a plant at La Porte. He also met Rudolph Diesel, inventor of the internal-combustion engine, and, as a result of that meeting, in later years used the Diesel engines in the Rumely tractors and increased the capital of the business left by his grandfather in La Porte from $800,000 to $38,000,000.

The witness said he first met S. S. McClure, later associated with him in the purchase of The Evening Mail, in 1909, and in 1912, when Dr. Rumely's income was between $200,000 and $300,000 a year, he told Mr. McClure he wanted to enter the publishing business.

At about the same time, he said, he met the late Theodore Roosevelt, who told him he was much interested in the German social insurance plan fostered by Geitterman. Colonel Roosevelt, he said, was an advocate of the abolition of night employment for women and children, conservation of resources and other industrial improvements included in the Geitterman plan.

He first met Dr. Bernard Dernburg, who was attached to the German Embassy, in 1915, and later got a contract from Dr. Albert for 250 tractors for Germany at a cost of about $1,000,000.

SAYS COAL MEN TRY TO BLOCK PUBLICITY

District Attorney Lewis Believes Dealers Are Spending Big Sum to Hide Facts.

SENATE INQUIRY ON TODAY

Calder Committee Asks Kings Official to Act as Counsel in Anthracite Investigation.

Thousands of dollars are being spent each week by those in the coal industry to prevent the light of publicity being thrown on their business methods, District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Kings County said yesterday. The District Attorney has been hearing witnesses in an effort to find out the cause of the present high cost of domestic anthracite and to determine whether there is a combination that is keeping prices up. He has found reticence and one of his conclusions, he said yesterday, was that a fund was being maintained to prevent publicity.

Mr. Lewis will have an opportunity to use to advantage the facts he already possesses, for he has been asked to act as counsel for the United States Senate Committee of Reconstruction and Production which will begin today an investigation of anthracite prices. He has consented to act as counsel in New York City, but feels that he cannot spare time from his official duties to go to Washington or to appear in other cities.

Senator William M. Calder returned from Washington last evening and will preside at the opening of the anthracite investigation in the Engineering Society's Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, today.

Conditions in New England States are reflected in an appeal received by members of the Senate Committee which has been mailed by Mayor William L. Gleason and the city government of Brockton, Mass., to every member of Congress. In that city the Mayor says the people are unable to buy coal except at exorbitant prices. Hard coal is retailing at from $18 to $25.50 a ton, soft coal has sold as high as $18 at retail, and now sells for about $16. Before the war $13 was the high retail price of anthracite and $8 for bituminous.

Brockton asks legislation to empower the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix prices and to regulate the method of production, sale, shipment, distribution and storage among dealers and consumers.

BRILL BROTHERS

We've Turned the Clock Back Six Years and it's costing us $250,000 to do it

Someone had to take the plunge. Someone had to grit his teeth and say, "I'll take my loss and get it over with." Weeks ago we began cutting prices. Others followed suit. But this is a complete and final crash which will, we believe, establish an entirely new basis of prices and values, a "new normal," or if you prefer, the "old normal" of six years ago. The reductions spell a loss of $250,000 to us; only reserves built up during 33 years enable us to do it. Buy at this sale—not merely because prices have finally touched bottom, but because you'll start the wheels turning in the mills; brace up business—and indirectly help yourself.

SCHOOL BID INQUIRY SHOWS NO COLLUSION

Witness Admits Adding $40,000 When He Found His Firm Was the Only Bidder.

TELLS OF SEEING BRINDELL

Contractor Says Leaders Held Up Job and Demanded $318 Because His Son Ran Pump.

The Board of Estimate yesterday completed its examination of the general contractors to whom awards of public school building contracts have been made in the last eighteen months without obtaining any evidence of collusive bidding, suspicion of which, as a result of the disclosures before the Lockwood committee, led the city officials to undertake a separate investigation. The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday morning, when, according to the indications from the line of questioning of Assistant Corporation Counsel William B. Carswell, in charge of the inquiry, the sub-contractors will be examined. Neither Controller Charles L. Craig or Henry H. Curran, Borough President of Manhattan, who have expressed disapproval of the board's investigation, attended yesterday's hearing.

The only approach to testimony indicating that the general contractors ever sought to reach an agreement in advance of submitting bids came when William H. Haywood, former Superintendent for T. A. Clarke & Co., said he received a telephone message from a man who gave his name as "Connors" a few days before bids were opened for the construction of Public School 61, in the Bronx. Mr. Haywood, now a member of the Putnam Construction Company, said this man told him he was not going to bid on School 61, because of dissatisfaction with the form of contract, and asked what Clarke & Co. was going to do.

Mr. Haywood said he replied that Mr. Clarke was in the South, and said that, as he had received instructions to bid on every school contract offered, he intended to submit a bid. Mr. Haywood said he knew that there was a school contractor named Connors, although he had never met him, and assumed that the message came from him. Dennis E. Connors, the only contractor of that name examined, denied that he had sent this telephone message or authorized any one to send it in his name.

The bid of Clarke & Co. was the only one received at the first letting and was rejected. Mr. Clarke had previously testified that the decrease in the amount of his second bid was explained by the fact that his superintendent had known that it was to be the only bid and would be rejected and had accordingly raised the figures so that his competitors would not know his true estimates.

Mr. Haywood said that he had raised the estimates $30,000 or $40,000, or rather had prepared two bids, one much higher than the other. He said he had submitted the higher bid shortly before noon on the day the bids were received, when he learned that Clarke & Co. was the only bidder.

The name of Robert P. Brindell, President of the Building Trades Council, was brought into the hearing by the testimony of Mr. Connors who said he had had trouble with labor unions and had one talk with Brindell. Mr. Connors said he was asked to go to the headquarters of the Building Trades Council at 12 St. Mark's Place, but found out later there was a meeting of the "Master Builders" in Thirty-third Street, and met Brindell there.

Mr. Connors explained that his difficulty with the unions at this time was caused by his son running a small gasoline pump and that a labor delegate named McConville had talked to him about it and that the union had made a claim for $318, or $9 a day, for every day the boy worked.

"When the meeting was all through, Brindell came out," Mr. Connors said, "and I stepped over to him and said: 'Your organization and yourself have my jobs tied up.' And he turned to me and said: 'Why don't you pay your bills?'

"I said, 'I don't owe you anything.'

"'Well,' said he, 'you owe McConville.'

Mr. Connors admitted that he had made payments to labor leaders on one occasion, three or four years ago, when he took over the work on the Evander Childs High School in the Bronx, after another contractor had defaulted. He explained that it was a union custom to demand that the new contractor pay the bills left by the old contractor.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The Philharmonic Society.

There was no symphony so entitled on the program of the Philharmonic Society's concert yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall. The place of one was taken by Rimsky-Korsakoff's symphonic suite, "Scheherazade," in four movements. At the beginning came the overture, nocturne and scherzo from Mendelssohn's music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Mme. Olga Samaroff was the soloist, and played Schumann's concerto for piano.

There was not much imagination or romantic impulse in the performance of the orchestral pieces, though they stand greatly in need of both, in diverse manifestations; neither in Mendelssohn's nor in Rimsky-Korsakoff's. The "Scheherazade" suite still seems a work of far-sweeping imagery and vivid picturesqueness, brilliant in its orchestral coloring and with effects which, with all the ingenuity and resource that have been put to devising orchestral effects since this suite, still seem new and strangely haunting. It was rather a dull representation of them that Mr. Stransky gave.

Mme. Samaroff played Schumann's concerto with a strong feeling for its poetical beauties and in a rather introspective mood, especially in the first movement. Here she has some views of her own on deliberation of tempo at certain points. The deliberation was unusual; but, as Mme. Samaroff adjusted it in the scheme of her conception of the movement, it seemed to be not without motive and justification. All through the concerto, and naturally more conspicuously in the last movement, Mme. Samaroff disclosed brilliancy and accuracy of technique, and a particular power and incisiveness of the left hand. But it could not be said that she always kept in mind beauty and color and subtle quality of tone. Her playing gave great pleasure and was much applauded.

GEO. M. COHAN APPEALS AGAINST EQUITY SHOP

Declares It Is 'Severest Form of Closed Shop and Spells Ruin to Acting Profession.'

George M. Cohan, in a full-page advertisement published yesterday in a theatrical weekly, issued an appeal "to all members of the acting profession" to exert their influence against the purposed Equity shop, on which the Actors' Equity Association is about to circularize its members.

The Cohan announcement was in part as follows:

"Don't let them tell you that Equity shop is not a closed shop. Don't let them trick you into something that deep down in your hearts you know you do not want. To crush out all opposition, to force every member of the acting profession into one organization, to be compelled to place your affairs in the hands of a few self-chosen leaders and to be ruled by and dictated to and told just how and when and where you are to act. And to be placed in a position that unless you work and live according to certain regulations you will find yourself without any place to turn, without any alternative but to pay any penalty they care to place upon your head—that is the severest form of closed shop. It spells ruin to the acting profession."

James Thornton, Actor, Weds Again

James Thornton, vaudeville actor, and Miss Josephine Boyle, restaurateur, were married yesterday at the marriage license bureau in the Municipal Building by Acting City Clerk Michael J. Cruise immediately after obtaining their license. This is Mr. Thornton's second marriage, his first wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Thornton, known on the stage as Bonnie, having died last March. He was born in Dublin, Ireland, and is 59 years old.

The bride, who gave her age as 46 years, said this was her third marriage. On Feb. 2, 1916, she obtained a divorce from William H. Boyle. She was born in Alsace-Lorraine.

Katherine Bacon, Pianist, Plays.

Katherine Bacon, pianist, gave the second of three introductory recitals here at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, presenting new works of interest by the English composer, John Ireland, entitled "Chelsea Reach" and "The Island Spell," as well as Friskin's "Caprice" in A and Boyle's "Serenade." She was heard in a charming and unhackneyed "Fantasie" in C minor, No. 3, by Mozart, and other music of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin and Liszt.

12-HOUR STEEL DAY MUST GO, HE SAYS

Economist Tells Engineers the Three-Shift System Would Add Only 3 Per Cent. to Cost.

WORLDWIDE MOVEMENT ON

Resolution Asking International Labor Conference to Consider Question Is Presented.

Speaking at a forum in the Engineering Societies Building last night, Horace B. Drury, formerly of the Department of Economics, Ohio State University, and recently with the Industrial Relations Division of the United States Shipping Board, said the twelve-hour day in the steel industry was doomed. No economic necessity existed for the twelve-hour day, he said. He advocated the substitution of the three-shift system. The forum was conducted under the auspices of the management and metropolitan sections of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the New York section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Taylor Society.

Dr. Drury told of a three-month survey of twenty steel plants in which he found that changing to an eight-hour day could not add more than 3 per cent. to the cost of the finished product. The change also was feasible at this time because there was a surplus of labor.

European plants, Mr. Drury said, had already abandoned the long work day, but in the American steel industry, 150,000 not only toiled twelve hours daily, but, in some departments, they worked seven days a week.

The expense of changing from the twelve to the eight hour system would be slight, Mr. Drury thought, adding that financial and operating difficulties were as nothing compared with the human and civic values involved. The twelve-hour day, he contended, did not leave enough time for home life, education in English or activity in community affairs.

The speaker also had noted a change in the attitude of the immigrant, who, as a result of the war, no longer was willing to work long hours merely to earn money to send back to Europe.

Present at the meeting were engineers, manufacturers and industrial leaders from many cities as well as Government and State officials and representatives of colleges and various labor and economic organizations. Among the universities represented were Columbia, New York University, University of Pennsylvania, Amos Tuck School of Dartmouth, Lehigh and Brown.

Steps were taken to make the eight-hour day a world question. A resolution was offered requesting the governing body of the International Labor Office at Geneva to place the subject on the agenda of the International Labor Conference in 1922.

Caruso Again Sings Samson.

Signor Caruso was again the strong man in "Samson et Dalila," heard for the second time this season at the Metropolitan last night. Mme. Matzenauer shared with him the superb love songs of M. Saint-Saëns's musical score, in which, by the way, both she and the tenor do some of their finest singing. Messrs. De Luca, Rothier, Ananian and others were in the cast; Miss Ogden led the female Philistines on tiptoes of temptation and M. Wolff conducted. The audience was one of the largest in three weeks of houses—virtually sold out.

Philip Gordon in Piano Recital.

Philip Gordon, a young pianist of this city who has won his way as a serious musician, gave a "four composer" recital last evening in Aeolian Hall, where his performance of Beethoven's sonata "Appassionata" challenged attention by technical competence and a certain manly quality of sympathy. He prefaced the work with Tausig's piano version of Bach's organ toccata and fugue in D minor, while the Paganini-Brahms variations, two full "books," followed a group from Chopin.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Margaret Lawrence will appear with Arthur Byron in "Transplanting Jean," coming to the Cort Theatre on Jan. 3. Miss Lawrence's role was acted on the road by Martha Hedman. In the Spring Miss Lawrence will be individually starred.

John Meehan, general stage director for George M. Cohan, played Elwood Bostwick's role in "The Meanest Man in the World" last night at the Hudson Theatre. Mr. Bostwick was taken ill during the afternoon.

Evelyn Cavanaugh, the dancer, will be in the cast of "Oh, Pat!"

Georgeanna Claflin will make her New York debut at the Princess Theatre next Friday afternoon with a dramatic and musical program.

CAN'T HAVE LOANS AND CONSTANTINE

visers, due undoubtedly to the absence of any word of light leading from Athens. Two urgent telegrams asking the Government for its views and for information about the arrangements in the event of Constantine's return remain unanswered. Members of his entourage profess to take the allied note lightheartedly. They lay stress on its expression of unwillingness to interfere in the internal affairs of Greece, and say they do not believe, consequently, that any action would be taken in the event of the warning against the ex-King's restoration being ignored. They argue that it is in the interest of the Allies themselves that Constantine should return, because "he is the only man who can unite the Greek people."

ATHENS, Dec. 2 (Associated Press).—Premier Rhallis in the course of an interview today said that the Turks had asked to send a representative to Athens for the purpose of entering into negotiations, but the request had been refused, as the Greeks considered they could not make an arrangement apart from the Allies or before the Treaty of Sèvres had been ratified.

He said it was not the intention of Greece to abandon Smyrna or to cease military operations, but that an army of 75,000 would be maintained. Pro-German officers, he explained, would not be returned to positions of importance.

General Paraskevopoulos, who was Commander in Chief of Greek forces on the Smyrna front before the defeat of the Venizelos Government, has arrived in Athens dressed in civilian clothes. A majority of army and navy officers who were deprived of their commands have also arrived in civilian clothes.

ATHENS IN PANIC OVER ALLIED NOTE

Cabinet Council, Hastily Summoned, Debates Possibility of Countermanding Plebiscite.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Dec. 3.—The Allied note was presented today to the Greek Government by the representatives of the three Allied powers. It caused consternation because something less exacting had been expected. A Cabinet council was convened immediately to discuss the note and decide whether Sunday's plebiscite should be held. The view prevailing is that it is now too late to draw back and that the Greek Government is morally bound to consult the nation to obtain its expressed opinion on the dynastic question.

MIXED EMOTIONS IN PARIS.

Some See French Policy Triumphing in Greece, Others Forecast Defeat.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—The allied warning to Greece sent yesterday was received with intense satisfaction by the Paris morning papers, which took their tone from the dispatches of their special correspondents in London. Their general attitude may be summed up in the statement of Stephane Lauzanne in the Matin.

"We have the right," says M. Lauzanne, "to rejoice without reserve, for this simple note represents the complete victory of our point of view."

But the Paris Midi has struck a different note. Its editorial points out that Constantine is immensely popular in Greece as the national hero-king, and that nothing is less certain than that the Greek people will be sufficiently influenced by the allied note to vote against him.

Tonight a Temps editorial, in an analysis of the whole subject, reaches the conclusion that the allied declaration, although gratifying for more reasons than one, does not really settle the question at all. As matters now stand, the Greeks will ignore the allied protest, says the Temps, and Constantine will ascend the throne, or the crown will be offered to his eldest son. In the former case the Allies, and the French in particular, will have suffered what they regard as an insult, and "the Entente Governments will have to begin again with him the policy of so-called guarantees which they practiced with such disastrous results in 1916."

It is worth noting that the Temps has already dropped the word "sanctions" or penalties, which the morning papers confidently state will be imposed by the Allies if Constantine is chosen king. It is true that the Temps also publishes an interview it obtained by a London correspondent with M. Leygues, in which the Premier himself speaks of sanctions, and even goes so far as to suggest that the policy will not be difficult to carry out in accord with England.

The Temps editorial writer, however, who is closely in touch with professional diplomatic opinion here, evidently takes a different view from that of the head of the Government, who has been more concerned with home politics than foreign affairs. Should Crown Prince George become King George, the Allies, says the Temps, will apparently be satisfied—that is to say, presumably the Treaty of Sèvres, which the French wish to tear up, will be maintained.

Thus, concludes the Temps, whether Constantine or his son is elected the central aim of French policy—the revision of the Turkish treaty—is neither attained nor assured. This is equivalent to the admission that the French are far from getting what they wanted.

Comment in the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies this evening took a very similar turn. The opinion was expressed that the allied declaration was by no means so satisfactory as it appeared at first sight. A member of the Foreign Affairs Committee said that he did not see that the allied declaration would do much good.

"After all," he said, "the only way to judge a thing of this kind is by its probable results. Putting aside for the moment the gratifying unity of the Allies and the consideration—which is more formal than real—for the French point of view shown by the allied note, let us consider just what these results will be. Either Constantine becomes king, in which case the whole French nation will be outraged in its tender memory of our sailors massacred by his order, or the throne will be given to his eldest son. The allied declaration says that in the former event, which I am inclined to believe more likely to happen, they will regard the choice of the Greek people with disfavor.

"The note adds vaguely that this would create a new situation in which the Allies reserve entire liberty of action. What does that mean? In plain language, just nothing, from the French point of view, because we know quite well that business people like our British friends are not going to withdraw credits and ruin a whole nation simply from spite at the choice of some one we don't like.

"But now look at it from the British side. What the British clearly want is to maintain the Treaty of Sèvres, just as we want to revise it. They proposed to execute the treaty by the aid of Venizelos. They now hope to be able to bring sufficient pressure on Constantine to insure his carrying out of Venizelos's policy in this respect. That, I believe, is why they were willing to associate themselves in this declaration of warning to Constantine—which is what the allied note really comes to.

"For there is not only a difference of policy between France and England; there is a difference of opinion. We believe that the Greeks will insure the execution of the Turkish Treaty whether with Constantine at their head or not. The English appear to think that his personal influence with the army and his own desire to win prestige both at home and abroad by successfully doing the job Venizelos began will enable the treaty still to be executed.

"Time will show who is right. But at present it looks to me as if only the election of the Crown Prince will lead to the adoption of the French policy by the Allies. Lacking his father's popularity, he will certainly be unable to persuade the Greeks to continue their effort to execute the Turkish Treaty. In that case its revision and a settlement with Mustapha Kemel, as France desires, are bound to follow, for neither France nor England will spend a sou or send a single soldier to retain for the Greeks the new empire hacked out from Turkey as a gift to Venizelos."

A Protest From Saginaw Greeks.

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAGINAW, Mich., Dec. 3.—Having in mind the sinister attitude of former King Constantine toward the Greek people and our allies, and in order to prevent the disastrous consequences of his contemplated return concerning both humanity and the Greek people, we vigorously protest against any attempt to restore the deposed autocratic monarch, opposed by the great majority of Hellenish the world over.

Turks Fire on British Destroyer.

CONSTANTIONPLE, Dec. 3.—The British torpedo boat destroyer Tobago recently was damaged by gunfire from the Turkish batteries at Trebizond, which opened fire without warning when the destroyer was entering port, presumably for the purpose of obtaining supplies.

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

From Geneva comes sensational news. The League of Nations has discovered that words mean what they say. This will be terribly upsetting to some of the most copious orators and profound jurists in America. They have spilled oceans of words in speeches and opinions in order to prove that a plain statement must have some other than its natural meaning. But now comes the commission of the League to declare all these ingenuities to be a "misconception" of simple language, and to say: "It cannot too emphatically be stated "that Article X. does not guarantee "the territorial integrity of any member of the League. All it does is to "condemn external aggression on the "territorial integrity and political "independence of any member."

This, of course, had been said a thousand times before. Mr. Balfour had said it in the House of Commons. From French authorities the same view had come. Times without number it had been asserted by sane voices in America. But the "best minds" in our Senate and in the Republican Party would not have it so. They took Article X. and put it under scalpel and microscope. They applied instruments of torture to it. They twisted it and tore it apart and then out of the bleeding fragments they constructed a horrible bogy. Above it they pasted terrifying labels: "America Bound Helplessly"; "Our Boys to Die in Europe"; "No Hope for Ireland."

All the while the clear words of the article stood there to confute these monstrous campaign perversions. But the election madness was on the country, and reason—even grammar—pleaded in vain for a hearing. Now that Americans have cooled off, they can read the calm decision of the League, and begin to wonder why all the sound and fury of our Senators and great lawyers were necessary, when it was all the time a mere question whether Article X. meant exactly what it said, and did not mean anything it did not say.

It must be admitted that there is nothing like party zeal and international enmity to force words out of their natural meaning. Count de Lesseps used to tell of a Frenchman who came to him, when he was financing the Suez Canal, to apply for some of the "railway shares in the Island of Sweden." "But it is not a railway, not an island, not in Sweden." "Never mind; it is to spite the English, so it is all the same." Something like that happened in the case of Article X. No matter if it was wrested out of all semblance to itself; so long as that was to spite Mr. Wilson, dish the Democrats and fool the Irish it was all the same. A direct question to the League has, indeed, brought the correct interpretation, but it comes too late, Republican politicians will observe with a chuckle, to affect the voting for President. Their falsified Article X. was a good enough Morgan until after the election.

FRANCE AND THE VATICAN.

In voting to resume diplomatic relations with the Vatican, the French Chamber of Deputies was mainly moved by two considerations, each important. The loyalty, the gallantry, the unselfish patriotism of the French Catholics, the spirit that inspired the French clerics, were beyond praise. It was the part of sound statesmanship, apart from any sentimental reasons, to try to put away the old religious quarrels, to continue something of the "Sacred Union." The past is past. The republic retains the old laws against the Congregations. The separation of Church and State remains a fact. Why can't that separation be accompanied with something of the tolerance and the good feeling that exist in the United States?

Without recalling the old, unhappy far-off times of Mr. Combes, it must be said that religious tolerance has not been the mark of the rigid anti-Clericalists. Thus some of the Socialist papers are already beginning the old cry about the "slavery" of the republic to the clergy; and, on the other hand, that incorrigible Royalist, Leon Daudet, seems to be trying to misrepresent the vote as a triumph for his industrious but faded faction. Moderate and majority opinion, however, understands properly and sustains the decision of the Chamber. And the other consideration which the Chamber had in mind was in itself sufficient. Dwelt on by many orators in debate, it is most pregnantly stated by the editor of the Figaro: "Rome is "one of a crossroads of world-"politics; there ought to be a French "observer there."

Rome is really a world capital. Representation at the Vatican is not a matter of religion alone. Great Britain is there. Switzerland is there. France must still regret that in a great crisis she was absent and Germany very much present. Bulgaria, Greece, Rumania are negotiating concordats. France can't afford not to be represented there. As the Abbé Lemire told the Deputies: "You will not "have to sacrifice any of your ideas "At the moment when we get Rome "to accept the Law of Separation "how can you refuse, if you are "humanitarians, if you are the servants of all and not the defenders "of some, to desire peace and tranquillity?"

REFORM IN THE HOUSE RESTAURANT.

Representative Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts is not a bon vivant; food to him is the fuel that keeps his intellectual machinery going. He has never been known to linger over the joys of the table or to praise the inspiration of a chef. Few men wielding the gavel have looked the part of Speaker of the House so well. He has the appearance of a keeper of the precedents and is painstakingly fair. It is true that he lacks the humorous severity that became Joseph G. Cannon in the chair, and Tom Reed's autocratic air is foreign to him. Mr. Gillett, gavel in hand, is not so terrible as either of those eminent Speakers was, but he is always pale with determination in a crisis.

Great is the esteem for him, although the West covets his authority for one of its own. But it will be generally agreed in the House that a gentleman as self-controlled and ascetic should not be burdened with any responsibility for the management of the House restaurant. Menus and prices do not interest him, yet it is one of his duties, a prerogative, so to speak, to select the concessionaire of the restaurant. As it is a most difficult thing to satisfy the American public, men of forty-eight States, their appetites and purses, the restaurant is seldom approved. Officially the Speaker is supposed to stand the brunt of complaints, and he is sometimes made the target of Congressional wit. Therefore it is not surprising that Mr. Gillett, one of the most conscientious of men, would like to see some one else "control" the House restaurant.

It is said that the Speaker desires to transfer his authority to the first woman Representative from Oklahoma, Miss Agnes Robertson, if the lady is willing. She would qualify, as no one else in the House could, as the proprietor of the most popular restaurant in Muskogee. To her culinary no less than to her dialectical skill she owes her translation to the Capitol at Washington. It would certainly be a reform to have some one who knows good fare responsible for the food and attendance in the House restaurant. The concessionaire selected by her to manage it on a commission basis might well be a woman, but at any rate her choice would have to please or go. Her authority would be paramount—the Speaker has never had much influence in the restaurant after making his appointment. Fame awaits Representative Agnes Robertson if she will reform the House cuisine. The members would be unanimous for her return to Washington, term after term. Her dialectical skill she could exercise under the eye of Speaker Gillett. She would always be recognized. She might be excused from committee work. Her popularity would know no bounds. How can Miss Robertson resist Mr. Gillett's invitation?

THE OLD NOSTRUM.

The Governors' Conference formally resolves: "If necessary, the Congress "should at once amend the Federal "Reserve law so as temporarily to "supply additional currency, and afford more time in which to pay to "debtors in distress." The Governors mean well, and their remedy is the one always prescribed after a financial debauch. The headache being caused by too much currency and credit, the remedy is a hair of the dog—that is to say, more currency and credit.

It is unnecessary to tell anybody that less business is being done, and on a lower level of prices. Less currency and less credit, therefore, are necessary, but there is more of both. At the end of November Federal Reserve notes outstanding amounted to $3,325,629,000, against $2,852,277,000 last year. The Governors say that "the Federal Reserve Board should "be urged and authorized to advise "all banks to adopt a liberal policy of "renewals." But if credits are renewed generally, how are the banks to pay deposits on demand? It is true that these are times for the showing of all the consideration for fellow-men that is consistent with the meeting of obligations. But there is a duty to pay as well as a duty to lend, and this is a time to emphasize one as well as the other. The debtor who does not pay when he can is an accomplice with the man who borrows when he does not need to in making hard times harder.

The Governors are stronger and sounder on principles than on details. They truly say, "Neither God nor "Government ought to be asked to "help those who do not first make "every effort possible to help themselves. * * * The real wealth of the "country is unimpaired. * * * It "would be a suicidal policy to destroy "this wealth by a peremptory call of "loans." Certainly the banks are not doing anything like that. They began counseling their customers in 1918, and today the banks are more considerate than their customers, and in fact have been more indulgent to the customers than the interests of the customers require. There are plenty of farmers and planters who would have been "money in pocket" if the banks had put pressure on them months ago, when prices were higher. Now the customers are repaying that costly indulgence by blaming the banks for the fall of prices, and are embarrassing the banks by asking them for renewals. The bankers are not likely to profit by the advice of the Governors because the Governors think more of the customers than of the banks. They are in the same boat, with the difference that the banks' liabilities fall due each minute of business hours. Give a thought to the banks as well as to the customers.

THE ALLIES AND GREECE.

The British-French-Italian note to Greece on the question of Constantine's return uses some rather strong language. The three Powers have been "painfully surprised." They have no wish to interfere in the internal affairs of Greece, but they will hold that the recall of Constantine would amount to "ratification by Greece of his hostile acts." Since Constantine caused the Allies a good deal of trouble and expense, this might cover the setting up of claims for damages. If the Greeks call him back, the step will constitute "a new and unfavorable situation," in dealing with which the Governments reserve to themselves "complete liberty."

The force of this language will make an impression on the Greeks. Whether that impression will be favorable or unfavorable is hard to say. It will be easy for Constantine's partisans to set up the cry of foreign interference in domestic affairs; on the other hand, sober men may stop and reflect on the "new and unfavorable situation" which the return of Constantine would undoubtedly create. That situation is a fact, whether the Powers take the trouble to state it or not. Constantine has a bad record in international dealings. He did great harm to the interests of the Powers now dominant in Europe, Greece has depended in her recent foreign policy on the support of those Powers. It does not need a diplomatic note to make sensible men realize that the situation is unfavorable enough, and the effect of so strong a note on men who are not sensible is rather dubious.

Allied unity in dealing with Greece, if not perfect, at any rate goes further than this. The Powers have now warned Greece that financial supplies will be cut off if Constantine is restored. This will probably mean the early collapse of the Greek campaign in Asia Minor, which was financed chiefly by England. So far the French have prevailed; it has been the French policy ever since the elections to let the Greeks pay for their King if they want him. The Treaty of Sèvres was drawn to benefit Greece, but a Greece whose leader could be trusted. Greece has repudiated that leader and the Allies take measures to protect themselves. England and Italy are willing to follow France in the first move, but if the threat fails, if the Greeks recall Constantine, what will the Allies do? Cut off the supply of money, yes; that will upset the Near Eastern settlement. What will be erected in its place?

England, which had the heaviest stake in the campaign against the Turkish Nationalists, apparently still wants to hold on. Constantine has professed his willingness to carry out Venizelos's foreign policy, and Constantine is a good General. The British may have hoped that he would take command of the army and do more damage to Mustapha Kemal. But in so far as the Greek election can be said to mean any one thing, it seems to mean that the Greeks are tired of fighting for their Anatolian irredenta. Can Constantine carry on the war, even if he would? Constantine was only an incident in the election, and he would lose some prestige by adopting the ideas of Venizelos.

The French policy is more practical and realistic, though in the long run it promises no improvement in the Near East. Revise the Treaty of Sèvres, which still lacks the necessary ratifications; restore a part of the Turkish Empire; save some of Armenia at the expense of the Anatolian Greeks. If the Greeks do not want Smyrna and its hinterland, nobody will force it on them.

These two views of what ought to be done are apparently no nearer harmony than ever, and the Italians have ideas that would not altogether fit either British or French ideas. If Constantine cares to gamble with the future of his country, he may go back and see what the Allies will do about it; though perhaps his former experience may have made him a little slower in risking his prospects on an apparently sure thing.

JUDGE MALONE.

One of the best criminal Judges that New York has ever had will be buried today. The death of Judge James T. Malone is a great loss to the bench and to the community. For thirteen years he dispensed justice in the Court of General Sessions impartially and fearlessly. Tammany soon found that he was absolutely inaccessible to political or personal influences. He filled the politicians with amazement and earned a public respect and confidence that grew steadily till his untimely end. He expedited business. He rebuked and spurred up the District Attorney. He resented every official or political effort to interfere with the Grand Jury or the Court.

To criminals convicted on clear evidence he was always severe. He had the reputation among the lawbreakers of being a "hard" Judge. He did what was in his power to show them that they would be adequately punished. Yet he spent a great deal of time in investigating the past lives of prisoners. He was judiciously merciful as well as "hard." Whenever he found discriminations or injustices in the treatment of poor defendants he protested sturdily. A man of fine education, a gentleman, with a clear intellect, with no other ambition than to do justice, he was the model of a criminal Judge. His associates in the General Sessions appreciated most thoroughly and in detail his valuable qualities and service; but even in this great, careless, easy-going town he had won a high reputation. His reelection in 1921 would have been as sure as well deserved. Dis aliter visum.

THE BUILDING RINGS.

The magnitude of the building scandal should not obscure the fact that it is by no means abnormal. The reign of Sam Parks differed from the reign of Brindell only in being scaled to an era of smaller building operations and a lower cost of graft. Precisely similar hold-up games have flourished during many decades and in many cities, each adapted to the environment of which it was the product, but all depending for their success upon the same basic elements of corrupt and predatory labor leaders in combination with building firms equally corrupt and predatory. If the phenomenon occurs again at a similar interval, it will differ from that of today only in being vaster in scale and more perfect in the method of co-operation between multiplying rings of employers and of workmen.

Organized labor has its responsibility. The American Federation has a law against duplicate unions, and it had been thoroughly informed of the irregularity of Brindell's procedure, as of the bitter wrong he was visiting upon loyal unions duly federated and of long standing. Expert housewreckers who had practiced the trade all their lives were called off their jobs and supplanted by ex-dishwashers, park bench loafers and migrants from the equally outlawed railway strike. And the Federation did nothing, perhaps could do nothing. The Building Trades Council was in treason against the high cause of unionism as it was against the nation at large, yet Brindell flourished unrebuked. But organized labor is not alone in its responsibility. Without the co-operation of all the various rings of employers, Brindell would have been powerless. These men joined with him to ruin honest fellow-employers and wring from the needs of school children, from the needs of the houseless and homeless, gains that even by the standards of wartime profiteering were colossal.

When the Building Trades Council was organized, the public acclaimed it as a means of stabilizing the labor situation—and it was a possible means. Among the many projects for solving the housing problem which were advanced at Albany was that of local commissions or boards. When it mysteriously sank into abeyance there were many who wondered why. That mystery is now solved. The boards would have been appointed politically. As the evidence before the Lockwood committee unfolds, the trail leads closer and closer to the Tammany long-house, to the lodge of the sachem. The ultimate responsibility lies with municipal politics—which means with the American citizen. Labor cannot be stabilized, employers cannot co-operate to build swiftly and cheaply, because of the corrupt will and the invisible power of those whom we raise up as the representatives of the people.

Not so long ago we had a Mayor who was fearless and clean—indefatigable in the cause of the people as it appeared to his intelligence. But by his very fearlessness Mayor Mitchel aroused powerful prejudices and offended powerful interests. He was defeated when he ran for re-election. As to his successor, everything could have been predicted then, and was predicted, that is manifest now.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Expects Too Much From Logic.

That American youth should be taught the methods of sound logic certainly is desirable, and yet, if it were done, results neither as many nor as good necessarily would follow as seemingly is expected by Mr. C. D. Fleming, Principal of Public School 160. He proposes the preparation of a book which, in a suitable dilution and under a less terrifying name, shall present the laws of logical argument, and he says that the study of such a book in the public schools would lead to clearer thinking and so protect the pupils from infection by false doctrines, such as those of the Bolsheviki.

So it would, to some extent, but probably the extent would not be a large one. The trouble with the conclusions of the Bolsheviki, and of all like social and economic heretics, is not that the conclusions are not logical—not, that is, because the reasoning from premises to conclusion is not in accord with the rules of logic—but because the premises are wrong. And always when the premises are wrong the conclusion is wrong—if the reasoner be logical. On the other hand, when his logic is weak the reasoner not infrequently reaches from false premises a conclusion that is exactly right!

This is not a condemnation of logic, of course, nor a depreciation of its value. it is only recognition of the fact that logic gives no help at all in determining the soundness of premises and that the assumption too commonly made as to the relation between conclusions and logic is false. Madmen often are admirably logical in their wildest actions, and one only has to admit their premises—that they are teapots, say, or famous historical personages—to perceive that they are quite beyond the criticism of logicians.

Where Logic Gives No Help.

Lessoning in logic, whether dilute or undilute, and under whatever name, would be good for children in the public schools, as such lessoning would be good for everybody else—indeed, a vast multitude!—who has not yet received it. But what the children and others need more are additions to their stock of accurate information, a strengthening of the power to discriminate between facts and fancies.

In reality, we are all fairly good logicians, partly by inheritance and partly of necessity. The professional logicians do little more than tell us how and why we reach our decisions, and point out certain errors of reasoning into which amateurs are in some danger of falling. But the perils from which their formulae save us are not very great, none of us, for instance, being really likely to believe that because light moves in straight lines, and feathers are light, therefore feathers move in straight lines. Vastly more people are likely, as sad experience has proved, to believe that the poor inevitably grow poorer and the rich richer, just because Karl Marx said so. From such illusions as that it is not logic, but judgment and observation, that gives protection.

Why Wasn't His Crime a Murder?

One Carmine Lizenziata has just been convicted in a Brooklyn court of having bought a large quantity of wood alcohol, of having put it in bottles, of having labeled some of the bottles whisky and some cognac, and of sending them to several New England cities, where they were sold at prices that gave him a large profit. Incidentally, about 100 men died more or less sudden and more or less painful deaths as a result of Lizenziata's little speculation in wood alcohol, and Lizenziata himself is going to prison for eighteen years.

At any rate that is the sentence pronounced upon him, and sentences are carried out—sometimes and in part.

Presumably the man's punishment is in accord with the evidence and the law, but to the lay mind it seems strangely, inexplicably lenient, considering that in this State men are sent, every now and then, to the electric chair for crimes which from several points of view are less heinous than his.

He, it must be remembered, did not do his killing in one of those mad rages into which none of us can be sure never to fall—rages for which, therefore, we have understanding; he had suffered no wrong, real or imaginary, the avenging of which he could have held to be justifiable; he was in no desperate need, since he had or commanded $25,000 with which to buy the wood alcohol. He merely saw a chance to make a lot of money, and seized it in total disregard of consequences.

Why his crime was not murder the reports of his trial now at hand do not reveal. Perhaps proof lacked that he knew the effects of drinking wood alcohol; perhaps it was held that he had no definite intention to kill, but thought only of selling. Yet it is a recognized principle of law that a man is responsible for the consequences reasonably to be expected from what he does, and nowhere except in a court, if there, would credence be given to any man's contention that he did not know wood alcohol to be a deadly poison.

At Least Easily Understood.

On a card announcing a reduction of prices just sent out by a New York merchant there appears a truly interesting sentence. It reads as follows:

"This is an offer which will pay you to give me a call."

Fussy people, doubtless, will find fault with that sentence—say that there is something seriously wrong with it. Perhaps they are right, but what the man meant is instantly comprehensible to everybody who reads it, which is no small merit in any sentence, and critics will not find quite easy the task of saying what and all he meant in another sentence that shall be in accord with their standards of construction and at the same time equally brief as well as equally lucid.

SHUT IN.

Mine is the Land of Counterpane,
Bounded by four walls painted white,
Furnished with windows, wide and high,
Through which I peer out at the sky
That bends so close all day and night.
In stormy weather drops of rain
Tap 'gainst the windows cheerily,
As though to give a greeting gay;
'Tis fun to watch them as they run
In little rivers, till the sun
Comes out to drive the clouds away,
And smiles down in my room at me!

Treetops and winds are friends, who try
To gossip of strange far-off lands,
And all the birds sing overhead
To me, who in my narrow bed,
A prisoner with folded hands,
Just watch the outside world go by!

NO TAXATION RELIEF BY COMING SESSION

Republican Leaders Will Not Attempt It—Think Reduction Unlikely for Several Years.

WILL CHANGE THE TAX FORM

Excess Profits Impost to Be Repealed for the Next Fiscal Year, Says Fordney.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee who returned to Washington today said that nothing toward taxation relief would be attempted during the short session of Congress which will begin Monday. The purpose of Senator Penrose, Chairman of the Finance Committee, to confine financial work of the session to appropriation bills was accepted by the House leaders, who said they believed this would be the wise course.

It is becoming evident to those dealing with fiscal matters, according to their statement, that there can be no reduction in taxes for several years. The expenses of the Government, resulting from the war debt and increased activities, are so large that all that can be done by Congress, they say, is to prune the estimates. The estimates for the next fiscal year exceed $4,000,000,000, and it is thought that these cannot be reduced greatly. Perhaps the largest saving possible would be in a reduction of the clerical force here, which Republican leaders say will be cut from more than 90,000 to 70,000.

Representative Joseph W. Fordney, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, asserted that it would be useless to attempt to modify the revenue laws during the Wilson Administration. He said:

"As much as I would like to see the business men and all other taxpayers relieved of taxation, I cannot see how Congress can do anything at this session. In the first place, the Administration is opposed to anything that we might do in accord with Republican policies and President Wilson would make useless our work. In my opinion, the excess profits tax will not be repealed and nothing will be done with the revenue laws until the special session.

"It is pretty well understood what we must do with the revenue laws for a year or so. The amount of revenues cannot be reduced greatly. The form of taxation can be changed, but the only possible reduction in taxation must come through economy in expenditures. I think it is safe to say that the excess profits tax will be repealed for the calendar year 1921. This can be done any time next year when revenue revision comes up for general consideration. The problem is whether this tax can be repealed without finding a substitute.

"Some favor refunding the Victory notes falling due 1922 into long terms and thereby making unnecessary another tax to replace the revenues coming from the excess profits. The other argument favors a sales tax and the payment of the Victory notes upon their maturity. But until revenue revision is fully considered it is impossible to say what course will be pursued. It is safe to say, however, that the excess profits taxes will be repealed."

Mr. Fordney thought it would be well to begin on tariff matters early next month so that the committee would be prepared to report a tariff bill early in the special session. Other members of the committee do not agree with him. They hold that what might be done in the next few months would be almost worthless, perhaps, due to readjustment here or conditions abroad.

Speaker Gillett said today:

"Until readjustment is carried further it would be unwise for the Republican Party to revise tariff and revenue laws. This session of Congress, I believe, will expend its efforts in compelling economies and in reducing the estimates, which are over $4,000,000,000. The first thing confronting the session is to perfect the Budget Committee and adopt business methods. The estimates must be reduced and unnecessary employes and expenses reduced to peace time conditions."

$1,400,000 IN AMHERST FUND

Alumni Dinner Ends First Week of City Drive Netting $1,000,000.

More than $1,000,000 was raised in the first week of the campaign among Amherst College alumni of New York City toward a fund of $3,000,000 to be presented to the college on the hundredth anniversary of its founding, next commencement, according to an announcement made last night at a dinner of Amherst alumni at the Waldorf-Astoria.

The dinner marked the end of the first week of the intensive campaign, which netted $1,400,000. The campaign will be continued all over the United States until the entire fund has been raised.

LE FORTIER SALE, $41,287.

Four Sixteenth Century Florentine Torcheres Sold for $660.

At the continuation of the sale of the antiques of Mme. le Fortier of Paris at the American Art Galleries yesterday the returns were $18,160, making a total to date of $41,287. For a pair of Venetian seventeenth-century walnut stools with pointe hongroise embroidery Mrs. C. I. Oliver paid $260; for six carved walnut chairs of the same period, covered with crimson and yellow brocatelle, Trowbridge Callaway gave $390; six carved walnut chairs, sixteenth century North Italian, went to Chandler Ross for $360, and to the same buyer a walnut draw-leaf table, Florentine, sixteenth century, for the same price.

A Florentine sixteenth-century carved walnut credence sold to J. Stevens for $425, and for a Florentine walnut centre table of the same period Stevens paid $400. A Renaissance tapestry walnut bench, Louis XIII. period, was purchased by Mrs. O. Ferara for $460. For four torcheres, late sixteenth century, Florentine, Baumgarten paid $660, and for a pair of forged iron and brass torcheres, seventeenth century, Italian, Bernet, agent, gave $440.

Two other Italian seventeenth-century forged iron and brass torcheres went to E. Feffercorn for $380, and Mrs. M. C. Vanderlip paid $360 for a similar pair. Two forged iron balconies, Italian, late sixteenth century, went to W. R. Hearst for $4[illegible]0, and a forged iron grille door, Florentine, late sixteenth century, for $330. A pair of forged iron window grilles were bought by E. Feffercorn for $400.

Needlework, furniture, tapestries, &c., will go at the concluding sale today.

$3,944 for Etchings of 'Men of 1830'

Returns for the second and last evening of the sale of the collection of etchings of the "Men of 1830," belonging to John Boland, at the American Art Galleries, last evening, were $2,152, making a grand total of $3,944.

The etching by Millet, "The Gleaners" No. 23," first state, superb impression in perfect condition, went to D. Keppel, who gave most of the higher prices of the evening, for $185. To the same buyer went No. 233, Millet's "The Churner," in the extremely rare first state, for $95, and also to Keppel went No. 252, Joseph Pennell's "Rosetti's House, London," a signed artist's proof etching, printed by the artist, for $40.

A lithograph of Millet's "The Sower," No. 242, beautiful impression in perfect condition, went to Swan, agent, for $50.

TO PICK BUDGET COMMITTEE.

House Leaders Decide Party Is Pledged to This Move.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—House Republican leaders decided today that the proposed Budget Committee of thirty-five should be created, although the estimates of Government expenses will not be presented in budget form. It was argued that the party was pledged to a budget plan, and refusal to organize this committee, which would consider estimates as one body, would be regarded as a step backward.

The leaders said today that the Budget bill should contain a provision for an Auditor General responsible to Congress and not to the Executive. This was in the original bill, vetoed by President Wilson. The opinion was expressed today that President-elect Harding would not object to the provision. There will be conferences of House and Senate leaders soon to decide whether the pending amended bill or a new one, framed along the original lines, shall be passed. If the latter plan is adopted, the measure will not be considered until the special session.

The Budget Committee of thirty-five will be created for this session by taking the twenty-one members of the present Appropriations Committee and two members, representing the major parties, from each of seven other committees that deal with appropriations. The full committee will probably be named tomorrow.

OPPOSES INCREASED HOUSE.

Gillett to Fight Enlargement—Hull Will Offer a Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Opposition to any increase in the size of the House of Representatives as a result of the 1920 census was voiced today by Speaker Gillett.

"I have for years been outspoken in opposition to any increase in the size of the House," said Mr. Gillett, "and I will use my utmost influence to prevent any further increase."

If the House were held to its present size of 435 members Missouri would lose two Representatives and Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Nebraska and Vermont one each.

Representative Hull of Tennessee, who was defeated in November, has drafted a measure for presentation Monday limiting the House to 450 members and making the basis of representation one for every 243,751 or major fraction thereof, instead of 211,877, as at present.

Should this bill be enacted California would gain four; Michigan and Ohio, three each; Texas, two, and Connecticut, Illinois, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and Washington, one each. Missouri would lose two and Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky and Maine one each.

Some House leaders doubt if Congress will be able to enact at the coming session any legislation changing the apportionment.

ELIOT CRITICISES SCHOOLS.

Recommends More Individual Instruction and Better Classification.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—More individual instruction for children in the public schools was recommended by President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University at the annual meeting of the New England Association of College Teachers of Education today. If children could not be classified better than at present, he said, "the American free school cannot be maintained as it was originally established. It will become the school of the lower grades of the population because the better classes will not keep their children under the public school system, with its slow promotions. They will send them to private schools."

American educators have encouraged an erroneous notion that "the object of democratic government is to average up the population in intelligence as well as in comforts," he added. "In the public schools we have held that it is right to hold together in the same class the bright children and the dull children. But that is not the true object of democracy. As it has been explained before, the success of democracy depends on democratic schooling, leaving the citizen free to obtain all the finest intellectual fruits, to develop the superior class as well as the whole."

MILLER STUDIES BUDGET.

Confers With Leaders in Effort to Find Way to Make Big Reduction.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Governor-elect Nathan L. Miller, with Senator Henry M. Sage, Chairman of the Finance Committee, and Controller-elect James A. Wendell, conferred for several hours today in an effort to find ways to reduce the budget. Although it was not possible to learn what methods were suggested it is understood that Mr. Miller's plan is with the aid of the Legislature to consolidate several departments.

For several days Franklin B. Lord, who was legal adviser to former Governor Whitman, has been in Albany going over the tentative budget which has been compiled by the State Budget Commission. Mr. Lord has made a close study of the budget requests and estimates, and it is certain that some huge cuts will be made in many of the departments. The total of the budget requests amount to $225,000,000, and the anticipated revenue of the State is a little over $125,000,000.

The Governor-elect would make no comment today on how he intends to cut down the estimates, nor would he admit or deny that the State employes' 2[illegible] per cent. increase in salaries would be cut.

Senator Hewitt of Locke attended today's conference. He is ranking member on the Finance Committee and is to succeed Senator Sage who does not return next year.

Mr. Miller left tonight for Syracuse where he will spend the week-end. He will go to New York Monday to confer with State leaders.

HEARS TEACHERS ON WAGES

Joint Legislative Committee Opens Its Inquiry in Troy.

TROY, N. Y., Dec. 3.—The Joint Legislative Committee, headed by Senator John B. Mullan of Rochester and including four Senators and five Assemblymen, began its inquiry at Troy today into the matter of additional salaries for teachers and the methods of raising the necessary funds.

The committee also included Senators Lowman of Chemung, Mackrell of Troy, Downing of New York and Assemblymen Hutchinson, Smith, Kiernan, McKee and Cole. Eugene Raines of Rochester sits with the committee as associate counsel.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—A minimum salary of $800 a year for school teachers should be made compulsory by State law the Department of Education declared in its report to the Legislature today. The present minimum is $560.

POPE APPEALS FOR CHILDREN

Will Receive Offerings Dec. 26 for All Lands Devastated by War.

ROME, Dec. 2.—Offerings will be received in the Catholic churches throughout Christendom on Dec. 26 on behalf of children in all countries which are suffering because of the war. This day was fixed in an encyclical letter issued to the Church by Pope Benedict today. It is the Sunday preceding Holy Innocents' Day, Dec. 28.

The appeal of the Pontiff this year differs from that of 1919 in that it includes a request for help for children in every country devastated by war, while that of last year asked for help for only the children of Central Europe.

COLBY PARTY SAILS FOR LATIN AMERICA

He Will Visit Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay as President's Representative.

CAN'T EXTEND HIS MISSION

Pan-American Diplomatic Corps and State Department Officials Wish Him "Bon Voyage."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State, left Washington this afternoon to visit Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay as the representative of President Wilson.

When the President's yacht Mayflower steamed from her moorings at the Washington Navy Yard at 4 o'clock this afternoon for Hampton Roads, where Secretary Colby and his party will tomorrow morning board the dreadnought Florida, all the members of the Pan-American diplomatic corps were on the dock and a salute of nineteen guns was fired for the departing Secretary of State. The Mayflower, with the flag of the Secretary of State at her masthead, replied with seven shots. Nearly all the principal officials of the State Department were on hand to wish him a personal "bon voyage," and Under Secretary of State Norman H. Davis, upon whom will fall for five weeks the handling of the State Department, was also present and had a final talk with his chief.

Secretary Colby had his final conference with President Wilson at the White House yesterday afternoon. It was a lengthy one in which pending matters were discussed.

Other Members of Party.

Besides Secretary Colby the members of his immediate party are: Major General Adelbert Cronkhite, U. S. A., Commander of the Third Army Corps area, with headquarters at Baltimore; Rear Admiral F. B. Bassett, U. S. N.; Colonel William Kelly Jr., immediate military aide to the Secretary of State; Captain E. S. Ross, aid to General Cronkhite; Dr. Guillermo Sherwell, special assistant to the Secretary of State; William H. Beck, private secretary to Mr. Colby; Harry K. Young, disbursing officer of the mission; Edwin T. Vans, stenographer; Manuel Guillermo Martinez, Spanish stenographer; Mr. Sebastiano Sampaio, commercial attaché of the Brazilian Embassy at Washington; William H. Crawford of The New York Times, Louis Seibold of The New York World.

Secretary Colby announced definitely for the first time this afternoon that he would not be able to visit any other countries of South America because of pressing questions here which will demand his return to Washington as soon as possible. While on the Mayflower and on the Florida the Secretary will be in daily wireless communication with President Wilson and the State Department.

The Secretary was given a farewell reception just before his departure by the Governing Board of the Pan-American Union. The Ambassador of Chile, dean of the Latin-American diplomats, spoke for his fellow diplomats and wished Secretary Colby success in his mission. Secretary Colby replied by declaring that he felt himself "highly privileged to be the bearer of America's good-will to the countries I shall visit." He had talked with President Wilson for two hours yesterday, he said, and "we talked of nothing but the trip."

"I do not know," added the Secretary, "that there is anything that the President feels more deeply than the sense he has of South America's appreciation of the great ends and the great ideals he has sought to conserve and promote."

Urges Friendship for South America.

Speaking of the interest which exists in the United States for the people of the other countries on this hemisphere, the Secretary said:

"I only wish that the American people could have a voice and a personality which would more adequately embody and bring to your people the great common interest that is felt in the United States for her sister republics of America. You must have appreciated that there is not an audience in the United States where you have found yourselves unappreciated or a lack of enthusiasm and interest for your countries.

"You can scan the utterances of our public men and can find nothing but evidences of goodwill, interest and admiration which is felt in this country for your people. Most of us do not differ fundamentally. Cultivation and honor have no meridians of latitude. A gentleman, a man of honor, a man of faith, a man of conscience, is the same thing the world over. Civilization is in the custody and guardianship of such men in all the countries that belong to the corporate body of the Pan-American Union."

The Ambassador of Chile, in his farewell address to Secretary Colby, said:

"Mr. Secretary: On the day when you first came to the Pan American Union to preside over the sessions of the governing board the honor of welcoming you fell to me. Today I again enjoy the honor of addressing a few words to you in the name of my distinguished colleagues.

"At that time, in extending to you our welcome and greeting, we assured you that, with your high, statesmanlike qualities, combined with our warm and earnest co-operation, your duties as President of this international organization would be made relatively easy. It is a great satisfaction to all of us to be able to state at this time that this prediction has been fully confirmed. At this time it is even more gratifying to be able to say to you that, although we received you with cordiality at the time that you took over the presidency of the governing board of the Pan American Union, now, after having had the opportunity to learn to know you and at the moment when you are about to leave us, we, in bidding godspeed to his Excellency, the Secretary of State and President of our governing board, also say farewell with the warmest expression of personal feeling to our highly valued friend.

Tribute Paid to President.

"If on this occasion I permit myself to address you in this personal and familiar way, you are in a sense responsible. To the other splendid qualities which you possess there is added the personal attractiveness which has exerted a charm over all of us. We are certain, sir, that the same qualities which we have learned so deeply to appreciate assure the success of the high mission which you are about to undertake. You will carry to the peoples and Governments before whom you will represent the eminent President of the United States the eloquent expression of a policy which has opened new and broader horizons of peace and at the same time strengthened on our American continent those sentiments of mutual confidence and solidarity which the American people have inspired by reason of a moral elevation superior to their material greatness.

"And in addition to all this, my dear Mr. Colby, you are going to make hosts of friends among nations open to the influence of noble sentiments, and among those sentiments there is none which is more highly appreciated than the sincerity which so markedly characterizes your personality.

"We desire, sir, that you carry with you for the success of your great mission, the warm wishes which are here expressed by the representatives of the American nations seated around the table. Combined with these warm wishes there goes with you the affectionate regard of each and every one of us, who feels proud to be considered among your friends."

Sebastiano Sampaio, Commercial Attaché of the Brazilian Embassy, a member of the party accompanying Secretary Colby to South America, is the bearer of numerous messages to the President of Brazil and to commercial bodies from Presidents of the Chambers of Commerce in Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, St. Louis, New Orleans and other important cities.

JUNIOR ASSEMBLIES BEGIN AT THE RITZ

DEBUTANTES OUT IN FORCE

Mrs. T. Tileston Wells, Mrs. D. H. McAlpin and Mrs. Edward Spencer Among Hostesses.

The first of this season's Junior Assemblies was held last evening at the Ritz-Carlton and was attended by nearly 500 members and guests, the ballroom floor being taken for it and seated supper being served in the main dining room after midnight.

This year's committee in charge is made up of Mrs. Richard C. Colt, Mrs. Walter B. James, Mrs. Walter Phelps Bliss, Mrs. James Gore King, Mrs. Murray Witherbee Dodge, Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt, Mrs. James Byrne and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee. Mrs. Bliss, Mrs. King and Mrs. Satterlee received.

As usual the dance was preceded by a number of dinners, perhaps the largest of which Mrs. T. Tileston Wells gave at the Colony Club for her débutante daughter, Miss Georgina L. Wells. There were forty guests, who included the Misses Wells, Katharine Francis, Marion Taylor, Betty Barber, Isabelle Wood, Elizabeth Mosle, Katherine Watjen, Katharine Rogers, Frances Isham, Juliet Longfellow, Margaret Davidson, Waudern Matthews, Rosamond Johnson, also Langhorne Gibson, George Appleton, Robert Miller, Robert Buel, Lea Luquer, Augustus Field, Cortlandt Van Renssalear, E. R. Perry, Winifred Sherer, William Lyon, R. Sanford Saltus Jr., and others, and at another table were older friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wells—Mr. and Mrs. Harris Fahnestock, Mrs. Johnson of Boston, Andrew Bibby, and Mr. and Mrs. John Wells, son and daughter-in-law of the host and hostess.

Mrs. D. Hunter McAlpin was also a dinner hostess, her dinner at the Ritz-Carlton being for her daughter, Miss Geraldine McAlpin. Besides Mrs. McAlpin and Dr. McAlpin, those present included the Misses Margaret Van Ingen, Lee Dodge, Georgiana Palmer, Mrs. Abbott, Dr. Le Roy Minturn, F. S. Polhemus, John M. Harlan, John De Witt Peltz, Richard Lindabury Jr., W. H. Curtis and others.

Mrs. Edwards Spencer also entertained with a small dinner for her débutante niece, Miss Mary Barbara Spencer, daughter of Mrs. Harvey Spencer, and took her guests to the dance.

Among the subscribers this year are Mrs. F. Egerton Webb, Mrs. Dave Hennen Morris, Mrs. W. Goadby Loew, Mrs. John Henry Towne, Mrs. Lewis Rutherfurd Morris, Mrs. Henry G. Trevor, Mrs. Walter Jennings, Mrs. J. Horace Harding, Mrs. William B. Anderton, Mrs. Donn Barber, Mrs. H. H. Flagler, Mrs. D. Hunter McAlpin, Mrs. Robert L. Stevens, Clarence Mackay and Philip Rhinelander, all of whose young or débutante daughters were at the dance.

BIDE-A-WEE NEEDS $3,000.

Society to Provide Homes for Animals Hopes to Get 30 Life Memberships.

The Bide-a-Wee Home, which has found homes for more than 50,000 animals and usually has some 500 under its care, is trying to raise $8,000 to clear an estate left to it by a woman who died in Holland several years ago, and which will yield it an income of $5,000 a year as the beginning of an endowment fund. One person has promised to contribute $5,000 provided the organization can raise the other $3,000. Efforts to secure that sum are now under way. The home hopes to get thirty life memberships at $100 each to make up the amount.

In furtherance of its campaign for funds, the home will give a concert and entertainment next Sunday night at the Playhouse, which has been donated by William A. Brady.

BARBRANDIED PUDDINGS AND PIES AT CHRISTMAS

Foods With More Than One-half of 1 Per Cent. Alcohol Are Liable to Seizure.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The flavoring of home-made Christmas plum pudding, mincemeat and brandied cherries and peaches with alcoholic spirits is in violation of the prohibition enforcement law, and such foods are liable to seizure, it was stated today at the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Officials explained that under their interpretation of the Enforcement act culinary products in which alcohol is an ingredient can be made only by manufacturers of food products who obtain a permit from the Government, and that such products must contain less than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol. They also state that the regulations require that such products shall not be used or sold on the premises, and that this effectively barred the housewife from making Christmas foods with liquor in them. The regulations specifically state that permits shall not be issued to hotels and restaurants.

Retailers do not require permits to sell culinary products containing less than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol obtained from authorized manufacturers, officials said.

HIT BY AUTO, GETS $2,500.

Mrs. Oliver Harriman and Mrs. Irma Hopper Testify for Plaintiff.

Mrs. Oliver Harriman and Mrs. Irma Hopper testified before a Sheriff's jury yesterday in support of a suit by Blaine Webb against the Pierce-Arrow Renting Company to recover $15,000 damages because one of the defendant's cars struck him in June, near Yonkers, while he was repairing a tire on his own car along the roadside. Mrs. Harriman and Mrs. Hopper, who had rented the defendant's car for the day, took him to the hospital. Both upheld his contention that the car was driven recklessly.

The case was not defended and was sent to a Sheriff's jury to assess the damage for that reason. The jury awarded $2,500.

Ask Data on David B. Hill's Career.

A biography of the late Senator David B. Hill is being written by George Stephenson Bixby of Plattsburg. Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker of New York and Peter J. Manwiller of Albany, the executors of Senator Hill's estate, are co-operating with the author. Persons who have letters from Mr. Hill, documents relating to him and also those who have personal recollection or incidents concerning him are requested to communicate with Mr. Bixby at Plattsburg, Judge Parker at 61 Broadway, New York, or Mr. Manwiller at 452 Broadway, Albany.

Mrs. Nicoll Undergoes Operation.

CHURCH COUNCIL PLANS WIDER WORK

Boston Conference Accepts Program Contemplating $300,000 Annual Budget.

EPISCOPAL PLEA FOR UNITY

Bishop Talbot Proclaims His Church's Recognition of All Christian Ministries.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Not to absorb what was left of the Interchurch World Movement, but to effect a great enlargement of its own work, because the Interchurch Movement has ceased to function, was the decision taken today by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, which is holding its fourth quadrennial meeting in Ford Hall in this city.

The four hundred delegates accepted almost unanimously a report consisting of seven items which was presented by the Council's Committee on Methods of Co-operation. Because he felt there was a misapprehension in the minds of the general public, Dr. Robert E. Speer, the newly-elected President, made this statement to the representatives of the press.

"The relation of the action of the Federal Council to the Interchurch World Movement should be clearly understood. The affairs of the Interchurch World Movement were not before the council at all. Those affairs are in the hands of the committee of the Interchurch Movement, of which Bishop Thomas Nicholson of Chicago is Chairman, which will determine what disposition to make of the matters committed to it.

"What the Federal Council did was to plan its own enlarging work as the representative and responsible agency for co-operative effort of the thirty denominations which compose the council. Incidentally, it agreed to call a conference of the various agencies which serve the churches co-operatively in missionary and educational work, in which Bishop Nicholson's committee would be represented, to consider the mutually most helpful working relationships and arrangements. But the Federal Council did not take over the Interchurch World Movement. It was not proposed to the council that it should do so.

The council's Committee on Methods and Co-operation was formed some months ago when it became evident that the Interchurch Movement could not live.

The seven points informally adopted today were:

"1—The council believes that the time has come for fuller action on its part in the fulfillment of the purpose of its establishment for the prosecution of work that can be better done in union than in separation. The council instructs the Executive and Administrative Committees to plan the work of the council in accordance with this view, ever having in mind its duly defined field of constitutional action, and taking such active steps as will maintain the closest possible relationships between it and the constituent denominations.

"2—The council instructs the Executive Committee to strengthen the secretarial staff of the council by the appointment of such additional secretaries as it may deem necessary to enable the council to carry forward a larger work with the confidence and support of the churches.

"3—The council request the constituent body to provide for the support of the council and its work on the scale of $300,000 per annum for the next two years, and it asks these bodies to accept their per capita apportionment of this amount.

"4—The council agrees to call such a conference of the inter-board agencies as has been suggested for the purpose specified, with the understanding that any general plan of co-operation involving the denominations in any way not already approved by them in connection with the Federal Council or the inter-board bodies must be referred to the denominational courts or other authorities.

"5—The council approves the statement of the Committee on Methods of Co-operation with regard to the readiness of the Council to adjust its organization, within its constitutional character and responsibility to the churches, in any way that may be necessary to enable it to be of service to the churches or to any of their agencies.

"6—The council refers to the Administrative Committee with power the article numbered 8, of the by-laws, with regard to the commissions of the council, and authorizes it to make any changes which it may deem wise in the commission and committee organization (including the Administrative Committee itself) of the council.

"7—The council expresses the conviction that out of the experiences and discussions of the present time there shall come the achievement of a richer form of expression of that spirit of fellowship, service and co-operation in which the Federal Council began and which it is its duty and its joy to promote."

That the Episcopal Church was willing to recognize the Christian ministry of every church on the face of the earth was a statement made by the Right Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, Episcopal Bishop of Bethlehem, Pa., which caused the council to break into vehement applause. Later he told THE NEW YORK TIMES reporter that he had the authority of the Lambeth Conference behind him. His words caused a sensation in the conference.

At the great public service held this evening in Trinity Church the principal figure was General Robert Georges Nivelle of France, who bestowed decorations from his Government for their war service upon these members of the Federal Council: the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Atkinson of New York, Secretary of the Church Peace Union; the Rev. Dr. Frank Mason North, Corresponding Secretary of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions; President Henry Churchill King of Oberlin College, and the Rev. Dr. Charles S. MacFarland, General Secretary of the Federal Council.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—At a great public meeting of the conference of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America General Robert Georges Nivelle brought the greetings of France to the council.

"France has been happy to send us as delegates," the General said, "to tell you that we stand by you with warm heart to these auspicious days of the third centenary of the landing of the Mayflower, these auspicious days which join all nations together around the Star-Spangled Banner.

"It is the destiny of our two republics founded, one upon the Bill of Rights and the other upon the Rights of Man, which are expressions of the same thought, to walk always hand in hand in the great crises of humanity, and now to solve the difficult problems of peace with the same mutual trust and good will shown during the dark days of the war.

"It belongs to the Allies and to the two great republics which have been together in 1620 for the conquest of freedom of conscience, in 1780 for the conquests of the rights of man and in 1917 for the rights of civilization, by confidence and everlasting friendship to force the peace of the world as they have forced the victory.

"I am very happy and proud to bring you the heartiest greetings of France."

KIPLING GETS DAMAGES FOR USE OF HIS VERSE

Injunction Is Granted Prohibiting Quotation From 'If' in Patent Medicine Advertisement.

LONDON, Dec 3.—Rudyard Kipling got an injunction today forbidding the owners of a proprietary medicine from using a verse of his poem "If" in an advertisement. He was also awarded 40 shillings damages and costs. The words used were:

> If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
> To serve your turn long after they are gone
> And so hold on when there is nothing in you
> Except your will, which says to them, hold on * * *

Counsel explained the company had not sought Kipling's permission and had inserted the verse in an advertisement under the heading, "Will to be Well," followed by the words "By force of my will I shall subdue this disease."

OBREGON ENTERTAINS 3,000.

Americans and Mexicans Dine in Chapultepec Park With Him.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 3.—Three thousand Mexicans and Americans gathered at Chapultepec Park today for an open air luncheon with President Obregon. The tables were spread in the centre of the old road known as the King's Highway. This road was first used by an Aztec Emperor, a poet, who wandering in the shady road lined with immense trees, whose branches locked over his head, wrote poetry, of which fragments escaped destruction at the hands of the Spanish conquerors.

The long white tables stretched through the roadway. Americans and Mexicans were seated side by side, and the first arrivals were seated near President Obregon. Señora Obregon sat facing the President The American Governors Hobby, Larizola, prominent American business men, Mexican officials and Generals Enriquez Ortiz, Ortiz Rubio and Manuel Peleaz were seated in the midst of the groups of visitors. Three military bands played during the luncheon.

After the luncheon the wife of the President entertained the American women at Chapultepec Castle, where, after dancing, tea was served to the visitors.

During the entertainment at the castle a delegation of Arizona business men presented the President with a solid gold paperweight mounted with silver keys, representing the Cities of Nogales, Ariz., and Nogales, Mexico. The most striking note of the entertainment was the democratic spirit shown by President Obregon, who personally attended to the guests.

A large number of foreign diplomats stationed in Mexico City, among them Mr. Hanna of the American Embassy, attended the tea at the castle.

A letter was presented to President Obregon written by President-elect Harding to members of the Arizona Chamber of Commerce. It was written on Senate note paper and said: "Say to the President-elect I most sincerely hope for the most cordial and truly helpful relations between the two countries." The letter stated Mr. Harding could only make the expression as a private citizen.

JOHN H. RONNER DIES AT 60.

Ex-Register of New York County Was Long a Leader in Tammany.

John H. Ronner, who was elected Register of the County of New York on the Democratic ticket in 1902 and had long been active in civic development and politics in the Bronx, died Wednesday morning of a second stroke of paralysis following a long period of ill health. He was born sixty years ago in the Sixth Ward of Manhattan, but spent most of his life in the Bronx, where he lived at Fulton Avenue and 169th Street.

Mr. Ronner was formerly Tammany leader of what is now the Thirty-fifth Assembly District. He organized the Schnorer Club of Morrisania, and was Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Bronx Club.

SIR WM. DE W. ABNEY DIES.

Scientist Was Ex-President of Royal Astronomical Society.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Sir William de Wiveleslie Abney, adviser to the science department of the Board of Education since 1903 and member of the Advisory Council for Education to the War Office from the same year, died at Folkestone yesterday.

Sir William was an authority on photography and colors, having written several works on the subjects. He was President of the Royal Astronomical Society, 1893 to 1895, and of the Physical Society, 1895 to 1897.

Cardinal Gibbons's Sister Dies at 94.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 3.—Mary Gibbons, sister of Cardinal Gibbons, died yesterday morning at the home of her brother, John Gibbons, 2,006 Canal Street, New Orleans. The funeral services and burial were held in that city this morning. Miss Gibbons was 94 years old. Like Cardinal Gibbons, she was born in Baltimore being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gibbons, who came to this city shortly after their marriage in Ireland. Six children were born to the couple, three of them girl. Mary was the eldest child, while Cardinal Gibbons was the first boy born to the couple. The Cardinal and his brother John are the only survivors of the family.

Julius Strauss.

Julius Strauss, twice President of the Unity Club, Brooklyn, died suddenly Thursday night of a paralytic stroke at his life on President Street, Brooklyn. vesant 2 West Eighty-sixth Street. He was 58 years old and had lived most of his life on President Street, Brooklyn. He had built more than four hundred apartment houses in that borough and one hundred at Neponsit, L. I. He was a trustee of the Jewish Hospital, a director of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum and a former Vice President of the Citizens Trust Company.

James Means, Pioneer in Aviation.

James Means, a pioneer in aviation, whose writings inspired the Wright Brothers to the interest in flying that developed the first practical plane, died yesterday at his home in Boston. He was supported in his views by Professor Langley and by Octave Chanute, who contributed to his columns the results of their researches. In business Mr. Means was a manufacturer of shoes, with shops at Brockton and Boston.

Dr. John W. Coughlin.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 3.—Dr. John W. Coughlin, former Mayor of this city and prominent in Democratic State politics, died today. He was 60 years old.

Dr Coughlin, who was born in Fall River, was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Baltimore in 1885. He served four terms as Mayor and in 1896 became Chairman of the Democratic State Committee. Five years later he was his party's candidate for Lieutenant Governor. He was a member of the Democratic State Committee from 1901 until last June.

Mrs. Eliza M. Abbe.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Eliza M. Abbe, who for years has been the central figure in litigation to prevent the $200,000 estate of her late sisters from benefiting St. Peter's Hospital here, died today in her 85th year. The disposition of her sisters' estate is still in litigation.

Mrs. Abbe was the widow of William Colgate Abbe and a daughter of the late Johnson Martin.

EX-KAISERIN DYING, RELATIVES ADMIT

She May Linger by Use of Stimulants, but They Fear the Next Severe Attack.

BURIAL TO BE IN GERMANY

Not Potsdam, but "Some Other Quiet Spot" Has Been Chosen, It Is Asserted.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DOORN, Holland, Dec. 3.—The ex-Kaiserin is slowly dying. There is now no doubt of this, although it may be a question of days or weeks. Even officials of the ex-Kaiser's entourage admitted today that the end was near.

"The ex-Kaiserin's condition still is serious. She has rallied this time, she seems better for the moment and looks quite different, but she will never get well again," were the words used.

For the first time since her arrival a week ago the ex-Kaiserin's daughter has been seen outside the house and the ex-Kaiser was pacing the grounds in pouring rain today, accompanied by his third son. He looked well and talked hard.

DOORN, Holland, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—Hypodermic injections of a heart stimulant are being resorted to daily to conserve the fast-waning strength of the former German Empress Augusta Victoria.

A constant watch is being kept at her bedside and it is said that hope for her recovery has been abandoned, although it is believed she may linger until a particularly severe attack ends her sufferings and life. Lights burn all night within the house.

The fact that a former Empress of 70,000,000 people is dying in exile within their village has created no change in the placid existence of the residents of Doorn. The peasants clatter past the gates in their wooden shoes, whistling as they go and scarcely ever turning their heads toward the house.

The sick-bed is in an upper room. Countess von Keller and Countess von Lotzau, old friends of the former Empress and ladies-in-waiting in the Potsdam days, share with the Duchess of Brunswick, daughter of the Empress, the duty of guarding the bedside. There is no profesional nurse, but one old charwoman, long in the Hohenzollern employ, and two housemaids assist.

Every room in the house is now occupied. Former Prince Oscar and his wife, Adalbert and his wife, the Duchess of Brunswick and Dr. Ernst von Dryander, pastor of the former Empress, all are living within the building, instead of taking rooms in the village, as was done on the occasion of former visits.

Former Emperor William has deviated but little from his old-time routine. He spends his evenings generally alone in his downstairs apartment. Yesterday he took a walk outside the house for the first time in many weeks.

The former Empress passed a comfortable night and today was resting easily. She is understood to fully realize that her recovery is improbable and has requested burial in Germany. Inmates of Doorn House say this has been arranged, not at Potsdam, but at some other cherished spot as yet undecided, and that a place will be left beside her for the former Emperor.

Frederick William, the former Crown Prince, descends to the lower part of the house only when urgently called, as though anxious to be at the bedside of his mother.

It is reported in the village that even the shadow of death has not healed the breach between Frederick William and his father. When here the Prince goes to his mother's room, spending all the time there the doctors permit; otherwise he prefers to roam through the village and to motor to Amerongen, rather than join his other brothers in assisting their father to saw wood.

MUST SHELTER EX-KAISER.

But Holland Will Know Her Duty, Says Premier, if Hospitality Is Abused.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 3.—Premier Beerenbrouck, replying to charges in Parliament today that the former Crown Prince was abusing the hospitality of Holland by communicating with monarchical elements in Germany, remarked that the Dutch Government would have preferred that the royal fugitives had not entered Holland. Since they were here, however, he said, Holland would have to grant them hospitality, or at least shelter.

The Premier expressed the belief that the fugitives would not abuse the hospitality of Holland or cause trouble to the Dutch Government. If they did so abuse it, the Premier declared, "the Government would know its duty."

U. S. G. A. DECLARES A PEACEFUL POLICY

National Body Announces Readiness to Adjust Differences With Western Golfers.

MAKES A PLEA FOR UNITY

Movement to Establish Two Associations Called Unfortunate—To Enlarge Executive Board.

Assurances that the United States Golf Association is ready to adjust any differences with the Western Golf Association, which announced on Tuesday that it would form a separate national organization of its own, were given yesterday by W. D. Vanderpool, Secretary of the U. S. G. A. The national golf body, according to the formal statement, considers the Western Golf Association's action "very unfortunate" and against the best interests of golf.

The statement also revealed that at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the U. S. G. A. last Monday, the day before the W. G. A. made its declaration of war, an amendment to the constitution was approved that would increase the committee by four. The amendment was proposed, it is said, in order that the West should have more representation on the board. The amendment will be submitted at the annual meeting of the U. S. G. A. on Jan. 7 in this city.

Lack of representation on the U. S. G. A. was one of the reasons advanced by the Western Golf Association for its decision to become a national association under the name of the American Golf Association. The Western authorities charged that the national body had consistently refused to change its form of government so as to give all clubs the right to vote. The sectional association also declared that the golf rules, as amended and approved by the U. S. G. A., are unwieldy and not practicable for American links.

The statement of the U. S. G. A. follows:

Unity and Uniformity Needed.

"The most important consideration in the game of golf today is unity and uniformity; unity and co-operation among all the golf organizations in the world, and uniformity in having the same code of rules throughout the world, with due allowance for local rules to cover different localities where necessity demands. We do not believe that the golfers of the United States want two ruling golf bodies and several different codes of rules, as this will lead to great confusion.

"This recent action of the Western Golf Association has been taken without any notification or intimation to the United States Golf Association. We consider this a very unfortunate step, as the Executive Committee of the U. S. G. A. is always ready and willing to confer and co-operate with any sectional association in order to adjust their differences. This is manifestly difficult, however, when our only information of their actions comes to us through the medium of the press.

"Prior to the sailing of the U. S. G. A. Committee that went abroad to confer with the Royal and Ancient Rules Committee, the entire rules of golf were rewritten by this committee and one or two others, after consultation. This was done in order to clarify the rules and make them easier of interpretation; also to group and codify different golf subjects. This was a considerable undertaking and our suggestions are now in the hands of the Royal and Ancient Committee, which is at present working on it and expects to report back its suggestions in due course of time.

"We do not believe that the policy of the Western Golf Association will serve the best interests of golf in any way. We want it thoroughly understood that we are always ready to discuss and confer with any golf body and to have an exchange of our views, and we believe that this is the right way to handle the situation.

The Proposed Amendment.

"At a recent meeting of the U. S. G. A. Executive Committee it was decided to amend our constitution in order to increase the number of the Executive Committee by four. This was done and in the hands of the printer prior to our knowledge of the W. G. A.'s action, and the amendments were proposed in order that the West should have more representation on our board. This amendment will be submitted at the next annual meeting for the approval of the delegates.

"Following is the proposed amendment:

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the United States Golf Association held Monday, Nov. 29, the following amendments to the constitution were approved, to be presented at the annual meeting on Jan. 7:

Article V. of the constitution, entitled Executive Committee, shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 1. Election. There shall be an Executive Committee consisting of the five officers of the association and eight others. They shall by membership therein represent thirteen different active clubs in the association. They shall all be elected by ballot at the annual meeting of the association each year, and shall hold office for one year and until their successors are chosen. It shall be the duty of the Secretary to prepare printed ballots, which shall contain in alphabetical order the names of all candidates nominated, as provided in Article X. The votes shall be by roll call, each voting delegate depositing a ballot when the club which he represents is named.

Any vacancy in the Executive Committee occurring between annual meetings of the association shall be filled by the remaining members of the Executive Committee.

Also, Article X. of the Constitution shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 1. Nominations—There shall be a nominating committee to consist of five members of active clubs, who shall be elected at the annual meeting of the association in each year. Any vacancy in this committee shall be filled by the remaining members. It shall be the duty of this committee to nominate candidates for officers and executive committee and for the nominating committee, for election at the next annual meeting. At least six of the candidates nominated as officers or for the Executive Committee shall be selected from the Board of Directors or Trustees of six different State or district golf associations in the United States, all of whom shall be qualified as provided in Article V.

The nominations shall be reported by the Secretary of the associations not later than the first day of November in each year and in such report the Nominating Committee shall designate the six golf associations from the Board of Directors or Trustees of which candidates have been selected.

The Secretary of the association shall mail notice of the nominations to all clubs enrolled in the membership of the association not later than the 15th day of November in each year.

"The Executive Committee recommends that it be the sense of the annual meeting (provided the above amendments are adopted) that the Executive Committee as elected for the year 1921 shall fill the vacancies created in its own body by electing four additional members of the Executive Committee, who shall be representatives of four different recognized golf associations of the United States."

BROOKS ANSWERS U. S. G. A.

Says Opportunity Was Offered for Unity in Golf Control.

CLEVELAND Dec. 3.—The new constitution to be adopted by the Western Golf Association at its January meeting was submitted to the United States Golf Association several months ago, with the suggestion [illegible] adopted by both organizations, Wilbur H. Brooks, President of the Western Golf Association, announced tonight, in reply to a statement issued by W. D. Vanderpool, Seretary of the United States Golf Association.

"Such action would have resulted in one authoritative organization in this country," Mr. Brooks's statement declared. "However, the suggestion was not agreeable to the officers of the United States Golf Association, notwithstanding the desire to maintain only one organization in this country, and the fact that the U. S. G. A. was always ready to confer with any other golf association as stated by Secretary Vanderpool.

"The W. G. A. also believes that one golf association in this country is preferable to two or more, and that that one must be representative of American golfers from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"The idea of one set of rules to govern the game throughout the world is ludicrous, even when climatic conditions alone are considered."

New Orleans Racing Will Conform to Betting Laws

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—Despite District Attorney-elect Marr's declaration that the Locke law, under which betting is conducted at Jefferson Park, is being violated, and that he will take action against it if the same condition persists at the Fair Grounds next month, present indications are that the meeting will be conducted without trouble. Andrew J. McShane, the incoming Mayor, said today that he was in favor of racing, provided it was conducted legally. At the same time, Walter Gleason, attorney for the Business Men's Racing Association, stated that the meeting at the Fair Grounds would begin Jan. 1, as scheduled, and that it would be operated within the provisions of all the laws.

NEW COURSE IS PLANNED.

Changes in Belmont Park Steeplechase Arrangements Approved.

The Board of Stewards of the National Steeplechase and Hunts Association is considering the plans and details for a new steeplechase course at Belmont Park, which will be necessitated when the changes are made at that plant so that the pole will be at the horses' left instead of the reverse. The plans were submitted by the Westchester Racing Association at the meeting of the Board of Stewards Thursday, and it was decided that the new course should be arranged with the Committee on Courses acting in conjunction with the Westchester Racing Association.

It is planned to make the new course up-to-date and complete and the horses will, of course, run the right way of the course, as they do on all other tracks. It is also intended to provide a suitable schooling course, and, with these facilities, it is hoped that the cross-country sport will reach a standard that has been aimed at for some time but not attained. It is expected that these improvements will arouse new interest and that better horses and more of them will be brought to the steeplechase events than has been the case in recent years. The stewards, many of whom have fencers, have approved most heartily of the proposed plans and have pledged their support to the effort.

The Board of Stewards considered a number of other matters at the meeting, and granted licenses to riders and trainers. W. Jones, Fred Crowley, William Gentry, J. Henderson and William Logan were granted licenses to ride. The application of Jockey R. Jarboe for a rider's license was withdrawn. Jarboe gave a sorry exhibition of riding at Pimlico one day and then attempted to claim a foul. He protested so strongly that it was necessary to evict him from the judges' stand.

A committee consisting of A. Henry Higginson, J. E. Widener and Henry J. Morris was appointed to receive proxies for the election at the annual meeting of three stewards to succeed H. S. Page, J. E. Davis and F. S. Von Stade, whose terms expire at the end of the year.

Present at the meeting were Henry J. Morris, J. E. Davis, Henry W. Bull, F. S. Von Stade, J. E. Widener, A. Henry Higginson and H. S. Page.

HOREMANS RUNS 235.

Belgian Displays Improved Billiards in Two Practice Matches.

Displaying further improvement in his work as he becomes more accustomed to the American tables, Edouard Horemans, the visiting Belgian billiard star, gave two excellent exhibitions yesterday afternoon and last night, the first at John Doyle's Broadway Academy and the second at the Union Club.

In the evening match, Horemans was at his best, and made a high run of 235, with another cluster of 180, and defeated F. J. L. Derks by a score of 475 to 46. Horemans had intended making but 400 points, but Referee Albert Cutler did not notice that the player had run out his string and permitted him to continue. In the run of 235 Horemans did not drive the balls the length of the table until his 211th shot.

In the afternoon game Horemans defeated Derks by a score of 300 to 17, making high runs of 112 and 90 and averaging 30.

Though unable to afford Horemans strong competition, Derks is proving a good practice opponent. In order to show Horemans at his best, Derks purposely leaves the balls spread out so that a difficult shot is necessary. At the beginning of the run of 112, Horemans had to make a long follow shot without a chance of gaining position, and, making this one, he had to play three more open table shots before he gathered the balls under control. Thereafter he executed his favorite line nurse and clicked off the points rapidly. He eventually missed on a massé follow shot.

LAYTON WINS TOURNEY.

Jackson Is Second in Preliminaries to Decide Three-Cushion Title.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—John Layton of St. Louis finished in first place in the preliminaries to the national three-cushion billiard championship tournament tonight, his defeat of Pierre Maupome of Milwaukee by a 50 to 42 score giving him a record of 10 victories and 1 defeat.

Clarence Jackson of Kansas City finished second with a mark of 9 and 2, while Aufie Kickhefer of Chicago, Pierre Maupome, John Daly and Alfredo De Oro of New York were thrown into a four-cornered tie for third place through Layton's victory and Kickhefer's defeat of De Oro in the afternoon game, each having won 7 and lost 4.

The three high men will go into the finals Tuesday against Robert Cannefax of New York, present champion. The tie for third place will be played off tomorrow and Monday, each man meeting the other once. Layton will receive the prize of $1,000 for finishing first and Jackson will get $500. The third place winner will receive $700.

HOPPE IN RARE FORM.

Champion Averages 57 5-7 in Exhibition Billiards in Brooklyn.

Willie Hoppe, who is nearing the end of his practice matches preliminary to the championship games at the Astor Hotel next week, was in rare form at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night and gave one of the best exhibitions of the week. He defeated Charles Peterson by 400 to 56, but the feature of the match was the steadiness of the champion's game. He ran out his string in seven innings for an average of 57 5-7 and had a high run of 158, this cluster being gathered in his first turn at the table. He closed the game with an unfinished run of 78.

40 TO 1 SHOT IS WINNER IN SOUTH

Judge Price Defeats Odds-On Favorite by Nearly a Length in New Orleans Race.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 3.—Showing a decided improvement since his last effort at Latonia some time ago, S. Field's six-year-old gelding, Judge Price, provided the outstanding form upset at Jefferson Park this afternoon when he got home under a drive to win at 40 to 1 and take the measure of the odds-on choice, H. C. Basch, by nearly a length. The winner was the outsider among the seven starters and at one time was quoted as high as 50 to 1.

This occurred in the sixth race and was but one of a series of reversals that greeted a good sized crowd during the day. The tide that had been running strongly in favor of the public choices turned with a vengeance and but one of the favorites got home in front in the course of the seven races. This was Blue Jeans, which punctuated the series of upsets in the fourth race.

Judge Price was the longest priced winner of the meeting to date, and his victory was not gained by any accident. The race was at a mile and seventy yards. Judge Price was kept close to the pace throughout, Ben Hampson going to the front in the back stretch to make the pace. H. C. Basch was slow to get into his stride and trailed the field for the first six furlongs. Collins began to move up with H. C. Basch rounding the turn, and, saving considerable ground at the turn into the stretch, closed with a rush. Ben Hampson, however, had signalled his distress a furlong from the end, and Judge Price, taking the lead, stood a hard drive and held the favorite safe all through the final sixteenth despite the fact that the latter closed strongly.

Pastoral Swain Wins.

The feature of the card was the Evangeline Purse, at a mile and seventy yards, which was run as the closing number. G. C. Winfrey's Pastoral Swain found his racing legs in time to get the decision by a neck from Fizer, with Dancing Spray third in the field of eight. Pastoral Swain has been a long time seeking company that was not too fast for him, and it appeared for a time today that he had not yet found his spot. He practically dropped out of the contest through the first half mile and seemed to be running like the outsider that he was, but at the half-mile pole he woke up to the situation, and, closing fast, caught the leaders just in time.

Fizer appeared to be much the best in the race, but was so poorly handled by Ponce that he had little opportunity. When he finally got a chance to extend himself in the stretch Pastoral Swain was already taking the lead from Brotherly Love and Fizer could not quite make up the distance. Dancing Spray got up for third place in the final quarter.

The racing began with the downfall of a favorite when Segurola failed to last long enough and yielded the victory to Celtic Lass in a five-and-a-half-furlong sprint for two-year-olds. Segurola was sent to the front at the start and had plenty of speed, but could not shake off Celtic Lass, and in the stretch the latter outgamed the pacemaker and had half a length to spare at the end of a driving finish. Dr. Howard was third.

Another Favorite Beaten.

This performance was practically repeated in the next event, also for juveniles, when Winchester got home at 8 to 1 nearly two lengths in front of Charles A. Byrnes, which was an odds-on choice. Winchester left little doubt about the outcome of the race, for he rushed away from the barrier into a long lead and was well in hand at the end. The favorite lacked early speed, but closed fast and easily took the place from Salesman.

C. N. Freeman's Murphy was another disappointment for those who followed the choices when he trailed in third to Bengall and Normandie in a six-furlong dash. Murphy was a 9 to 10 choice and showed plenty of speed, but quit badly in the final furlong and finished four lengths back of the winner.

FRANKIE BROWN IS STOPPED BY DE FOE

Referee Calls Halt in Eleventh Round of One-Sided Bout at Pioneer Sporting Club.

Billy De Foe, St. Paul featherweight, hammered Frankie Brown of the east side into submission in the eleventh round of their scheduled fifteen-round bout last night before a crowd of about 3,500 spectators at the Pioneer Sporting Club. A series of right and left hand blows which De Foe rained on an unprotected jaw made Brown collapse over the ropes in his own corner and slide to the floor. Referee Eddie Pollack stopped the bout even without beginning a count, which was, obviously, unnecessary. The eleventh round had been in progress 1 minute 50 seconds when Brown lay crushed in defeat in his own corner.

Just before crashing home the rain of blows which sent Brown into pugilistic slumber De Foe had toppled his rival to the floor with a terrific right swing which landed flush on the jaw. The impact of the blow felled the game little east sider like a stricken steer. He courageously regained his feet when Referee Pollack had tolled off nine, but was helpless to put up any defense against De Foe's attack, and bounded limply against the ropes from each successive blow until his stamina left him. Then he sank to the floor of the ring and De Foe was waved aside, the victor.

The contest held little of interest. This was caused by the pronounced one-sidedness of the affair. De Foe, a good, two-fisted boxer, comparatively fast, and a damaging hitter, completely outclassed his rival. The element of real competition was, therefore, conspicuously lacking. The wonder of it was that Brown stood up under the punishment as long as he did. The only thing that could be said in tribute to the showing of the little east side lad was that he was game. This attribute, with tenacious holding, forestalled until the eleventh round what was apparent as the inevitable result of the contest from the very beginning.

From the outset the bout provided little more than a gymnasium workout for De Foe. It was obvious early in the bout, almost before the completion of the first round, that Brown was at a disadvantage in boxing skill and ring generalship. The east side featherweight was subjected to terrific lashing about the stomach by the methodical De Foe, who boxed without any apparent regard for his rival's blows. This early confidence in his own ability and a corresponding disdain for Brown's punching capabilities was imparted to De Foe after the first few exchanges of the bout. The St. Paul boxer realized, evidently, that Brown's punches lacked power, and were without accurate direction, so De Foe just plodded along, forcing the milling, while Brown absorbed the blows to the face and stomach, as De Foe varied his attack.

As early as the third round it appeared that Brown would be dispatched without ceremony. In this session De Foe crossed a right to the jaw and followed with a snappy left hook, which sent Brown squatting on the ring floor almost through the ropes. In the fourth session Brown's knees shook perceptibly from a stinging right to the jaw which made the east sider hold for a breathing spell. Thereafter to the finish Brown did little but retreat under fire and hold when the opportunity presented itself.

In the semi-final bout, scheduled for ten rounds, K. O. Willie Loughlin, South Bethlehem (Pa.) welterweight, knocked out Yorkville Billy Papke, in the eighth session. A left hook to the pit of the stomach in this round sent Papke crashing to the floor where he remained until Referee Pollack counted nine. Groggily the Yorkville namesake of the once-famed "Illinois Thunderbolt" regained his feet, and the bell came to his rescue as Loughlin was applying the finishing touches. Papke went to his corner bent like a jackknife from the effects of the body blow and not even the first aid treatment of the veteran Tom O'Rourke could prepare him to answer the bell for the ninth round.

Under the rules of the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control, incorporated in the Walker law governing bouts here, Loughlin will be credited with a knockout in the eighth round. This rule provides "should a contestant give up the contest during the intermission between rounds, or fail to respond to the sound of the gong, it shall be decided that he loses the contest by a knockout in the round previous."

MAY RESUME MOVIE WORK.

Dempsey Going to Los Angeles After Bout With Brennan.

Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, and his manager, Jack Kearns, will leave this city for Los Angeles immediately after the title holder's bout with Bill Brennan, which will be held at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 14. This was made known yesterday by Manager Kearns. Teddy Hayes is at present in Los Angeles making arrangements for the arrival of Dempsey and Kearns. They plan to remain in the West until Dempsey is notified to return East for his battle with Jess Willard, scheduled for March 17.

It is probable that arrangements will be made for another appearance of Dempsey in the moving pictures during his stay on the Coast. At the time the champion was signed for his bout with Brennan, Manager Kearns announced that he had been compelled to forego prospects of arranging another picture for the title holder. Originally it was tentatively arranged that Dempsey should start his screen work on Dec. 8, but when Promoter Rickard was compelled to delay the Brennan bout to Dec. 14 Manager Kearns canceled the picture negotiations.

STEIN GAINS DECISION.

Minneapolis Lightweight Stops Opponent in Fifth Round.

Billy Stein, Minneapolis lightweight, gained a verdict over Bert Spencer of Bushwick at the East New York A. A. last night, when the bout was stopped in the fifth round. Spencer was so badly cut about the mouth that the club physician thought it unwise for him to continue.

Spencer had received a cut over his lip in a recent bout and Stein opened up the old wound with a hook to the mouth early in the bout. Stein played for the sore spot until in the fifth round Spencer's lip was bleeding profusely. Up to that time, Spencer had made a good showing and the bout was even.

Sam Smith won a decision over Johnny Levine in ten rounds in the semi-final bout, forcing the fighting all the way. In the other preliminaries, Marty Williams was awarded the decision over George Lewis in six rounds and Jim Barry and Joe Mace fought a draw in four rounds.

GOOD BOUTS ARE ON CARD.

Harlem Club to Offer Matches at Two Weights Tonight.

A card comprising thirty-eight rounds of boxing will be offered patrons of the Commonwealth Sporting Club in Harlem this evening. Two ten-round encounters feature the bill.

The principal bout will be between Jimmy Kelly, Bronx welterweight, and "Wildcat" Nelson of Brooklyn. The incentive for the winner is a prospective match against champion Jack Britton. The titleholder, it is reported, has agreed to box the winner at the Commonwealth Club within two weeks, when it is planned to conduct a special show.

The other ten-round bout will have as its principals a pair of featherweights. The boxers are Frankie Jerome of the Bronx and Jack Tracey, another local youngster who is reputed to pack a dangerous wallop. Three six-round bouts complete the program.

Cochran Makes Run of 346 In Exhibition Billiard Match

Some idea of the excellent form in which Welker Cochran is playing was gleaned here yesterday from a Detroit telegram explaining that he had made a high run of 346 in an exhibition 18.2 balkline billiard match there. This is 38 points more than the tournament record of 308 held by Willie Hoppe. The telegram explained that Cochran had made most of the buttons on the line nurse, seldom being compelled to drive the ivories the length of the table. His control was perfect. It is evident that Cochran is prepared to make a determined bid for the national championship when he meets Jake Schaefer and Hoppe in the final round of the title tournament at the Hotel Astor on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Both Cochran and Schaefer are expected to arrive in this city late today.

Stars to Meet in One-Mile International Event, Which Will Feature Sprints.

A one-mile international match cycling race will feature the series of sprint events which will be held this evening in Madison Square Garden, preliminary to the six-day bicycle race which starts there tomorrow at midnight. Frank Kramer, veteran of the bicycle racing sport, and Bob Spears, Australian crack, will engage the two Italian speeders, Orlando Piani and Francesco Verri. This race will be run in heats, the winners to be determined in the best two in three trials.

Another feature will be a mixed style match race in three heats, known as the Prix Floyd McFarland. The rules governing this competition provide for an initial sprint of a mile, followed by an Australian unlimited pursuit race and closing with a two-mile point race, with sprints every three laps for points. The team scoring the greatest number of points will be declared the winning combination. The Prix Marcus Hurley, a test at two-third of a mile, will bring together Bobby Walthour Jr. and Willie Fenn Jr.

Other events include an unlimited interclub Australian pursuit race between teams of the New England Wheelmen and the Century Road Club Association; Frank Kramer Stakes at ten miles; two-thirds of a mile amateur race, handicap; two-mile point race and two-thirds of a mile professional race, handicap.

Work on the nine-lap saucer-shaped track will be completed this afternoon. A corps of carpenters and laborers have been busy in the Garden since the arena was cleared of the crowd at the Lynch-Shafkey bout, and everything is expected to be in readiness in plenty of time for tonight's races and the opening of the six-day grind tomorrow.

CARNIVAL FOR CYCLISTS.

Leading Amateurs to Compete in Brooklyn Races Tonight.

Prominent amateur cyclists of the metropolitan district will compete tonight at the Forty-seventh Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, in the cycling carnival under the auspices of the Forty-seventh Mounted Engineers. Among the entrants are Joseph O'Shea, Jerry Nunziatta, Anthony Attardi, William Wherry, E. C. Bendl, Irving Markow, Arthur Muller and Al Lake.

One of the features of the program will be a five-mile scratch invitation race, to be decided on a point-scoring basis. A sprint will be held at the end of each mile and points will be credited to the first three men in each sprint. Tom Bello, a member of the Bello-Kopsky team in the recent six-day race, will act as starter of the various events.

SEEKS NOTRE DAME GAME.

Georgia Tech Sends Football Request—Halfback Gipp Improved.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 3.—Athletic authorities at Notre Dame have received a request for a 1921 game with Georgia Tech to be played at Atlanta. Invitations to send the 1920 squad to Spokane, Wash., and Portland, Ore., for post-season games have been rejected on account of the illness of George Gipp, star halfback.

Gipp, who has been at the verge of death from pneumonia for the last week, passed a favorable night last night, according to attending physicians, who express the opinion that he has passed the crisis.

LETZTER WINS WITH CUE.

Defeats Jacoby in Three-cushion Billiard Match by 35 to 32.

Mannie Letzter, who is leading in the three-cushion handicap tournament at Thum's academy, had a close call last night, when he was forced to the limit to defeat Leo Jacoby by a score of 35 to 32 in eighty innings, only winning in the last inning. Jacoby substituted for Sasaki, who was unable to appear, and it was his first game in the tournament. Louis Lipton defeated onroe Cohen, 35 to 24, in a second game.

AQUATIC MEET ARRANGED.

Two Title Swims on Program at the City Athletic Club.

The pool of the City Athletic Club will of swimming events Dec. 10. Five competitions, including a brace of local A. A. U. championship tests, will be conducted. The two title events include be the scene of an interesting program the senior 100-yard swim and junior 220-yard swim. The other events include a 200-yard breast stroke swim, handicap; 60-yard swim, novice and a fancy diving contest, handicap.

The Central Y. M. C. A. of Brooklyn, and the New York A. C. probably will have a battle for club supremacy in the five events. The Brooklyn organization has nominated the heaviest entry, its representatives totaling sixteen swimmers. A team of ten Mercury Footers has been nominated for the five events. In addition a number of individual entries have been received.

Oil Men to See Wrestlers.

As indicating the widespread interest in the coming wrestling bout in which Joe Stecher, Nebraska scissors hold expert, will defend his heavyweight title against the dangerous headlock of Ed (Strangler) Lewis at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory Dec. 13, Promoter Jack Curley yesterday announced a request for seat reservations from Charles Warner, a Kansas City devotee of the mat sport. Warner, who is an ardent admirer of Lewis, wired requesting that thirty ringside seats be reserved for a delegation of Kansas City oil men, who are coming to see the match.

Bob Roper Wins in the Ring.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3.—Bob Roper won his bout with K. O. Samson in the first round at the Fifth Regiment Armory here tonight. Samson was floored for the count of nine a minute after the fight had begun. After the second knockdown he was on his feet at the count of nine, but his seconds tossed the towel into the ring.

Robins Sign College Player.

Colonel C. H. Ebbets, President of the champion Robins, announced yesterday that the Brooklyn club had signed Walter C. Keeley for the coming season. Keeley, who is only 19 years old, played last Spring with St. Mary's College, California, as an infielder.

OLYMPIC OFFICIALS WILL MEET TODAY

American Committee to Discuss Reports of the Work Accomplished at Antwerp.

The American Olympic Committee will hold a meeting this afternoon at the New York A. C., at which reports of the various committees will be submitted for further consideration of the officials who directed America's participation in the last Olympic Games at Antwerp. It is expected that comprehensive reports from representatives of all sports in which America was represented at Belgium will be discussed at this afternoon's session, which will mark a resumption of committee work by the officials which was interrupted at the last meeting of the Olympic authorities held in the Mercury Foot Club last October.

Gustavus T. Kirby, President of the American Olympic Committee, declared last night that the work to be undertaken this afternoon will be the reading and adoption of exhaustive reports from committee members, representatives of the various sports affiliated with the American Olympic Committee and the individual directors of the different sport activities in which the nation's representatives participated at Antwerp. Work in this direction started at the October meeting, but because of incomplete, and, to an extent, confused information the task was deferred until today's session.

The reports, when adopted by the committee, will be arranged in shape for inclusion in a comprehensive report covering the entire work of the committee, which, it is expected, will be published some time in January. For this reason, President Kirby said, there is little possibility of tangible information being forthcoming after this afternoon's session.

CHAMPIONS TO COMPETE.

Leading Track Athletes Entered in Meet at Brooklyn Armory.

A number of track champions and several athletes who formerly held titles will compete this evening in the annual indoor athletic meet of the Thirteenth Regiment A. A., to be held in the artillerymen's armory in Brooklyn. Jack Sellers, local 600-yard champion, and Max Bohland, two-mile title-holder, will be on scratch in a mile and a half-mile race, together with Sid Leslie, former mile champion and present holder of the regimental 1,000-yard record.

Fred Teschner, former 60-yard title-holder, will start from scratch in the sprint races and Walter Stein, one and three-mile bicycle racing champion, will appear in a one-mile cycle race. Casper Scheffer, former two-mile champion; Harry Rosen and Russell Jekel, distance runners; Louis Windmuller, Julius Lorentz, Max Pels, Dick Walton and J. Rocklein will start from the back marks in their specialties.

In addition to the open A. A. U. events, a number of military competitions will be held. These include a squad hike, wall-scaling test, equipment race and a tug-of-war. A basketball game between Princeton University and Brooklyn Tech is another attraction.

TO CAPTAIN TRACK TEAM.

Colgate Cinderpath Athletes Elect Van Bree Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Ivan Van Bree of Buffalo was elected Captain of the Colgate track team for the coming season at a meeting of the team this morning. Van Bree is a member of the class of 1921 and has won his letter as a member of the varsity for three years.

The squad this afternoon completed its first week of practice by a long run in the snow on the wooden outdoor track. Beginning next week, however, Coach Jack O'Rourke, the famous Olympic sprint champion of 1912, will confine the men to the gymnasium for the greater part of the daily workout.

Bouts at Pioneer Club Tonight.

The Pioneer Sporting Club will hold its first week-end show this evening. An attractive card, including a fifteen-round bout and a ten-round contest, has been arranged by Matchmaker Charlie Doesserick. The principal event will bring together Kewpie Collendar, St. Paul bantamweight, and Barry Hill of the west side. In the ten-round contest the principals will be Frankie Edwards of the east side and Irish Johnny Curtin of Jersey City.

QUAKER SWIMMERS WIN DUAL CONTEST

U. of P. Tank Experts Are Victors in Six Events—City College Takes Polo Game.

Swimmers from the University of Pennsylvania met their rivals in the same sphere of sport from the College of the City of New York last night in the natatorium here. The Quaker City aggregation won by a score of 44 to 6.

Of the seven events on the program the visitors took six, the seventh, a water polo match, being won by the local collegians by a score of 33 to 8. No intercollegiate records were bettered, but more than one was approached. Armstrong, Shields and Kohler of the University of Pennsylvania team won most of the points for the Red and Blue, the two former taking two firsts each, and the last, one.

Armstrong took the lead in the fifty-yard event and held it throughout, and in the fancy dive he again managed to get the edge on his competitors with a running jackknife, embodying a turn and a half. Edward Shields, formerly an Olympic contestant and intercollegiate record holder, had things all his own way in the 220-yard event, and also was first in the 100-yard swim, but was obliged to extend himself because of the speed shown by his teammate, Rambou.

In the first half of the water polo match the local collegians rolled up a score of 15, to 2 for U. of P., and that without great trouble. In the second period the local swimmers added 18 points to their score, while Penn tallied 6 more. The plunge for distance was keenly contested, Kohler of Penn winning with a reach of 72 feet, while Siegal of C. C. N. Y. and Barst of Penn tied at 69.6 feet.

The summary:

50-Yard Dash—Won by Armstrong, U. of Pa.; Mottyr, U. of Pa., second; Ashworth, C. C. N. Y., third. Time—0:27 4-5.
Fancy Dive—Won by Armstrong, U. of Pa., 97.5; Weener, U. of Pa., second, 67.1; Haas, C. C. N. Y., third, 62.2.
220 Yards—Won by Shields, U. of Pa.; Rambon, U. of Pa., second; Lehrman, C. C. N. Y., third. Time 2:46 2-5.
Plunge for Distance—Won by Kohler, U. of Pa., 72 feet; Siegel, C. C. N. Y., and Barst, U. of Pa., tied at 69.6 feet.
100 Yards—Won by Shields, U. of Pa.; Rambon, U. of Pa., second; Levin, C. C. N. Y., third. Time—1:00 4-5.
Relay—Won by U. of Pa.
Water Polo—Won by C. C. N. Y. Score—C. C. N. Y., 33; U. of Pa., 8.

TO SPLIT ATHLETIC BODY.

Members of Southern Collegiate Board Favor Two Groups.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 3.—That a split in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, which convenes in annual session at Gainesville, Fla., Dec. 10, is imminent, was indicated today when it was learned that a number of the larger colleges and universities are advocating the formation of an association that would exclude many of the smaller denominational and agricultural colleges as well as those institutions which have opposed the freshman or one-year rule.

The S. I. A. A. is the most unwieldy of any of the big sectional athletic conferences inasmuch as it includes various schools of unequal student body, making it difficult to provide legislation to apply to all classes and sections equally.

The proposal is similar to the action taken in 1915 by the universities of Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina toward forming a Southern university conference. The war changed the plans for such an organization, however, but a call has been issued to the delegations representing these institutions to convene at Gainesville two days prior to the S. I. A. A. convention to discuss further interest of the organization.

COWARD IS VICTOR IN SQUASH BATTLE

Defeats Bull in Hard-Hitting Contest of National Fall Scratch Tournament.

WINNER PLAYS GOULD TODAY

Will Meet Columbia Club Courts Expert in Semi-Final Round—Mixsell and Fink Advance.

No upset of the present squash tennis season has been so unexpected as that of yesterday afternoon, in the Fall scratch tournament of the National Squash Tennis Association on the courts of the Columbia Club, when Thomas Coward, a comparative newcomer in the game, defeated one of its outstanding stars in the person of C. M. Bull, Jr., of the Squash Club. Coward played the game to some extent while he was at Yale, but this is his first year in tournament play in metropolitan squash. In fact, the current event at the Columbia Club is said to be his first tournament.

The Yale man's victory over the player who won last year's Fall tournament was clearly earned, too. It was not that Bull was off form, although he made more errors, especially in knocking the ball into the tell-tale, than he usually does, but it was Coward's hard hitting that won. His smashing not only earned him clean-cut placements, but frequently caught Bull so far out of position that the errors followed inevitably.

Coward's victory lands him in the semi-final round, wherein he will meet Jay Gould of the Columbia Club this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Gould gained his semi-final bracket by defeating A. W. Riley of the Princeton Club by scores of 15—6, 15—9. Riley played good squash, applying a plentitude of steam to his shots, but he was beaten by Gould's superior court tactics, as revealed principally in a puzzling change of pace. In the other half of the draw, H. R. Mixsell of the Princeton Club and E. J. Fink of the Crescent A. C. came through to the semi-finals and will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Mixsell Wins Close Battle.

Mixsell defeated D. S. Baker of the Yale Club after a close battle in three games, scored 15—9, 10—15, 15—11. The result had been anticipated but Baker put up an able argument and the match was replete with brilliant rallies. Fink also played true to form in defeating John Taylor. After making a fight for the first game, which he lost at 15—12, Taylor made a good pull-up in the second game from 1—11 to 7—11, but Fink held the upper hand from then on and won handily at 15—8.

The scores of the Coward-Bull match were 5—15, 18—13, 15—13 in the former's favor. Bull started with his customary speed and confidence, while Coward did not find his stroke so early; it was not until the second and third games that he hit the ball with the tremendous force that finally gave him the decision. Coward led at 4—1 and 4—2 in the first game, but Bull, on his next hand-in, collected nine straight aces for a score of 11—4. He then ran the game out with the loss of but one more point, and at that stage of the proceedings there was probably none in the good-sized gallery who would have wagered a Mexican peseta on Coward's chances.

But the Yale man started to take chances in the second game, hitting with greater force and freedom and utilizing the angles with marked cleverness. He took the lead at the start and held it to 13—all. Coward led at 7—2 and 8—3, but Bull then worked up to 7—8. Coward continued to set the pace with Bull close upon his heels until, with the score at 10—13, Bull utilized his hand-in to set the game at 13 with three fine aces. He did not score another point, however. Coward ran the count to 17—13, his aces including two splendid around-the-court shots, and then scored the game point on a tremendous smash an inch or two above the tell-tale. It was fine squash all through this game, and stirred the gallery to repeated applause.

Keeps Lead to Finish.

Coward was never headed in the rubber. He led at 6—1, 8—2 and later at 11—5 and 13—5. Bull's expected triumph never eventuated. He played a hard and well calculated game, but Coward's cyclonic smashes found him unprepared. Coward, leading at 14—8, missed on the match point, and it was hand-out. Bull then opened fire in his final effort to avert disaster. He played magnificently and drew up to 12—14. Coward took the service and promptly lost it again. Bull added another ace and it was 13—14. But Coward gained the next point for his hand-in and, on the final point of the match, forced Bull to hit into the tell-tale.

The summaries:

Fourth Round—Thomas Coward, Yale Club, defeated C. M. Bull Jr., Squash Club, 5—15, 18—13, 15—13; Jay Gould, Columbia Club, defeated A. W. Riley, Princeton Club, 15—6, 15—9; H. R. Mixsell, Princeton Club, defeated D. S. Baker, Yale Club, 15—9, 10—15, 15—11; E. J. Fink, Crescent A. C., defeated John Taylor, Princeton Club, 15—12, 15—8.

MURPHY AT THE HELM.

Becomes Graduate Manager of W. and J. Football Team.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 3.—Announcement was made by Washington and Jefferson athletic authorities today that Robert M. Murphy had been engaged as graduate manager of football and basketball at the institution for the season of 1921, succeeding Ulius P. Miller, who has surrendered the work which he took up last Spring when John H. Murdoch Jr. resigned. It was specified, however, that Miller was to continue as director of basketball during the season which will open shortly, and preparations for which are well under way.

Murphy will not take charge of basketball until one year from now, but assumes his football duties at once. Miller took up the football work reluctantly following Murdoch's retirement, and asked to be relieved as soon as possible at the close of the recent gridiron season. Murphy, in assuming the graduate managerial reins, renews activities that carried him through eleven seasons during a period when the Presidents reached the climax of their football endeavors.

The first and foremost task confronting the new manager will be the selection of a coach for next season, Dave Morrow having given notice that he will not be an applicant for 1921. Larry Bankshart, former Colgate coach, has sent word that he will not return to the game as a coach and consequently he is eliminated. Others of equal prominence, however, have been communicated with. Murphy will call a meeting of the 'Varsity players next week for the selection of a captain for 1921. Stein is practically certain to be named. On the schedule for next season, Pitt, Lehigh and West Virginia are the only certain games thus far.

All-Hallows on Gridiron Today.

The All-Hallows Institute football eleven will close its first gridiron season this afternoon with a game against Jamaica High School on the latter's field. The contest is scheduled to start at 2:30 o'clock. In a series of five games played this year the All-Hallows eleven has scored two victories.

Cincinnati to Play Pitt.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 3.—Karl Davis, graduate manager of athletics of the University of Pittsburgh, announced today that Pitt had opened relations with the University of Cincinnati, and that next year the Queen City institution would meet the Panthers on the gridiron here on Oct. 15.

Gridiron Stars Report for Basketball at Columbia

The prospects for Columbia's basketball team were considerably brightened yesterday when two of the stars of the football squad reported for practice with the varsity five. Harris and Pulleyn, quarterback and end, respectively, on the eleven, joined the squad. It was stated, however, that Johnson, one of the basketball stars of last season, would not be able to play on the varsity at present, as he is ineligible owing to his studies. Pulleyn played forward and Harris guard, and the first team proceeded to win an easy practice game from the scrubs by a score of 39 to 9.

'FAMILY DOCTOR' IS WHAT YALE NEEDS

Alumni Weekly, Commenting on Football Situation, Says Specialist Is Not Necessary.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 3.—"What Yale football needs is the family doctor," declared The Yale Alumni Weekly today in a general review of the football season at the university. The Weekly has been receiving the opinions of others on football conditions, but struck out for itself in suggesting causes and effects.

"In our opinion," said The Weekly, "Yale football does not need a professional specialist to put it on its feet again; the family doctor will respond if called. And by this we mean that, while Harvard and Princeton have been building up home coaching schools these last few years, Yale has struck blindly out for miracle makers, and has forgotten the experience of the days when Yale football was great. * * * The old Yale coaching system was not built up around any one man nor was any individual the boss of it; it was a school of Yale football science under one field coach to be sure (and it did not seem to make any difference who he was), but comprising all of the knowledge and special talents that a long procession of tried coaches could contribute, continuous and kept up to date by regular infusion of new blood."

After referring to Yale teams as fighting ones The Weekly says: "Yale teams can play as good football as ever if they are taught right. And why aren't they?"

LEHIGH LETTERS AWARDED.

Sixteen Varsity Football Players Are Given the Coveted "L."

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Dec. 3.—The Lehigh University Athletic Committee today awarded the coveted "L" to sixteen players of the football team and ratified the swimming schedule. The men to get their letter were: Captain Buzz Herrington, D. Larkin, L. Douglas, A. Cusick, R. McCarthy, H. Goldman, A. Maginnes, R. Good, H. Gulick, C. Henselman, W. Springsteen, H. Tore and G. Savaria. All of these men played twelve complete quarters during the season and participated in the Lehigh-Lafayette game.

Letters were also recommended to Frank Frain and Mike Wilson, although they did not compete in the required number of periods. Frain, however, was injured in the game with West Virginia University, when he sustained a dislocated shoulder, while Wilson suffered from illness during the early part of the season.

The swimming schedule is as follows:

Jan. 8, Stevens at Stevens; 15, Rutgers at New Brunswick; 22, Army at West Point; Feb. 12, Amherst at Bethlehem; 19, Johns Hopkins at Bethlehem; 26, Swarthmore a Swarthmore; March 5, intercollegiates at New Brunswick.

FEW SEATS FOR STUDENTS.

Committee Will Consider Public's Wish to See Football Game.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 3.—The student body and alumni of the University of California have been awarded 6,168 of the 32,000 seats at Tournament Park, Pasadena, where the California eleven will meet the Ohio State football team New Year's Day in the annual East versus West game, it was announced today. This number is much smaller than that desired. The association officials, however, said they must consider the general public and could make no larger allotment.

Two sections of 2,200 seats have been set aside as a cheering division for men students only. Alumni from the big ten conference colleges have made arrangements for seats in an Ohio State rooting section.

HAMILTON ELECTS FOWLER.

Star Playing Wins for Junior Captaincy of Up-State Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON COLLEGE, CLINTON, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Richard S. Fowler of Dayton, Ohio, was elected captain of the 1921 football team of this institution here this afternoon.

Although Fowler will only be a junior next season, his election came as the result of stellar playing all season. He was seriously injured in the Amherst game, but was able to take part in the Union game two weeks ago and showed up very well while he was in.

Fowler has had much football experience. Before entering Hamilton he played with the Steele High School team of Dayton and ever since he has been at Hamilton he has held down a regular position on the 'Varsity. Early in the season he was shifted from tackle to centre.

TO LEAD BROWN ELEVEN.

Johnstone, Right Tackle, Is Elected Captain of 1921 Team.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 3.—George C. Johnstone, '22, right tackle on the Brown football team for the last three years, was elected captain of the 1921 eleven at a meeting of nineteen "B" men today. Johnstone was opposed for the election by Shurtleff, centre, and Shupert, a halfback.

The new captain hails from New York City and prepared for college at Hamilton Institute, where he played right tackle three years. He entered Brown in 1918 as a member of the United States naval unit at the university.

HARD GAMES FOR W. VA.

Pitt, Lehigh, W. and L., Rutgers and W. and J. on Football List.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 3.—Five football games have been scheduled for the West Virginia eleven for next Fall, namely, Pitt at Pittsburgh early in October, Lehigh at South Bethlehem the Saturday following, Washington and Lee at Charleston Nov. 5, Rutgers at New Brunswick Nov. 19, Washington and Jefferson at Morgantown on Thanksgiving Day.

Johnstone Is Elected Captain.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 3.—George C. Johnstone of New York was today elected captain of the Brown football team for the season of 1921. Johnstone has played tackle for the last two years.

OHIO STATE TEAM IN FOOTBALL DRILL

Buckeye's Eleven Begins Preparation for Game with California at Pasadena.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 3.—Ohio State's championship eleven trotted out on Ohio Field here this evening to indulge in a practice session in preparation for the game between Ohio State and the University of California, to be played at Pasadena, Cal., on New Year's Day.

Coach Jack Wilce sent three teams through a light drill, consisting largely of signals and kicking. Every regular on the Scarlet and Gray eleven reported for duty in perfect condition. Wilce has planned to bring the team along slowly, making their practice sessions more strenuous each night until the players are ready for several stiff scrimmages before entraining for Pasadena on Dec. 17. Ohio Field is almost as bright as day under the glare of eight spotlights of 2,000 watts each.

Considerable regret was expressed here today because Harvard was not able to meet Ohio State on a home-and-home basis. The Buckeyes would be perfectly willing to go to Cambridge next year if Harvard would come to Columbus in 1922, when the new Ohio Stadium will be opened, with a seating capacity of 75,000.

It was said today that Ohio State will never meet any Eastern team on anything but a home-and-home basis. Buckeye supporters point out that Ohio State has the same prestige in the Middle West that Harvard has in the East. On this basis they declare that the only fair way would be a home game for each team.

LONGER SEASON PROPOSED.

Western Conference Football Officials to Consider Changes.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Football coaches of the Western Conference universities will meet here tomorrow to draft schedules for the 1921 season, and to discuss rule changes which will be presented for action at the meeting of the National Intercollegiate Committee in New York next month.

The proposal to extend the season from seven to nine games will also be considered. The prolongation of the season, if the proposal to lengthen it is adopted, will be accomplished by starting the 1921 campaign a week earlier and ending it the Saturday after Thanksgiving instead of the preceding Saturday. The proposed nine-game season is certain to find opposition tomorrow, as some of the coaches believe the seven-game program is long enough.

As regards the schedules, indications were tonight that gridiron relations between Minnesota and Chicago and Northwestern and Chicago would be renewed. Dr. Harry L. Williams, coach of the University of Minnesota eleven, said he hoped to arrange a game with Chicago, the first between these rivals since 1918. Illinois, Michigan, Ohio State and Chicago were said to be sought as opponents for the big Eastern universities, but the conference, it is expected, will not sanction proposals for games unless return dates are agreed upon. Princeton has yielded to Chicago in this regard, and will play here in 1922. The Maroon will invade Princeton for a game next October.

Changes in the rules will be suggested tomorrow, but they will probably be of minor importance, according to Coaches Yost of Michigan, Jones of Iowa and Williams of Minnesota. Elimination of the goal after touchdown will be one of the subjects to come up. Several coaches tonight expressed the opinion that the goal after touchdown was unnecessary, and, inasmuch as it sometimes meant victory or defeat, was not a fair indication of strength.

The Faculty members of the conference will assign dates tomorrow for the indoor and outdoor championship track meets. The indoor event, it is expected, will be awarded to Northwestern University, while the outdoor probably will be awarded to Chicago.

Basketball coaches also will convene tomorrow to arrange for the season, which opens Jan. 3.

PRO FOOTBALL TODAY.

Canton Bulldogs and Buffalo All-Americans Meet Here.

Professional football will have its inning at the Polo Grounds this afternoon when the Canton Bulldogs and Buffalo All-Americans, including in their line-ups some of the past stars of intercollegiate football, will clash. These teams have been playing during a great part of the football season now about to close and may be expected to show both team work and individual skill in the game today. The Buffalo team arrived here yesterday and had a workout at the Polo Grounds. Jim Thorpe, captain of the Canton eleven, arrived here Thursday, but his players did not arrive until last night.

Thorpe will be in the game this afternoon, playing one of the halfback positions for the Canton eleven. In the same backfield will be seen two other Indians, Guyon and Calac, both of whom starred at Carlisle. In fact, all the players of the two squads are known by reputation to football followers in this section, with the possible exception of Griggs, quarterback of the Canton team. He was a star at Texas University. All the others have been drawn from the ranks of Eastern or Middle West college teams of other years. The league, of which the two teams are members, has a rule against using any player who has not completed his college career.

Four of the players who were picked last year by Walter Camp for his All-American team will take part in today's game. On the Buffalo team are Heinie Miller of Pennsylvania, and Youngstrom of Dartmouth. The Buffalo team includes Higgins of Penn State and Henry, former Washington and Jefferson star. Other former college stars now playing with either Buffalo or Canton are Lowe of Fordham, Buck of Wisconsin, O'Connor of Georgetown, Feeney of Notre Dame, Edwards of Notre Dame, Shelton of Cornell, Thornhill of Pittsburgh, Brace of Brown, Lud Wray of Pennsylvania, Little of Pennsylvania, Hughitt and Smith of Michigan, Weldon of Lafayette and Anderson of Colgate.

The game will be started at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of officials who have had much experience in the intercollegiate ranks.

WILL NOT TRADE HOOPER.

Veteran Outfielder to Be Made Captain of Red Sox Again.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Harry Hooper will lead the Red Sox on the field again next season, if he returns to the game, it was announced at the club's headquarters today. The statement that the field captaincy was at his call was made in reply to a report that the veteran outfielder was to be traded to the White Sox or Yankees.

Blum Wins at Handball.

In a nip-and-tuck struggle George Blum defeated Alex Bitters in the handball tournament at the Franklin A. C. of Westchester last night by scores of 16-21, 21-19 and 22-20. Bitters appeared to outclass Blum in the first game and won easily, but Blum showed improvement thereafter and was much more accurate in his shots.

Coogan Is Winner of Bout.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Mel Coogan of Brooklyn was given the decision over Harry Pierce of this city at the end of a 12-round bout here tonight.

NASSAU FOOTBALL PLANS TAKE SHAPE

Chicago to be Among Newcomers on Princeton's 1921 Gridiron Schedule.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 3.—Although Princeton's football schedule has not yet been officially announced for the 1921 season, it is generally understood that a number of new teams will be on the list. For the first time old Nassau will indulge in an intersectional battle when the Chicago eleven plays at Princeton.

The exact date of this game has not been announced, but it is likely to come two weeks before the Harvard game, which will be played at the Palmer Stadium on Nov. 5. Yale will, as usual, close the Princeton football season, and the Tigers go to New Haven in 1921 since Yale played here this year.

The team most likely to open Princeton's season is Swarthmore, which played the curtain raiser with the Tigers this Fall. Head Coach Roper of Princeton was formerly coach at Swarthmore and it was largely in deference to his wishes that the Pennsylvania college found its place on this year's schedule. Rumor also has it that Colgate will return as one of Princeton's football guests for next year. The Maroon played at Princeton in 1919, but could not fit in on either of Princeton's two open dates this Fall.

The University of Chicago will probably be the Tigers' third opponent. Annapolis will be the host of the Orange and Black in the second of the home and home series, the first game of which was staged at Princeton this year. The last opponent before the Harvard game is likely to be a newcomer, although the West Virginia eleven has occupied that position for two seasons, and may do so again.

There has been much discussion as to the possibility of a game with the University of Virginia on the Princeton campus, and many would like to see a resumption of relations between these two universities. Before the war, Virginia was often on Princeton's football list, and the Southerners were regular opponents of the Princeton track team in a Spring dual meet, neither of which fixture has as yet been resumed.

Princeton is already making plans for the game with Chicago and her coaches and players are studying the Western style of play. Don Lourie, who ran the team at quarterback this Fall, saw Stagg's pupils in their last game of the season while most of the Princeton players were occupying sideline seats at the Yale-Harvard game at the Bowl.

CRESCENTS WIN ON COURT.

Defeat Pratt Institute in Basketball Game by 41 to 22.

The Crescent A. C. basketball five opened its season on its home court in Brooklyn last night with a victory over the team from Pratt Institute by a score of 41 to 22. The New Mooners were able to run the score up with ease after the first ten minutes and took advantage of an opportunity to try out nearly every man on the squad. This resulted in numerous substitutions.

Stannard and Parmele were the stars for the winning quintet, while Leary and Kruser did good work for the Pratt five. The score at the end of the first half was 21 to 11 in favor of the Crescent team.

The line-up:

CRESCENT A.C. (41).		PRATT INST. (22).
Stannard	L. F.	Leary
Parmele	R. F.	Schafran
McTigue	C.	Kruser
Nicklas	L. G.	Munigle
Ashmead	R. G.	Larnenzo

Field goals—For Crescent A. C.: Stannard (4), Parmele (4), McTigue (2), Nicklas (4), Kinney, Griffin (3), Peck. For Pratt Institute: Leary, Schafran (2), Kruser (3), Munigle, Puteuro, Crawford. Goals from foul—Crescent: Kinney, Pratt, Schafran (3), Kruser, Crawford.

QUINTET MAKES PROGRESS.

N. Y. U. Basketball Squad Improves Rapidly During First Week.

New York University's basketball squad has been making fast progress in its one week of practice under the direction of Coach Ed Thorp. The Violet instructor has found such an abundance of material with which to work that he has had to cut down the number of candidates.

There are really only two regular places on the local quintet that are being fought for. The three veterans of last year's championship team take care of both guard places and one forward, and there is little chance that any of them will be displaced. A hard fight is being waged for these two empty places, however, and Thorp will have his hands full in picking the best man.

In the practice games this week Robertson, last year's freshman Captain, has had the call on the pivot position. He is a big man and fits in well with the other players. The fight for the vacant forward berth is being fiercely carried on between Holman, a substitute on last year's team, and Edelstein. The former is one of the best players in the uptown school, but he is very small. Edelstein is larger, is an experienced player, and has shown that he can work with the others.

Thorp has not been at all gentle in the workouts of the week, and the men are showing marked improvement as a result. A half hour of preliminary practice is all the warming up the men get before the coach calls a game, in which the varsity, which has consisted of Goeller and Holman or Edelstein, forwards; Robertson, centre, and Captain Baker and Delaney, guards, is then opposed by a succession of three or four different quintets.

GAME FOR CITY COLLEGE.

Basketball Five Will Play Opening Game Tonight Against Alumni.

After a complete rest yesterday in preparation for its first game, the City College varsity basketball team will go into action tonight against the alumni five at the college gymnasium on St. Nicholas Terrace. As a preliminary to this game the yearling five will tackle the sophomore court team.

The varsity five will consist of Captain Feigin and Raskin, guards; Murray, centre, and Krin and Lamm, forwards. With the exception of Murray, who was kept out of the game last year by illness, all the members of the team were regulars on last year's team which lost but two games out of the seventeen played. The alumni line-up will present Captain Holman, 1918, and Fliegal, leader of the 1920 team, at the guard positions; Schmidt, '19, at centre, and Ball, '20, and Projan, the captain of the team in 1919, as forwards. Projan, Ball, Fliegal and Holman were members of the All-American basketball teams when in college. In addition, Lipton, star forward last year; Saltman, '15, and Lefkowitz, '17, will be on hand for the alumni. The game is expected to give Coach Holman an accurate line on his men so that the faults that crop up during the game may be corrected before the Princeton game next week.

Everett High Accepts Challenge.

EVERETT, Wash., Dec. 3.—Reply to the challenge of the Haverhill (Mass.) High School football team to a game with the Everett High School eleven was sent today, expressing readiness to meet Haverhill on any neutral grounds, preferably in California. Haverhill wants to play at Everett. The Everett team is the champion high school football team of the West.

Tinker to Manage Florida Club.

ORLANDO, Fla., Dec. 3.—Joe Tinker, former shortstop of the Chicago Cubs, former manager of the Cincinnati Reds and President of the Columbus (Ohio) Baseball Club, has signed a contract to manage the Orlando club of the Florida State League for the 1921 season.

You Know How Good a Shave Should Be

A good shave is something more than the removal of a beard.

When you enter a Terminal Barber Shop for your shave, of course you expect to find faultless equipment and skilled barbers.

But beyond that you can anticipate a luxurious relaxation—a sense of physical and mental well-being. And as you recline contentedly in your chair you can be anywhere in the world your fancy suggests, only subtly conscious of the hand of velvet that is performing the service you require.

This is only by way of saying that we understand and appreciate the elements that go to make up the intimate personal service we render—in a few words just this: all those things that you have always known you had a right to expect; and besides that those other things you may have dreamed of but never realized were possible.

This is the Terminal Perfect Shave:

1. You step into an immaculate shop and relax in a roomy, comfortable chair.
2. You are courteously approached by a skilled barber who has been thoroughly schooled in Terminal methods.
3. Your barber carefully cleanses his hands with an odorless disinfectant soap.
4. At a glance he perceives the peculiarities of your beard.
5. He takes from a sealed envelope a sterilized shaving brush and on it places an individual portion of Mennen Shaving Cream, noted everywhere for its unusual potency.
6. He works up a copious, fluffy lather with the brush alone, softening the beard effectually without that irritating and unnecessary "rubbing-in."
7. With a gentle, velvety touch he removes the beard with a keen-edged razor that has first been sterilized in boiling water.
8. He applies cleansing, stimulating hot and cold sterilized towels to your face and gives a short massage, using a highly refined cold cream.
9. He applies a soothing, full-strength lotion of your own preference.
10. He dries your face thoroughly with a sterilized towel of finest linen.
11. He takes from an envelope a sterilized, surgically-clean comb and brush and carefully arranges your hair as you want it.
12. You step from the chair realizing that you have really enjoyed your Terminal shave and that the unique and unusual Terminal method is fully justified by the results.

Truly the Terminal Perfect Shave is extraordinary; yet it is available to you at an ordinary price.

SUBTREASURY HERE TO RETAIN OLD NAME

Houston Discontinues Its Former Functions, but Will Preserve It for Historic Interest.

TO HOUSE FEDERAL OFFICES

Duties of Subtreasuries Will Be Taken Over by the Federal Reserve, Mint and Assay Offices.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Secretary of the Treasury Houston issued an order today discontinuing the New York Subtreasury after Dec. 6, as required by act of Congress, but at the same time in a statement to the press he announced that the building at Wall and Nassau Streets, because of its historic interest, would continue to be known by its old name and would be used to house various Treasury offices.

The act which directed the discontinuance of the New York Subtreasury also directed the discontinuance of the subtreasuries at Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, St. Louis, San Francisco, Cincinnati and Chicago, and the abolition of the office of Assistant Treasurer of the United States in each of these cities.

In connection with his action concerning the New York Subtreasury building Secretary Houston issued the following statement:

"The Treasury regards the New York Subtreasury Building as a historic public monument which should remain notwithstanding the discontinuance of the New York Subtreasury. With this in mind, the Subtreasury Building at New York will continue to be a Treasury building, in the custody of the Superintendent of the New York Assay Office, and will still be known as the New York Subtreasury Building. As already announced, arrangements have been made to transfer to the mints and assay offices, including particularly the New York Assay Office, and to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York certain of the duties and functions heretofore performed by the New York Subtreasury. Space in the Subtreasury Building has been made available for the time being to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, as fiscal agent of the United States, for the purpose of carrying on exchanges of coin and other business heretofore performed by the Subtreasury."

Text of the Official Order.

The order is contained in the following circular:

"To all concerned:

"1. The Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation act approved May 29, 1920, provides in part as follows, with respect to the discontinuance of the Subtreasury of the United States:

"'Section 3595 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as amended, providing for the appointment of an Assistant Treasurer of the United States at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, St. Louis, San Francisco, Cincinnati and Chicago, and all laws or parts of laws so far as they authorize the establishment or maintenance of offices of such Assistant Treasurers or of Subtreasuries of the United States are hereby repealed from and after July 1, 1921; and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to discontinue from and after such date or at such earlier date or dates as he may deem advisable, such subtreasuries and the exercise of all duties and functions by such Assistant Treasurers or their offices. The office of each Assistant Treasurer specified above and the services of any officers or any other employes assigned to duty at his office shall terminate upon the discontinuance of the functions of that office by the Secretary of the Treasury.'

"2. By virtue of the authority vested in the Secretary of the Treasury under the provisions of the act above quoted, I hereby discontinue the Subtreasury of the United States at New York and the exercise of all duties and functions by the Assistant Treasurer of the United States at said Subtreasury from and after the close of business on Monday, Dec. 6, 1920. Upon such discontinuance the office of the Assistant Treasurer of the United States at New York and the services of any and all officers or other employes assigned to duty at his office shall terminate in accordance with the statute.

"3. The Secretary of the Treasury has made provision, pursuant to the authority conferred by said act approved May 29, 1920, to transfer the duties and functions performed or authorized to be performed by the Assistant Treasurer at New York, or his office, to the Treasury of the United States and the Mints and Assay Office of the United States, and will utilize the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, acting as depositary or fiscal agent of the United States, for the purpose of performing certain of such duties and functions. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York will be prepared on and after Dec. 7, 1920, to handle exchanges of United States paper currency and United States coin pursuant to rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury. Upon the discontinuance of the Subtreasury at New York, outstanding gold certificates payable to order, issued by the Assistant Treasurer of the United States at New York, will be received for payment by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York or the Treasurer of the United States at Washington.

"D. F. HOUSTON,
"Secretary of the Treasury."

SETS EXAMPLE FOR GARLAND

Janitor Will Accept Fortune, Work, Smoke Good Cigars and Have Auto.

MALDEN, Mass., Dec. 3.—William R. Hanson, a janitor, was telling fellow employes at a drug store here today what he would do with the million dollars that Charles Garland of Buzzards Bay has refused when a postman gave him a letter that informed him he was heir to about $250,000. Unlike Garland, he said, he would take the money, but would stick to washing windows and sweeping floors, so that he would have something to do.

Between times he would smoke good cigars and have an automobile to take him into the country for week-ends. The estate, according to Hanson, was that of James Moore, an uncle, who died several years ago, leaving the property in trust for the use of his wife, with instructions that at her death it should be divided among seven relatives, among whom was Hanson. Mrs. Moore died recently and the estate had increased to nearly $2,000,000 through war-time investments.

FIGHT RATE RISE HERE.

State Officials to Raise Question of State Jurisdiction.

ALBANY, Dec. 3.—Deputy Attorney General Griffin and Counsel Hale of the Public Service Commission, Second District, conferred today regarding the attitude of the State in the injunction proceedings at Kingston tomorrow to restrain railroads operating within the State from increasing their passenger and baggage rates in intrastate traffic to conform to the interstate rates ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

After the conference a brief announcement was made that it had been decided to avoid raising any issues other than the question of State jurisdiction at tomorrow's court proceedings.

ENJOINS STATE IN FARE RISE.

Federal Court Restrains Wisconsin From Interfering.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 3.—A temporary injunction restraining the State from interfering with the putting into effect of the increase in passenger fares from 3 cents to 3.6, ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission for Jan. 15, was granted today by Judge F. E. Geiger in the Federal Court.

The injunction was asked by the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad.

THREE ROB MAIL TRAIN OUTSIDE MINNEAPOLIS

Bandits Get From $25,000 to $75,000, but Miss $500,000 Under Guard in Car Ahead.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 3.—Registered mail unofficially valued at from $25,000 to $75,000 was stolen today by three bandits who held up the mail car of the Mobridge-Minneapolis train on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad between Hopkins and Minneapolis. The bandits escaped.

It was learned later this afternoon that in the car ahead of the mail car $500,000 in cash was being transported under guard of two men, who had no knowledge of the mail robbery until the train reached the station here.

Three masked bandits entered the mail car just outside the city limits this morning, bound the crew, and escaped with 100 pieces of registered mail by jumping from the moving train.

The three clerks in the car were lying bound on the floor when the train stopped at the station. Police believe the bandits were picked up by an automobile after they jumped from the train.

AUTO BANDITS GET $177,000.

Lock Occupants of Ohio Bank in Room and Escape.

GOLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 3.—Five armed auto bandits, in a bold daylight robbery, secured $5,000 in cash, $3,000 in Liberty bonds and non-negotiable notes valued at $169,000 at the First National Bank of Grove City, twelve miles southwest of here, this morning and escaped after locking occupants of the bank in a room. Columbus police are in pursuit.

The bandits chose a time when the early morning cash deposits had been made and the village practically was deserted. They rushed into the bank, each holding revolvers in both hands. Otto Willert, president of the bank; his daughter Agnes, 20 years old; L. C. Riebel, cashier, and two depositors, facing the levelled revolvers, were backed into a small room and the door locked.

Police believe the bandits are those who recently robbed the bank at Kingston, near here, escaping with more than $100,000 in money and negotiable securities. The actual loss is put at $8,000.

CRIMINALS INVADE BOSTON.

Superintendent Warns Police Following Four Hold-Ups in One Night.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—In the wake of a night in which armed men held up three stores and a teamster, Superintendent of Police Crowley today warned the captain of the department to be alert for an invasion of criminals driven from other cities. His letter called attention to the prevalence of a crime wave throughout the country and ordered railroads, terminals, freight yards and other points watched and any suspects arrested at sight.

The holdups of last night were petty affairs so far as the amount of loot went, but in one the robber's disregard of life was shown in the shooting of a boy who made an outcry. The wound was a slight one.

$36,400 IN BONDS STOLEN.

Robbery in St. Louis Oct. 11 Made Public After Recovery of $14,500.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 3.—With the announcement today that $14,500 in Liberty bonds had been recovered in pawnshops, it became known that $36,400 in Liberty bonds were taken from American Railway Express Company shipments here on Oct. 11.

The police declared that pawnbrokers from whom they recovered the bonds told them that a man who said he was Bennett Smith pawned most of them. It is said a man of that name was employed at the express office as money clerk, and that he disappeared simultaneously with the bonds.

Smith is 36 years old, and came here from New Orleans in 1913.

INDIANA BANK IS HELD UP.

Six Bandits Get $6,000 in Ridgeville and Escape in Automobile.

RIDGEVILLE, Ind., Dec. 3.—Six men held up the Ridgeville State Bank shortly before noon today, seized approximately $6,000 in cash and escaped in an automobile.

Five of the men entered the building each armed with two revolvers, according to eye-witnesses. Three bank officials and two patrons were lined up against a wall and guarded by three of the band while the others collected all the money in the cash drawers and the vault.

The men escaped in a blue automobile. Ridgeville is near the Ohio State line.

15 YEARS FOR TRAIN ROBBER

Kieth Collins Pleads Guilty to Complicity in Big Hold-Up in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 3.—Kieth Collins pleaded guilty in the Federal District Court today to complicity in the recent robbery of a Chicago, Burlington & Quincy mail train at Council Bluffs, in which money and bonds estimated at more than $3,000,000 were taken.

Judge Martin J. Wade sentenced him to fifteen years in prison.

COURT RULES ON MILLINERY.

Women Attorneys Appearing Before It Must Remove Hats.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Women appearing officially before the Supreme Court of the State must do so with uncovered heads. Judge Jenney set this precedent today when Miss Sarah R. Singleton appeared to take the oath as an attorney at law. The court asked that she remove her hat and Hollis R. Bailey, Chairman of the bar examiners, informed the court that he had advised that it be worn in the absence of any custom or rule.

The court remarked that the precedent would be set, for the day at least, that women should appear without hats.

SEEK CHENEY TRUST FUND.

Creditors File Suit to Attach It for Their Benefit.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Announcing that Benjamin P. Cheney, the husband of Julia Arthur, the actress, had assets of only $60,000 to meet liabilities of $1,300,000, Allen F. Forbes, his trustee in bankruptcy, filed suit in the Supreme Court today to obtain for creditors Cheny's interest in a trust fund created by his father.

The income from this fund was said to be $32,000 a year.

Ends of the Earth Club Dinner.

The Ends of the Earth Club, started in 1903 by a group of artists and explorers, held its seventeenth annual dinner in the Savoy Hotel last evening. Among the members present were General John J. Pershing, Gutzon Borglum, Herbert Adams Gibbons, Edward J. Nally, Henry Fairfield Osborn and Charles Haskin Townsend. The invited guests included Professor Ray Chapman Andrews, Hamlin Garland and David S. Bispham. Poultney Bigelow presided.

Navy Drops Simplified Spelling.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Simplified spelling has been abolished in the navy, by an order from Secretary Daniels, which was made public here today. The order rescinds one issued in 1905 providing for the use of "thru" for "through" and other simplified forms.

FARMERS GET OPTION ON CITY MILK PLANT

Dairymen's League, Inc., Makes First Move Toward Entering Distributing Business Here.

TO BUY LEVY COMPANY

Funds for the Purchase to Be Sought From Dairy Farmers Throughout the State.

The first definite step of the Dairymen's League, Inc., which represents 88,000 dairy farmers, to enter the milk distributing business in New York City, discussed by the league officials for the last two years, was announced yesterday. The Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, Inc., has obtained an option for the purchase of the properties, equipment and business of the Levy Dairy Company, one of the largest wholesale milk dealers in this city. The Executive Committee of the league has been authorized to launch a campaign among farmers to raise sufficient money to make the purchase. It is announced that the farmers who have been selling milk to the Levy Dairy Company will receive the first chance to subscribe.

The realty holdings of the Levy Dairy Company consist of what is described as a model city milk station and pasteurizing plant at Avenue B and Nineteenth Street, this city, together with twenty-six milk shipping stations, leased and owned, in various parts of New York State and Pennsylvania.

League officials are confident that the money necessary to close the deal will be forthcoming in a short time, according to R. D. Cooper, President of the Dairymen's League. W. W. Hovey, General Manager of the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, said that the Levy plant in this city was a model in every way and had all up-to-date equipment. At the league offices it was said that the acquisition of the Levy Company's business is but one of a number of projects of the Dairymen's League in the carrying out of its plan to pool the milk of all members sold through the co-operative association.

Charles A. Weiant, formerly President of Borden's Farm Products Company, is the manager of city distribution for the Dairymen's League.

The Levy Company has been conducting a wholesale business for many years. It sells milk by the forty-quart can to stores, restaurants, hotels and small independent dealers, and also supplies bottled milk to grocery and delicatessen stores. It does not do a retail distributing business.

UNTERMYER IN STUTZ BOARD

Son of Allan A. Ryan's Attorney Made a Director.

Alvin Untermyer, a son of Samuel Untermyer, was elected yesterday a Director of the Stutz Motor Car Company of America. Mr. Untermyer is a lawyer and is aiding his father, who recently accepted Allan A. Ryan's invitation to assume control of the legal aspects of his financial affairs.

The election of the younger Untermyer to the Stutz Board was interpreted in Wall Street as designed to facilitate the work of the Untermyers in behalf of Mr. Ryan, whose troubles followed a corner in Stutz stock and Ryan's subsequent expulsion from the Stock Exchange.

WILSON EXPRESSES GRIEF.

Sends Sympathy on Death of Bay State Committeeman.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—President Wilson sent a telegram of sympathy today to Miss Helen Coughlin of Fall River, Mass., upon the death of her brother, Dr. John W. Coughlin, who for ten years was Democratic National Committeeman from Massachusetts.

"Allow me to say with sincere distress," said the President's message, "I have heard of the death of your brother, Dr. Coughlin, who was a true and valued friend of mine and, I always believed, a conscientious and most serviceable public servant. We shall all miss him sadly."

ADVICE TO RETAILERS.

Urged to Buy With Judgment to Meet Their Spring Demands.

A resolution commending the buying and price policies of retailers during recent months, and advising the continued practice of intelligent conservatism, has been issued with the approval of the Board of Directors of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. The resolution was framed by the Executive Committee of the organization after a comparison of personal views and those obtained through inquiry from members. While stressing the necessity of individual action, the association executives point out the need of keeping the wheels of industry turning and therefore advise careful thought in the matter of being prepared with Spring merchandise.

The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas it is the belief of the Executive Committee of the National Retail Dry Goods Association that in the present market situation some expression of the considered opinion of the members of this committee may be welcomed by their fellow-members of the association, and

"Whereas with full recognition of the complexities of the situation and without intention to offer their own opinion as in any way a substitute for that individual judgment which every merchant must exercise in the solution of his own problems, the members of the Executive Committee have carefully canvassed the situation, and

"Whereas the committee believes that retail distributers during recent months have followed a wisely conservative course in their buying and have been fair in their price readjustments, be it

"Resolved, That in the opinion of this committee retail distributers should continue to practice an intelligent conservatism until market conditions show greater signs of stability, but, be it further

"Resolved, That retail distributers should be reminded that the world is turning on its axis; that the underlying soundness of American prosperity is beyond question; that life, and business, the servant of life, will continue; that there is no excuse for extreme pessimism or for placing upon the industrial and commercial activities of the nation the chill hand of suspended animation, and that therefore retailers as well as manufacturers must give careful thought to the need of being prepared to meet the Spring demands of their public."

It was explained that the action of the committee was taken at about the time several large retailers announced their readiness to make Spring purchases, from which the trade as a rule was refraining in the hope of still lower prices. Danger has been seen in too long a delay in settling upon the needs of the new season, from the stoppage of industry with the resultant unemployment. This the stores wish to avoid, retailers state, although they are equally desirous of obtaining rock bottom prices. So far, Spring purchases have been small, and the general tendency has been to see how public consumption will improve with the lower prices offered. The January sales are commonly expected to furnish this information.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ....7¾@8% for the best names
Thursday ....7¾@8% for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gray Goods Slowing Up.

The local gray goods market yesterday was still in the process of slowing up from the active trading of the forepart of the week. Printcloths again held the centre of attention, and the sales included December-January lots of 39-inch 72-76s at 10½ cents, 39-inch 68-72s at 9½ cents, and 38½-inch 64-60s at 8¼ cents. Not much was done in the other constructions, although some nearby business was transacted in 5-yard sheetings at 7½ cents.

⁂

Merchant Tailor Readjustment.

The opinion is held in the local clothing trade that the small merchant tailors may accomplish a quicker readjustment to new price levels than is possible in the manufacturing line. The reason given is that high labor costs are holding back the producers of ready-to-wear, and some time must be spent in persuading the operatives to accept a liquidation of their rates. The time spent in such readjustment by the tailors will be less, it is thought, through having to deal with two or three workmen only.

Wrapping Paper Keeps High.

Wrapping paper remains a problem with retail-store men, who are considerably puzzled over its uncanny ability to stay high in price despite the lowered cost of all other supplies. Paper that used to cost four and five cents a pound advanced to four times those figures and holds its position firmly. Cardboard boxes, cartons and other paper products have been reduced, but these price changes seemingly have in nowise affected the strength of wrapping paper. An investigation has been undertaken by certain retail groups with the object of unraveling the mystery.

Clothing Reductions Greater.

Clothing wholesalers who have urged upon their customers the necessity of prompt liquidation were gratified yesterday to see, as one man expressed it, a "real start made in cutting clothing costs to the consumer." Retail announcements told of sweeping reductions of from 33 1-3 to 50 per cent. which had about them the air of sincerity, understood to be somewhat lacking in previous retail statements. Since this new wave of price slashing has come along before the holidays, wholesalers see the possibility of a much keener competition after Christmas that will lower prices to points where consumer purchases will grow greatly in volume and relieve the industry of stagnation.

Hard Coal Receipts Gaining.

The anthracite coal shortage is becoming less acute in this vicinity, Steward's Journal will say today, by reason of the extra tonnage diverted East since the close of lake navigation. Demand shows no relaxation in the case of company coal or independent coal that is available at a moderate premium, but none of the local dealers will now consent to pay exorbitant prices. A few weeks ago some of them were paying up to $15 a ton for prepared sizes. The bituminous market shows no signs of an early recovery from the period of depression which set in a month ago. Whether prices will go still lower is anybody's guess.

Preferred an English Contract.

A leading commission merchant told of a conversation he had with a buyer from Germany who expressed a desire to purchase American goods in preference to English merchandise, but preferred a contract "made in London." He recounted several unsatisfactory bargains made with American exporters, and was especially disappointed upon learning that some of the goods he had ordered were shipped to another customer willing to pay a higher price. "Under such circumstances," he said, "our business must go to England, though we prefer and our customers prefer American goods, as there is still considerable feeling against England as a result of the war."

Not Many Sales Reasons Left.

The general opinion among retailers is that next month will see an orgy of sales unequaled in store history, and the predicament facing many merchants is how to get a punch into their announcements during that period. The situation, it is said, is something like that of the storekeeper who was forced to get out something better than his rival's claim of the "greatest sale in history." His selection was "greater than the greatest sale in history." There are very few sales reasons at present, it is explained, which have not become shopworn to the public, and as the time of real sacrifice sales approaches the hunt grows more fevered to find a note of appeal that will interest the consumer.

Call for Sweaters Reviving.

Latest reports from the novelty knit goods manufacturing field say that there has been something of a revival in the demand for women's sweaters in wool and fibre silk. These goods have been quiet for some time, and even now they are moving at prices considerably under the levels of a few months ago. The mere fact that they are moving again, however, is sufficient to lift much of the gloom which pervaded the trade. The really active business in the trade continues to be done on brushed wool scarfs, particularly in the popular price ranges. Growing favor is reported for scarfs made with a narrow belt attached to the bottom of the scarf in the centre back and tying around the waist.

Where Does Silk Come From?

The question many silk manufacturers have been asking themselves since values dropped is where the large amount of goods consumed in the last six months came from. The trade attracted more speculators, perhaps, than any other line, but it was commonly thought that large stocks were not carried by the middlemen, since they were making quick turnovers. Enormous quantities of silk shirts have passed into the hands of consumers during the course of liquidation, and silk for feminine uses has also seen large sales. It is considered probable that the surpluses gathered by manufacturers in the needle trades were much larger than estimated and surpassed to a large extent the holdings of jobbers.

CAR SITUATION IMPROVED.

Shortage Affecting Freight Is Now Confined to Limited Sections.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Optimistic reports on the railway freight-car situation were issued today by the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association. The division states that there was a "decided change for the better" during November. Statistics just tabulated show an increase in the number of cars available in excess of current needs, and the actual shortage is said to be confined to limited sections.

The seasonal falling off in the number of cars loaded with revenue freight in November as compared with October has been less than usual, according to report.

Reports received from Class 1 railroads throughout the United States show that the car supply for grain loading is generally satisfactory except at certain points in the Northwest. Practically all roads, however, have a sufficient supply of box cars for ordinary loading.

The action of the Interstate Commerce Commission in canceling its priority orders on coal cars has made available a large amount of open-top equipment for distribution of commodities other than coal.

Would Raise Auto Registration Fees

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—To force motorists to pay a greater share of the expense for construction and upkeep of State roads Frank A. Goodwin, State Registrar of Motor Vehicles, filed a bill with the Legislature today, increasing automobile registration fees from 50 to 100 per cent. The amount of the increase would be proportionate to the size of the car. Registrar Goodwin has recommended more severe laws to punish reckless and other improper driving.

WHOLESALE PRICES WEAK.

Although well below the record number established last week, the declines in Dun's current list of wholesale commodities prices exceeded the advances by more than six to one. The bulk of the downward revisions this week, however, were confined to three groups—foodstuffs, metals, and the drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils. In the list of more than 300 articles quoted on 107 changes were shown, of which 92 were declines. Last week there were 103 declines in a total of 110 revisions.

The following table gives the minimum prices quoted this week on standard commodities selected from the list mentioned above. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Nominal.

In the 25 revisions shown in the foodstuffs this week 21 were declines. In this market bacon and hams were lower, as was Middle Western lard. At Chicago the provisions list contained rises in live hogs and sheep and declines in live beef and short ribs. Mess pork did not change.

Substantial drops occurred in the butter items listed in the dairy products. The best creamery butter showed a break of 7 cents a pound, while the common to fair grade of State dairy stock was 4 cents a pound cheaper. Both grades are substantially lower than they were at this time last year. The listed varieties of eggs did not change. The best cheese dropped a cent a pound.

Revisions in the fresh and dried fruits were all downward. Vegetable prices for the most part did not change. Teas, spices and syrup were easier in price, but for the first time in quite a while there was an upturn recorded in the basic Brazilian coffees. The decline in raw and refined sugar appeared to be halted for the time being.

A wave of declines, embracing practically all varieties of crude, semi-finished and finished forms of iron and steel, struck the metals list during the week. Not a single advance was indicated. In the list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils only one increase was shown to offset 31 declines. The naval stores contributed declines in "B" resin and turpentine.

Grain prices took a turn for the better and, excepting for straw, which did not change, all of the revisions were upward. American zinc paint was quoted higher, but all of the other changes in that part of the list were downward. Among them were French ochre and English vermilion.

The paper list showed declines in news roll, which has now got back to where it was a year ago, and in strawboards. Platinum was easier in price. Both Brazilian and eastern crude rubbers were higher. Tallow was cheaper.

Excepting in unfinished cotton goods, which showed a flurry of activity early in the week that resulted in some fair advances in printcloths and sheetings, the price tendency in the textiles during the week was downward. Burlap slid off a little further, and lower prices were quoted on several standard constructions of woolens and worsteds.

Look Twice Before They Leap.

From all accounts, ready-to-wear buyers who have looked over the Spring lines recently opened in this market are going the old adage one better in that they look twice at least before they leap. Save for prices, buyers have no complaint to make about the garments that have been shown thus far; in fact, commendation of "line" and color has been the rule. On the matter of price, however, there is a wide divergence of views. Buyers contend they are too high, while sellers assert that, the continued high cost of labor considered, they are more than fair. Savings due to cheaper fabrics have been passed on to buyers, the manufacturers say; but with labor contributing by far the greatest item in production cost, particularly in suits, they further assert that they can quote no lower prices until reduced wage scales can be put into effect.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Irregular Movement of Stocks—Foreign Exchange Slightly Lower—Money 7%.

A more irregular movement than that of the two preceding days occurred on most of the markets yesterday, but as a rule with no change from the recent tendency to firmness. On the Stock Exchange business was smaller than that of any day since Monday, and the uncertain movement of prices within a narrow range left the net changes about evenly divided between advances and declines. The decrease in transactions, even of the smaller professional sort, may have been in recognition of the fact that the week-end bank statements are likely to throw some light on at least the temporary character of the money market.

There was no change in money rates yesterday, call loans on the Stock Exchange again commanding 7 per cent. all day and loans for longer periods remaining at Thursday's level, with little business done. More attention is naturally being paid to the large financial operations of the Government during the present month. The quarterly instalment on the year's income and profits taxes will be payable a week and a half from now, and the last quarter's payment in September increased the Government's revenue collections $513,000,000 over the preceding month. But, on the other hand, the half-yearly interest on the $4,500,000,000 Victory bonds is payable Dec. 15, so that the money market will be largely reimbursed. There was a sharp advance in call money rates when the same two operations coincided last June, and the higher rates continued into the following month. That was before the Autumn liquidation in the credit market, however. The call money rate at London, which declined from 6 per cent. to 4½ earlier in the week, went to 4¾ yesterday.

Foreign exchange was lower. Sterling declined 1⅛ cent, touching last week's lowest figure, and the weakness was similarly marked in the rates on France, Italy and Germany. Such a movement is not at all unusual at the approach of the end-of-the-year settlements, when a creditor market is apt to draw down its balances on other markets. Older Wall Street men will remember the persistency with which foreign exchange used to move against New York during December in the years when New York was the debtor market on international account. Yesterday's weakness in exchange seemed to be caused mainly by sale of ordinary commercial bills. The silver bullion market made further recovery.

The week-end reviews of mercantile trade indicate, what had already become visible in most of the wholesale markets, that the general position has grown somewhat steadier. That the retail trade should have improved as the holidays approach was to be expected, but Bradstreet's report suggests that increase in purchases has been apt to follow retail price-cutting. It is added that the net sales of thirteen wholesale dry goods houses in October had decreased 34 per cent. from last year, and at nine houses in the shoe trade 32⅝ per cent., but that four reporting concerns in the clothing trade showed increase of 7¼ per cent. November, according to Bradstreet, brought the largest number of business failures since January of 1918, with the largest aggregate liabilities on record for the month of November. Liabilities of houses which have failed in the ten completed months exceed the total of any corresponding period except 1914 and 1907.

In a supplementary report the Department of Commerce shows that, of the $29,000,000 decrease in our October import trade as compared with the preceding month, $16,000,000 came from smaller import of raw material of manufacture and $5,400,000 from decreased import of manufactured goods. Our export of finished manufactures in October was $55,000,000 larger than in September. Taken together, these changes in the export and import trade from the previous month reflect, first the slackening activity of home manufacture and next, the sharp fall of prices for our manufactured goods; the latter of which movements both decreased sales of foreign goods in our markets and increased our own sale of manufactured goods abroad.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, DEC. 3.

Call money loaned on the Stock Exchange at 7 per cent. all day Friday. It was the third successive day that this rate obtained for demand funds. New borrowing was small. Time money likewise showed no change over the ruling quotations of the last few days. On mixed collateral the range was 7¼@7½ per cent. and on all industrials 7½@7¾ per cent. The market for fixed period funds has been quiet, with bids just under the going quotations. Prime name merchants' paper discounts at 7¾ per cent., but the bulk of the paper goes at 8 per cent. Country bankers are the principal buyers.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Sterling Recedes While Other European Rates Move Little—Argentine Price Up.

With the exception of a decline of 1⅛ cents in sterling and moderate reactions of francs, lire and marks, yesterday's foreign exchange market was steady and colorless. Scandinavian rates were moderately firm. The Argentine quotation continued its forward movement, the check rate of 34.75 at the end of the day being a full cent higher than the minimum of last week.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Exchange Stability.

It has been a very long time since the sterling exchange market was as quiet as it has been this week. Yesterday the rate moved over a range of 1⅝ cents in the pound, which was by far the greatest range of any day in the period. On Monday the range was ¾ of a cent, on Tuesday it was ⅜, on Wednesday ⅝ and on Thursday only ¼. From the high point, reached on Wednesday, to the low point of yesterday there was an extreme range of 2¼ cents, or from $3.48¾ to $3.46½. The net change of the week, that is from last Saturday to the close yesterday, also was 2¼ cents. A week ago the market ended at $3.49¼, while yesterday the final quotation was $3.47. French exchange, too, was extremely dull, as were, in fact, all of the Continentals. The five-day range for French francs was only 5¾ points.

Call Money Steady.

Call money, despite the slightly harder tone, was another commodity which held to very narrow limits, the range being 1 per cent. On Monday and Tuesday the rate varied from 6 per cent. to 7 per cent., the lower being the renewal on those days, while the higher was the rate for new loans in the afternoons. But from Wednesday on just one rate, 7 per cent., obtained. Some observers are predicting a little flurry for next week, and most are quite sure there will be some slight disturbance in the early days of the week following, when the climax before the Dec. 15 tax dues is reached. But the indications are that whatever flurry there may be will be a flurry only relatively, as compared with the recent extreme regularity.

British Finance.

The probabilities, it is said, favor the continuation of British gold shipments to this country, although nobody will admit exact knowledge on the subject. So far about $14,000,000 has come in—in three shipments—and more may be looked for within the next few days. Part of this money, it may be assumed, will be used to retire British Treasury certificates afloat in this market, and if the process of retirement is carried to any considerable lengths these securities will disappear from our market entirely, for at the present time the amount outstanding is understood to be only about a fifth of what it was at the peak. It also is learned that a very large percentage of the French Treasury bills has been retired in recent months.

Bankers' Acceptances.

There is quite a difference of opinion among dealers as to just what is the market for bankers' acceptances. As nearly as the man on the outside may determine, there isn't any hard and fast market at the moment, for the several leading dealers insist upon disagreeing over eighths and sixteenths, but each dealer is absolutely convinced that his rates, and no others, "make the market."

⁂

Rally in Mexican Petroleum.

Mexican Petroleum stood to the forefront yesterday, when there was a spectacular advance of some five points. It is probable that the rise was attributable to short covering, but the ease with which the stock moved forward recalled once more the market position of the Mexican Petroleum shares. It is well known that there is only a small floating supply, since more than 80 per cent. of the stock is now owned by the Pan American Petroleum Company. Considering this fact, trading in the issue is of amazingly large volume. Furthermore, taking the short position is attended with dangers that should be realized by all. The report in circulation now is that a considerable short interest has been trapped, in which case there may be some difficulty in covering commitments.

The Porphyry Dividends.

The condition of the copper market is reflected in the passing of the dividend by two of the porphyry group of companies, Chino and Nevada. Action of this sort was not unexpected. The little business which the copper companies are now doing is not of a character to give much margin for dividends. In connection with the passing of the dividends, it was interesting to note that the stocks of the two companies held firm. This would appear to indicate that the copper stocks are thoroughly liquidated. Certain it is that the shares are selling at lower prices than have ruled for a long period.

The Sale of Aetna Explosives.

It is reported that the sale of Aetna Explosives to the Hercules Powder Company is on the verge of becoming an accomplished fact. The agreement as to the sale provides that Hercules will take Aetna if it can purchase 80 per cent. of the stock. Already it is reported that 300,000 shares of Aetna stock have been deposited under the plan, and its success is said to be assured. There are about 432,000 shares of Aetna, so that 80 per cent. would mean the deposit of 345,600 shares. Aetna holders get $10.02 a share in cash and $4 in Hercules preferred stock.

Consolidated Gas Advances.

The advance in Consolidated Gas shares yesterday indicated that confidence in the future of the company as regards the increased rates allowed by the courts has more than offset the news that the company would do new financing in the future to the extent of $25,000,000 in notes. While it is realized that the increase in rates is to go into a fund in the hands of a trustee, pending final settlement of the case, and will not be available for company use until a final decision is rendered, the feeling seems to be general that the final decree will be in favor of the company.

Pacific Oil Dealings.

For about twenty minutes yesterday trading on the curb in Pacific Oil stock on a when, as, and if issued basis, was suspended due to some confusion regarding the listing of the stock on the big board. The trading was not heavy on the curb even after it was settled that the shares had not been admitted to the Stock Exchange and the price shaded off fractionally to 36½. Today the stock will be traded on a when, as, and if basis on the big board.

⁂

Reading a Feature.

Reading was a feature in yesterday's stock market, selling up for a net gain at the close of nearly 2 points when the majority of the railroad shares were stationary or fractionally lower. The aggregate turnover was not particularly heavy for this issue, which has been a favorite with professionals and other speculative elements pending announcement of its segregation plan, but it appeared as if interest had switched in its direction from Southern Pacific.

⁂

Theories About Southern Pacific.

In the commission houses many explanations were presented for the decline in Southern Pacific stock on Thursday. Among them were the following: Traders sold on the theory that the news was out; speculators who had purchased the stock around 90 and counted on holding it until the plan was announced took their profits; and some stock was sold by holders who could not afford to subscribe for the new Pacific Oil Company stock even at $15 a share when it was selling at more than twice that amount on a when, as and if issued basis on the curb. Whatever the reason, the stock declined again yesterday, but in the later trading regained a good part of its earlier losses, closing only fractionally below the last quotation of the preceding day. Also the turnover was substantially less.

BIG AIRPLANE CO. IN RECEIVER'S HANDS

Ernest Whitbeck, Who Takes Over L. W. F. Plant, Blames Government for Troubles.

LACKS AIR POLICY, HE SAYS

Cites Gen. Menoher to Show Machines Are Needed—Capitalized at $1,000,000.

The L. W. F. Engineering Company of College Point, L. I., said to operate the largest aircraft manufacturing plant in the United States, went into the hands of the receiver yesterday. Since the end of the war the company has been particularly active in providing airplanes suitable for the transportation of the aerial mails and is credited with having developed the first all-American air freighter. The difficulties of the company are set forth in a statement authorized by Ernest Whitbeck, the receiver, which says:

"By a remarkable coincidence, in the annual report of the Chief of Air Service today, Major Gen. Charles T. Menoher states that 'unless the Government aids the airplane industry it cannot hope to depend upon the availability of suitable commercial aircraft and facilities for their employment nor upon the existence of manufacturing plants and supplies of materials necessary for the rapid production of aircraft in time of war.'

"The receivership of the L. W. F. Company is the result of the failure by the Government to evolve and put into operation a definite aeronautical policy or program. The L. W. F. Company was one of the pioneers. At the time of the receivership it had the largest aircraft manufacturing plant in the United States. It was capitalized at $1,000,000 and had employed more than 2,200 persons at the time of the armistice.

"The L. W. F. Company was organized in 1915. It was the originator in this country of the laminated wood fuselage, now largely used in aircraft construction. It built the plane which was the first to fly the Liberty engine.

"The L. W. F. plant covers five city blocks. The company has its own water and land terminals. At great expense the company developed and built the 'Giant,' America's largest airplane—and one of the largest ever constructed—which a few weeks ago was accepted by the Air Service as a coast defense bomber."

Litigation to prevent the importing of foreign remodeled war planes has been pending here in the courts. The Wright Aeronautical Corporation applied recently in the Federal Court for an injunction restraining Handley Page, Ltd. of England from disposing here of some 10,000 war planes and 36,000 engines. Counsel for the Wright Company argued that American manufacturers of aircraft would be put out of business if the aggregation of surplus war planes was allowed here. The officers of the L. W. F. Company are: President, J. M. Fitzgerald; Vice President, A. H. Flint, and Secretary, W. N. Bennett.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

OPPOSE SPAIN'S NEW TARIFF

Madrid Merchants Say It Hurts America and England More Than France.

MADRID, Dec. 3.—The official Chamber of Industry of Madrid is protesting vigorously against the increase in the customs duties. Its members have sent a manifesto to the Government pointing out that, while the augmentation is aimed against France in consequence of her putting prohibitive duty on Spanish wines, it hits the United States and England hardest.

Statistics accompanying the manifesto show that cotton, woolen and leather goods, bicycles and motor cars mostly come from the United States and England, while motor trucks are the only articles in which France excels in production. The manifesto says the measures the Government has taken will produce exactly the opposite effects to that intended, merely increasing the price of articles of necessity for the benefit of a few industries of Spain, while increasing the cost of living for the bulk of the population.

VALENCIA, Dec. 3.—Despite the possibility that France will place a prohibitive duty on oranges as a reprisal for the recent increase in customs duties on articles of luxury imposed by Spain, thus cutting off an important market for the fruit, the Orange Growers' Federation decided unanimously today to declare a boycott on England, to which country they declared they will not consign oranges between Dec. 15 and Jan. 5. The boycott was resolved upon because of the refusal of consignees in England to accept damaged fruit.

Large quantities of oranges are going to Germany, but fears are expressed that the growers will sustain heavy losses on their crops.

WON'T CUT 10-CENT FARE.

Connecticut Commission Denies Petitions for Special Rates.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 3.—Trolley fares at a popular price for factory employes and shoppers during certain hours of the day at "a just and reasonable maximum rate" to be made by the Connecticut company, are denied by the Public Utilities Commission, in a decision today. The City of Hartford, for commutation and special reduced fares, and the City of New London for a 7½ cent basic fare, were the petitioners.

The commission recently granted a 10-cent fare rate to the company as a relief to meet operating losses on previous schedules. The commission says it cannot discriminate in favor of the petitioners, adding that the 10-cent rate, while creating a burden on the traveling public, was imposed "in order that necessary street railway service may be continued." The commission, however, says it serves notice on the Connecticut company "that the very best service within its power must be rendered."

PRICES HIT DRY GOODS.

Distribution Larger, but Receipts Smaller and Collections Slow.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was larger in quantity than during the corresponding period of last year, but, owing to the lower prices which have become effective, represented a smaller volume of sales. Orders from salesmen on the road were less than for the same period a year ago.

"On Monday and Tuesday there were more customers in the wholesale house than for any similar period in the history of Marshall Field & Co., occasioned by the preinventory sale conducted by Chicago wholesalers. Orders for Spring delivery were placed in greater volume than during any preceding week this year.

"Collections were not up to the standard of the same week last year."

Curb Market Plans Expansion.

Edward R. McCormick, President of the New York Curb Market Association, said yesterday that plans for expansion were being formulated by the association whereby associate memberships would be established. This will make it possible for banking and brokerage firms throughout the country to become identified with the association with special privileges.

REDUCED PRICES AWAKEN BUYERS

Dun's Review Reports Signs of Betterment, but Situation Still Uncertain.

WAITING FOR TURN OF YEAR

Unemployment the Most Uncertain Feature—Bradstreet's Reports More Failures.

In a review of business conditions R. G. Dun & Co. see signs of improvement developing, the point apparently being approached in price reductions where interest on the part of buyers is being awakened. It is admitted, however, that the whole situation is as yet uneven and uncertain.

This publication says:

"Signs of betterment in business and sentiment, if slow to appear, are rather more distinct in certain quarters. The retail movement, although lacking the desired breadth, is accelerated as the holidays draw nearer, and some primary markets are recovering a little from their lethargy. Yielding prices invariably place a temporary check on operations, but there is usually a point at which buyers' interest will be reawakened, and this basis is apparently being approached in some leading lines.

"Yet the whole situation is uneven and uncertain, as is natural in a time of readjustment, and the general policy is one of deferring important action until conditions become more stable. After the turn of the year, when results of inventorying and Christmas trade shall have been made known, the future business outlook may seem less obscure. The groundwork for subsequent improvement is being laid during the present transition, and the year's grain and other harvests, while not measuring up to some previous standards in money value, are fortunately abundant in quantity. Recognition of this fact gives rise to confident expectations, and the indications of relaxation from the monetary tension, which may become more definite after the year-end settlements are completed, also afford a reason for encouragement. The most unsatisfactory feature is the increase of unemployment and its consequent effect upon the public buying power."

Bradstreet's Review says:

"The general feeling is that a quite early Winter season impends, and attention now is largely concentrated on the probable volume of retail trade before and after the holidays. In financial lines there has been a slight accession of cheerfulness, with more steadiness in speculative markets, notably securities, grain and cotton, though new low prices have been scored in many instances in the interim. Commodity markets show more advances and fewer declines than for some time past, but the weekly food index is lower than for three years and eight months past.

"Money has been a little firmer on call, and time money is quiet, with demand active but offerings in less volume than last year, though rates are no higher. Bank reserve figures were better as to reserve ratios last week. Exchange rates steadied a little, but are not much below the low of last week. Bank clearings have gained heavily over last week, 28 per cent., but the latter was a holiday period. Compared with a year ago, clearings at all cities are 11 per cent. lower, though outside of New York the decline is only 8 per cent., with two-thirds of the cities reporting decreases from 1919.

"Winter wheat crop reports are very good. Failures are more numerous than last week, but not quite equal to the total in the third week of November. November failures were the most numerous since January, 1918. For eleven months the total is ahead of last year, but well below those of any previous year this century."

Bankers' Acceptance Bills.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank states in its monthly bulletin that the total number of bankers' acceptances now outstanding in the country is estimated at $1,000,000,000, approximately the same as on Jan. 1, 1920. It is added that "at that time the Federal Reserve System, which is commonly called upon to purchase bills not absorbed by the market, held $574,000,000," and that "at present the system holds only $275,000,000."

COPPER COMPANIES PASS DIVIDENDS

Chino and Nevada Consolidated Omit Quarterly Payments to Conserve Cash.

DECLARED BY UTAH AND RAY

Former's Distribution to Be $1.50 a Share and Latter's 25 Cents.

Two of the porphyry group of copper companies, Chino and Nevada Consolidated, passed the quarterly dividends yesterday. The dividend of three months ago on Chino was 37½ cents a share, and Nevada paid 25 cents. The other two of the group, Utah and Ray Consolidated, declared the same dividends as in the last quarter, that on Utah being $1.50 a share and a 25-cent distribution on Ray. Both of these dividends are payable Dec. 31 to stock of record Dec. 18.

Charles Hayden of Hayden, Stone & Co., who is one of the leading figures in the porphyry companies, in discussing the dividend action and the copper situation, said:

"It has always been the policy of the Directors of the porphyries for which we are bankers to keep their companies in strong financial condition and to shape their dividend policies largely with that point in view. During the period of unfavorable market and prices for copper in 1916 and 1917 all these companies earned considerably more than they disbursed to shareholders. They have felt during 1919 and 1920 that it was only fair to the shareholders that they should receive during those years some of the surplus profits accumulated in more prosperous times.

"The usual dividends were declared today on Utah and Ray because of the strong financial position in which those companies find themselves. Utah has more than $13,500,000 of Liberty bonds at par, $500,000 United Kingdom loan and a cash balance of more than $2,000,000. Its total quick assets are $24,000,000. Ray has cash balances in excess of $2,000,000 and other quick assets of $7,000,000, making a total of $9,000,000 and no indebtedness.

"Nevada Consolidated is entirely free from debt, but its board felt that its cash balances were no more than sufficient to carry its limited production of copper to the present time of slow sale without incurring some indebtedness and that therefore no dividend should be paid at this time. Nevada has net quick assets of about $9,000,000. Chino Copper has already borrowed some money on copper and its board felt that, although its earnings for the past year exceed dividends, it should not weaken its cash position during the period of dull metal market, and accordingly no dividend was declared. Chino has net quick assets of approximately $5,000,000.

"Large sales of copper were made within the last six weeks for all of these companies, but for delivery during the early part of 1921. The cash from this copper will not be available therefore, until after the turn of the year."

Western Electric Bonds for Staff.

The Western Electric Company is offering some 22,000 of its employes the opportunity to purchase Western Electric five year 7 per cent. convertible bonds on a partial payment plan. The privilege is open to those who have been continuously in the employ of the company for six months prior to Dec. 1 and is an extension of the plan which permitted old employes to subscribe for the bonds. In no case can an employe subscribe for a face value in bonds in excess of $100 for each $300 of his annual rate of pay.

BRITAIN LOSING COAL TRADE.

American Exports at Lower Prices Cutting Into Sales in France.

PARIS, Dec. 3. — Large arrivals of American coal at French ports are causing much comment in the coal trade of France, especially among the English coal interests here.

"England is losing her privileged position in the world as a coal exporter," the Paris edition of The Daily Mail quotes S. Samuel of Instone & Co., a coal firm, as saying with reference to this situation. American deliveries, says the newspaper, are now being made at $14 a ton as against $29 two months ago. It sums the situation up thus:

"England is threatened in the world's coal market. America is aiming at obtaining control, and foreign consumers will benefit from this free competition."

American coal can be imported now at about ten shillings a ton lower than English coal of corresponding qualities.

HALF TIME IN BRITISH MILLS.

Cotton Spinners Cut Working Hours From 48 to 24 a Week.

MANCHESTER, England, Dec. 3.—The American section of the cotton trade, which constitutes three-fourths of the whole industry, has decided by a ballot, the result of which was announced this afternoon, to reduce the weekly working hours from forty-eight to twenty-four. This decision affects 100,000 operatives.

The action of the industry is attributed to the recent decline in cotton and the poor demand for yarn and cotton goods from all quarters.

Peruvian Quarantine Relaxed.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 2.—Vessels from foreign countries may land at any port at which there is a doctor of the Peruvian Sanitary Service, and need not be held at quarantine, as has been the rule in the past, says a Presidential decree issued here today. Ships carrying Asiatics are excepted by the terms of the decree.

Textile Mill Closes for Week.

WARE, Mass., Dec. 3.—The Otis Company, textile manufacturers, employing 1,700 hands, announced today that its plant will be closed all next week owing to shortage of orders. The concern has recently been operating three days a week.

1,085 FAILURES SET NOVEMBER RECORD

Liabilities of $39,751,859 the Largest, Except September, Since January, 1915.

SILK AND FUR LINES HARD HIT

Unwillingness of the Public to Buy and the Consequent Fall in Prices Responsible.

The reflection of unfavorable business conditions, based upon the unwillingness of the public to buy goods and the consequent fall of prices, is disclosed in a large increase of commercial casualties during November as compared with other months running back over a period of years. Bradstreet's reports a total of 1,085 failures with aggregate liabilities of $39,751,859. The number is the largest, according to the records of this agency, since January, 1918. Liabilities were greater than in any preceding month, excepting September of this year, since January, 1915. The total of losses was greater than in any other November on record.

"The result," says Bradstreet's "is a swelling of the liabilities totals for ten months to a point where they exceed those for any year except those periods of stress, 1914 and 1907, when great international or domestic disturbances were operative. Large failures were numerous in merchandising and manufacturing lines, notably export and import trade, shoe and silk manufacturing or wholesaling or among dealers in furs. A large number of small bank failures in North Dakota and in other Western States caused the financial liabilities to bulk larger than for some time past."

Dun's Review records a total of 1,050 commercial failures with liabilities aggregating $30,758,130. This agency's figures show a total indebtedness $8,000,000 less than in October, but the result was the largest for any November. The number of failures was 127 more than in October and the greatest for any month since March, 1918. Prior to 1918 there were more November defaults in each year from 1911 to 1916, and also in 1907 and 1908.

COTTON FALLS AND RALLIES PART WAY

Break at Liverpool Tends to Unsettle Prices—Spots Recede to 16.50 Cents.

There was a weak opening in the cotton market, with first prices 25 to 50 points lower than where they had closed on Thursday, and after the call continued selling, both for account of the South and for Liverpool, sent prices down 30 to 40 points more. There was a rally late in the day, however, when the market worked up to levels only 10 to 25 points under Thursday's last, and at the close, with the exception of December, which was down 50, the list was off only 25 to 30 points. Spots were down 50 points, the same as December, to the basis of 16.15 for middlings.

Most of yesterday's selling was inspired by the break at Liverpool and the unsatisfactory trade advices from abroad. The Liverpool market was not expected to perform at all in the way it did and the sharp break, which took futures down 45 to 60 points at their closing and spots down 74 points to 10.46d, was very much of a surprise to the local trade.

There was further, and this time quite definite, talk of an agreement among British spinners to cut down the use of American cotton, and yesterday local people were more inclined to take this seriously than they had been. However, the market again gave evidences of a firm undertone. This was particularly the case with the relation of near to far months. On the bearish talk of reduced use of American cotton the near months suffered more than the distant options, and in the late afternoon rally it was the late months which led the upturn. Obviously, the trade expects curtailed usage and the other handicaps to have little more than temporary influence.

Exports for the day were only 9,328 bales, but the total for the week was 82,930 bales.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
Dec.	15.85	15.85	15.40	15.60@15.65	16.10
Jan.	15.50	15.80	15.24	15.65@15.70	15.94
March	15.60	15.92	15.37	15.82@15.88	16.10
May	15.85	16.07	15.53	15.97@16.02	16.25
July	15.84	16.14	15.60	16.02@16.05	16.25
Sept.	..	..	..	15.87	16.23

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, down 50 points to 16.15c for middling uplands; sales nil. Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 15.75c, unchanged; New Orleans, 15.50c, down .25; Savannah, 16.00c, unchanged; Augusta, 15.50c, unchanged; Memphis, 15.00c, unchanged; Houston, 14.75c, down .50; Little Rock, 15.50c, unchanged.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

	Yesterday.	Last Wk.	Last Yr.
Port receipts	28,209	41,172	37,710
Exports	9,328	32,499	32,499

Port stocks	1,275,301	1,357,337	1,553,514
N. Y. arrivals	2,717	4,979

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton was quiet at 10.46d for middling. Sales, 4,000 bales, of which American, 3,000. Imports, 2,000 bales, none American. Future opened easy, 24 to 33 points down, and closed quiet but steady, 45 to 61 points down on the day. Prices, Dec. 10.56d; March, 10.74d; May, 10.84d; July, 10.88d.

Manchester: Yarns and cloths were dull and irregular.

CHICAGO WHEAT PIT BULLS LOSE ARDOR

Price Fluctuations Covered a Range of 6 1-2 Under the Top to 1 3-4 to 2 1-4 at Close.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—It was easier to trace the selling of wheat than the buying. The selling was headed by Stein, Alstrin & Co. and credited to Livermore, while the buying was mainly by houses with seaboard connections to remove hedges against export sales of 1,500,000 bushels of hard Winter via the Gulf, and by local bulls. While sentiment was less bullish in some quarters, due to the bulge of over 20 cents from the low point of last week, the December acted tight, as the result of the export buying.

The market, on the whole, showed remarkable resistance to selling pressure. There was a general selling at one time, on the discovery that 1,050,000 bushels of Manitoba wheat are now afloat on the lakes for this market and that a cargo of 268,000 bushels arrived during the day. So far this season around 2,000,000 bushels Manitobas have been bought by Chicago interests.

Price fluctuations were very rapid, covering a range of 5¾@6½ cents, with the close 1¾@2¼ cents under the top. There were export bids here for wheat for shipment to Black Sea ports, presumably for Armenian relief, and the trade is now talking of prospective purchases to be made for Chinese relief. The general run of cash wheat news is bullish, although one of the largest sellers of Gulf wheat claimed to have bought as much in the country as was sold for export. Premiums at the Gulf were strong, at 27 cents over December for December loading and 26 cents over for January.

Manitobas are becoming hard to buy, with No. 1 Northern quoted at 18 cents over Winnipeg December, at the head of the lakes. It is reported that boats with a capacity of 1,000,000 bushels have been withdrawn from lake traffic and will load and hold wheat for storage at Fort William. This is regarded as extremely early in the season, as navigation has not closed.

General sentiment, after the close, was not as bullish as earlier. While it is believed that an import duty will be placed on wheat by Congress, the trade is not as sanguine that the proposed bills to give financial help to farmers will be passed. Millers are understood to be giving the "buy a barrel of flour" movement their support.

The usual end of navigation rush of Spring wheat to Duluth has swelled the total to materially in excess of last year, the arrivals for the day at terminal markets being 1,184,000 bushels, against 633,000 bushels a year ago. A week ago they were 2,134,000 bushels, but that included a great deal of grain received on Thanksgiving when the exchanges were closed. Shipments were 1,085,000 bushels against 897,000 bushels last year.

There was investment buying of corn today for country accounts. A feature in oats was the buying induced by the fact that one dozen eggs at the 95 cents retail price, will buy three bushels of oats at country loading stations. Eggs advanced 2 cents today, to the highest of the season.

Arrivals of corn were 389,000 bushels or 50,000 more than last year and 243,000 less than a week ago. Shipments of 343,000 bushels compare with 393,000 last year.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—Bears in the wheat marekt put special stress on early indications that yesterday's sharp upturn in values had brought European demand to a standstill.

In provisions there was a setback of 50c@57c. Provisions sympathized with downturns in the value of hogs.

Today's Chicago prices for the principal commodities were as follows:

COMMODITY PRICES

Slight Price Changes Made in Foodstuffs—Steel Billets Register Decline.

Little was doing in the way of price changes in yesterday's wholesale market, wheat receded 1½ cents a bushel, after having scored a large size gain on Thursday, but corn, oats and flour were unchanged. Coffee was up ⅛ of a cent per pound, with sugar unchanged. Butter dropped 3 cents a pound, to the low level made earlier in the year, probably on account of the reported importation of Danish butter. Eggs, however, were unchanged. Lard still continues weak, dropping 65 cents per hundred pounds, with beef and pork unchanged.

In the metals, iron No. 2X Philadelphia dropped $2 per ton. The price for steel billets at Pittsburgh likewise showed a price recession, the New York Metal Exchange official report and trade sources putting this commodity at $43.50 per ton. There has been some variance in this price during the last few days.

Spot cotton declined 50 cents per 100 pounds, with printcloths unchanged.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Friday, a week before and a year ago:

BEDFORD PLEA FOR EUROPE.

Tells How to Re-establish It on Sound Financial Basis.

A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, who recently returned from Europe, emphasized yesterday in an address before the Bond Club the necessity of aiding Europe to re-establish itself on a sound financial basis.

"The furtherance of this idea," he said, "might not be so much a matter of export of our manufactures or capital as of going there ourselves with our own technical and commercial organizations and our money, and establishing or developing industries which will be important contributions to the industrial fabric of these countries so that they may create a reserve of wealth.

"It seems to me," said Mr. Bedford, "if the trend of events is ever to bring about a favorable moment for such action, that moment is now. The buying power of the American dollar was never before and may never again be so potent in the acquirement of the nucleus of a foreign business and, if as appears probable, we are in an era of slackened commercial progress at home, we can in no way more usefully employ ourselves than by extending our sphere of commercial influence abroad. There is, of course, only one form in which Europe can repay us the interest upon our loans and that is in goods, and we can assist her and ourselves by helping her to produce these goods.

"In this connection I may say that Europe is watching no phase of our political situation more intently than our action on the tariff. I am expressing the view of French and Italian bankers generally, I think, when I say that they would regard any material advance in our tariff as a further bar to their progress in relieving themselves of their debts to us by paying us in goods."

NO INCOME TAX EXTENSION.

Dec. 15 Is Last Day for Fourth Quarterly Payments.

No extensions for the payment of the fourth quarterly income tax, due Dec. 15, can be granted, William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue for Manhattan, announced yesterday. Mr. Edwards said that he had been besieged with requests for extension and as a result had communicated with William M. Williams, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who had replied that no extensions could be granted.

Commissioner William's statement as to the attitude of the Internal Revenue Bureau in relation to extensions said:

"Dec. 15 is the last day for the payment of the fourth installment of the income and excess profits taxes this year. To avoid penalty, the tax must be in the offices of the Collector of Internal Revenue or branch offices by midnight of that date.

"Payment of the fourth installment may be made in cash or by money order or check. The Bureau of Internal Revenue urges that whenever possible payment be made by check or money order. This method helps the taxpayer by saving him a trip to the Collector's office and avoids congestion at the cashier's window. Check or money order should be made payable to "Collector of Internal Revenue."

Decrease in Cotton Consumption.

Taking the average of 1917 as 100, the Federal Reserve Bank estimates that consumption of cotton in the United States amounted to 97.8 per cent. in June, to 94.4 in July, to 87.7 in August, to 83.9 in September and 69.7 in October.

BRING SUIT TO TEST STATE LIQUOR LAW

Charles Leopold & Co., Asking Stay, Contend Enforcement Act Is Unconstitutional.

Court Denies Doctor's Plea for Unlimited Supply of Prescription Blanks.

The validity of the State Prohibition Enforcement law, otherwise known as the State Liquor Tax law, which became effective May 24 last, was attacked in an equity injunction suit brought in the United States Court here yesterday by Charles Leopold & Co., Inc., wholesale liquor dealers, formerly known as Randall-Leopold & Co., against Herbert S. Sisson, New York State Excise Commissioner; Attorney General Charles D. Newton and District Attorney Edward Swann. Preliminary injunctions were asked pending the outcome of the suit. No decision was given. The Police Department recently announced that hereafter the law would be enforced and several test cases were brought in Magistrates' courts.

The plaintiffs stated that Commissioner Sisson had notified them that he intended to enforce the provisions of the law and that the prosecuting officers of the State would prosecute the company if it did not at once pay the State excise taxes, amounting to more than $3,000, and also it would be liable for penalties in a large amount in addition to the taxes.

Prohibition enforcement agents early yesterday morning seized 249 cases of El Barton whisky in a room at 209 West Fifty-sixth Street, formerly occupied by a furrier, but since last Friday occupied by Ercole Garini, a wholesale liquor dealer, formerly in Macdougal Street. The stamps and all marks had been destroyed on the cases. The whisky is valued at $20,000. Some old furs displayed in the windows by the former occupant of the place were still there, and outwardly there was every appearance of a fur shop.

A large truck attracted the attention of Patrolman Kastner of the West Forty-seventh Street Station at Broadway and Fifty-first Street yesterday. He halted the truck and found fifty-three cases of French and Italian vermouth and one hogshead of sherry wine. Two men, who described themselves as Frederick Bricca of 31 Macdougal Street and Paul Biggiano of 49 Morton Street, were arrested on suspicion of violating the prohibition law by transporting liquor without a permit.

Judge Julius M. Mayer, in the Federal District Court yesterday, denied the application of Dr. Melville A. Hays of 124 Audubon Avenue, for a mandatory order directing Charles R. O'Connor, Federal Prohibition Director, to furnish him with all the liquor prescription blanks he might need for his patients.

In denying the application, Judge Mayer did not pass upon the validity of the regulations or the equity suit brought by Dr. Hays. Assistant District Attorney Earl B. Barnes, who appeared for the Prohibition Director, said that the physician could have obtained another book at any time after July 27 last, and remarked that in case of a threatened epidemic or any other emergency Dr. Hays could get all the additional blanks he required through a personal application to Director O'Connor.

Prohibition enforcement agents here have received no instructions from Washington with regard to the seizure of mince meat and brandied peaches. It was said at the office of Federal Supervising Agent Phagan that there was a regulation which permits manufacturers to use alcohol in mince meat and other culinary products if such products were not to be used or sold on the premises. The regulations bar hotels and restaurants from the use of alcohol in cooking. The manufacturers of food products to obtain this privilege must obtain a permit from the Prohibition Director, it was said.

The second hearing on the request of hotel men for permits to use alcohol in cooking will be held before Director O'Connor next Wednesday.

SMASHES A WINDOW TO GET FOOD IN JAIL

Ill and Out of Work Sailor Commits Crime to Obtain Home for Winter.

An incident, once imagined by the late O. Henry as the basis for one of his stories, took place in real life in the Men's Night Court before Magistrate Francis X. McQuade last night, when Nicol Wendl, ill, dispirited and unable to get work, explained that he smashed the plate-glass window of the branch of the New York Edison Company at 424 Broadway in order to get into jail and thus obtain food and lodging for the Winter. It was explained that Wendl had visited the Tombs earlier in the day and had been told, when he applied for admission, that he could not be imprisoned unless he had committed a crime. The smashing of the window, it was said, was his attempt to qualify himself for admission.

Wendl's story was related to the court by Dr. Samuel B. Dierman, who is attached to the social welfare service of Bellevue Hospital and who is also a lawyer, with offices at 320 Broadway. Dr. Dierman saw Wendl hurl the brick through the window.

Dr. Dierman said Wendl, who is a sailor, told him that he was discharged four or five weeks ago after his last voyage, and had sent $75, all the money he had, to pay the funeral expenses of his mother, who died in England. He said Wendl, who is about 40 years old, told him he had walked all over New York trying unsuccessfully to get work.

Dr. Dierman also submitted a long statement written by Wendl, in which the latter said that he had broken the window because he considered it the only way he could continue to live, as he considered it would be cowardice to commit suicide.

Asked by Magistrate McQuade why he selected the window of the New York Edison Company, Wendl replied that he had read in a newspaper that the Thomas A. Edison Company had just discharged 1,200 men and wanted Mr. Edison to know what it meant to have men out of employment. He expressed surprise when informed that the New York Edison Company and the Thomas A. Edison Company were different corporations.

Dr. Dierman suggested that Wendl's hardships might have affected his mind. Magistrate McQuade committed him to the psychopathic ward of Belevue Hospital for ten days for observation.

Stalled Train Halts Subway Traffic.

Subway traffic was tied up for twelve minutes in the rush period last night when a northbound Lenox Avenue express train was stalled between the Times Square and Seventy-second Street station. An imperfect "tripper," according to Abraham Merritt, Interborough Traffic Superintendent, automatically locked the wheels. Passenger were shaken up when the train stopped, but conductors and guards quickly explained the cause of the delay and quieted them.

Exchange Victims to Get a Payment

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Creditors of the defunct Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company, which sought to emulate Charles Ponzi's scheme for quick riches, will receive about 75 cents for each one of the 260,000 dollars invested, and one-third of this amount will go to them as a Christmas present, they were told at a hearing in the Bankruptcy Court today. Receiver John E. Hannigan was elected trustee. He reported that he now has $152,000 of assets. Creditors number 1,400.

At 10 o'clock tomorrow, the clubs on Washington Heights will present a program of Jewish plays, tableaux, recitations and motion pictures at the Audubon Theatre, Broadway and 165th Street.

A similar entertainment for Harlem children will take place at the Regent Theatre, Seventh Avenue and 116th Street on Dec. 12. A Chanukah oratorio, written by A. W. Binder, musical director of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, will also be presented.

$318,000 In Judge Cowan's Estate.

Under the appraisal, filed in the Surrogates' office yesterday, Mrs. Marie Antoinette Cowan, widow of the late Judge Rufus B. Cowan of the Court of General Sessions, receives $174,505 of the $285,759, fixed as the net value of the estate he left. The inventory showed a gross value of $318,048; the deductions, for debts and administering expenses, were about $32,000. The main items in his leavings were real estate, $233,304, and stocks bonds appraised at $84,748. The rest of the estate goes to Judge Cowan's sons and daughters, two of them yet minors.

Harvard Fund Drive Ends Dec. 11.

The wind-up of the campaign for a $15,250,000 endowment fund for Harvard has been set for Dec. 11, according to an announcement yesterday by Eliot Wadsworth, '98, Chairman of the Endowment Committee, who reports that the fund has reached to date $12,700,000, representing 18,506 subscribers.

Get False "Tip" About Small's Body.

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—"Tips" reaching the police stating that the body of Ambrose J. Small, the theatre owner missing for more than a year, had been buried in a dump in the northeastern part of the city today proved without foundation. The latest police excavation yesterday under a local theatre owned by Mr. Small was fruitless.

BOSTON FIRM LEASE IN TIMES SQUARE

Shoe Concern Takes Store for Twenty Years at Aggregate Rental of $850,000.

W. R. HEARST IN BIG DEAL

Long Lease on $300,000 Fifty-seventh Street House—Reisenweber Hotel Changes.

Two large leases of considerable interest featured the realty market yesterday. One was in Forty-second Street close to Times Square, and the other in East Fifty-seventh Street, where William Randolph Hearst rented, with an option to purchase, one of the finest dwellings in that section.

The Forty-second Street transaction involved the lease for a term of twenty years of the easterly store in the building at 135 to 139 West Forty-second Street, by the firm of Rice & Hutchins, a Boston shoe concern. The aggregate rental for the term will approximate $850,000. The lease was taken from the United Retail Stores Candy Company, which took over the property for a long term lease last October. Prior to that time the building had been occupied for twenty-five years by the grocery firm of Acker, Merrall & Condit, a portion of which was used for its wholesale cigar department. That, with all the other wholesale business, was moved in October to the nine-story building at 55 to 61 West Thirteenth Street, extending through to 56 West Fourteenth Street, the structure having originally been erected as an annex to the former Macy store, and recently acquired by Acker, Merrall & Condit for its wholesale quarters. Extensive alterations are now being made to the Forty-second Street structure and the United Candy Stores Company will open a large store there. In the recent lease to the Boston firm J. M. Silver acted as broker.

W. R. Hearst in Big Lease.

Mr. Hearst's lease involved the large five-story dwelling at 15 East Fifty-seventh Street, between Fifth and Madison Avenues, having a frontage of 43 feet by 100 feet in depth. Architecturally it is one of the most attractive homes in the block, having been designed in the Adam style by Hoppen, Koen & Huntington. The property is owned by Richard T. Wilson and is tenanted by W. Clay Pierce, President of the Pierce Oil Company. His lease expires next May. Mr. Hearst's lease is for twenty-one years with a purchase option which, it is said, will create a new record for inside lots on that thoroughfare. The property is assessed at $300,000, of which $235,000 is land value. Like the block to the west, there has been considerable business invasion in this easterly block within the last few years. Mr. Hearst is a large realty holder in the Columbus Circle area. In the present deal Mr. Wilson was represented by Norman L. Zeno.

Reisenweber Hotel Lease.

Samuel Wohlstetter and Joseph Gilman, proprietors of the Bibo Hotel at Madison Avenue and Ninety-second Street, have leased the nine-story Hotel Reisenweber at 987 Eighth Avenue, adjoining the southwest corner of Fifty-eighth Street, for a period of sixteen years at an aggregate rental of more than $325,000. Cross & Brown were the brokers in the transaction.

The new proprietors will make extensive alterations to the front of the building, including a new entrance to the hotel and a new store front, and will rent the first three floors for business purposes. The upper portion of the building will be reserved as a hotel. It will open for business on New Year's Eve.

Various Business Leases.

Singer Brothers Import and Export, Inc., has taken a ten-year lease from the Postal Life Insurance Company on the stores and basement at 532 and 534 Broadway and 85 Spring Street from Feb. 1, 1921, at a gross rental of $125,000. Bennett E. Siegdstein acted as attorney for the lessees.

Maurice Wertheim has leased the five-story building at the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Fifty-first Street to Frank N. Brown, and also the four-story dwelling at 135 East Forty-third Street for Annie Connor to Arthur S. Lewis, who will alter the property for business use.

Ames & Co. rented for the Terminal Realty Company the store and basement at 121 West Twenty-eighth Street to Herman Weiss.

Samuel H. Martin leased the corner store at 401 West Fifty-seventh Street to the E. L. S. Company.

The buildings at 3,547 and 3,549 Broadway, near 145th Street, have been leased by the Petit Paris Confectionary Company. The Duff & Brown Company were the brokers.

BUSINESS PROPERTY DEALS.

Frederick Brown, Operator, Resells Midtown Loft Zone Property.

Frederick Brown, operator, resold to a client of Dwight, Archibald & Perry the three-story business building at 27 East Twenty-fourth Street, on a lot 20 by 49.4. It is located 80 feet west of the northwest corner of Fourth Avenue.

Nazareno Gazzale sold to Abraham Kornblum the five-story loft building at 115 Warren Street, on a lot 25 by 92.9.

Meyer Schuman sold to Julius Pezenek the one-story garage at 323-341 East Ninety-ninth Street, on a plot 185 by 100, located 100 feet west of First Avenue.

The two-story building, 25 by 92.1 by irregular, at 512 East Seventy-sixth Street has been purchased by Ralph and Max Schweibish from Marie G. Kuerzi.

Bronx Borough Sales.

The two three-story brick dwellings at 321 and 323 Concord Avenue, northwest corner of 141st Street, on a plot 40 by 80 feet, have been purchased by Irene Pierce from the estates of Thomas I. and William T. Raymond. The broker in the sale was J. Clarence Davies.

The Woodlawn Inn property, with ten lots, making a plot 125 by 200, on the east side of Jerome Avenue, 36 feet north of 213th Street, has been purchased by B. Lepinsky from Dennis W. Moran. The broker was S. J. Taylor, and he also sold for the same owner a plot of ten lots, 190.34 by 100 by 160 by 193.33 feet, on the west side of Woodlawn Road, 104 feet north of 213th Street, to James C. Gaffney.

The Hudson P. Rose Company has purchased from the Kane estate the two-family house at 3,517 Delavall Avenue.

The five-story new-law apartment house at 953 Fox Street, on a plot 40 by 104 feet, has been sold by Morris Sax for F. M. Mohrman to Louis Mendelsohn.

The five-story apartment house, on a plot 50 by 112, at 1,181 Bryant Avenue, will be taken over by the 1,161 Bryant Avenue Realty Company, incorporated at Albany yesterday. The new company has for its Directors J. and T. Fine and J. J. Levine. It is capitalized at $20,000.

Clement H. Smith sold for Mary Suttler to John Grunert the two-family frame dwelling at 110 East 236th Street, Woodlawn Heights, and to Henry Schwarz the dwelling, on a plot 56 by 104, at 3,140 Park Avenue.

Tenement Investments.

The six-story tenement house at 224 and 226 Delancey Street, northwest corner of Willett Street, on a plot 44.5 by 100, has been sold by the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank to Barnet Breitman. The property was held at $80,000. Thomas J. O'Reilly was the broker.

J. Anthony Minott resold for Rose De Canio the five-story flat at 53 West 131st Street, on a lot 25 by 100, to an investor.

The General Synod of the Reformed Church of America has bought from B. Nichthauser the five-story flat at 338 East Sixty-first Street, 28 by 100.5.

The six-story tenement on the southwest corner of First Avenue and Twenty-first Street, 40 by 100, has been purchased by Wolf Morgenrath from the Wellworth Property Company.

Mary L. Howlett sold to Isidor Lask the five-story flat at 66 East 122d Street, 20 by 100.11.

Carl W. von Dohln sold to Eustace B. Thornton the four-story tenement at 348 West Thirty-sixth Street, 25 by 98.9.

Marie G. Kuerzi sold to Ralph and Max Schweibisch the two-story building at 512 East Seventy-sixth Street, 25 by 92.

Amelia Dieck sold to Pauline Goldfisher the four-story tenement at 204 Avenue C, 25 by 62.3.

The M. C. Holding Company sold to Carrie M. Schmuck 1,590 to 1,594 Lexington Avenue, northwest corner of 101st Street, a six-story flat, 51.2 by 75.

Gioacchino Cavallaro bought for $15,900 the five-story tenement, with stores, 25 by 83, at 1,759 Third Avenue, from Annie Josefthal.

$300,000 Lease in Jersey City.

The large four-story brick building recently built at a cost of $200,000 for the American Grocers Society on Westside Avenue and Carbon Place, Jersey City, opposite the baseball park, has been leased for a term of ten years at an aggregate rental of approximately $300,000 by that concern to the Barnes Manufacturing Company of Jersey City, manufacturers of sash, doors and trim. The Barnes Company will take possession on March 1 next and will use the major portion of the premises for their own manufacturing needs. Joseph L. Feibleman & Co. negotiated the lease.

INDICTED ON CHARGES MADE BY SHIP BOARD

Five Men, One ex-Employe, Accused in Philadelphia of Conspiracy to Defraud.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Five men, one a former employe of the Shipping Board, were indicted today in Philadelphia for conspiracy to defraud the board. The board announced that the investigations were conducted by Frank Burke, chief of its secret service and were independent of the disclosures before the Walsh committee in New York.

A few days ago Admiral Benson, Chairman of the board, stated that the "defects" discovered by the Walsh committee had been corrected or steps taken to correct them before the Walsh committee met. It was asserted today that other indictments will follow those in Philadelphia.

The men indicted were Ralph L. Lovell, William Burlingham, William M. Dobson, W. John Du Bree and George McCann, Jr. Burlingham was formerly attached to the Shipping Board and the other men to the Marine Decking and Supplying Company of Philadelphia. While Shipping Board officials would not give out details it is understood the men were generally charged with substituting inferior materials and supplies for those contracted for at higher prices.

The amount involved is not more than $30,000, but the prediction was made that frauds amounting to a much greater sum would be uncovered at the trial.

Separate indictments were brought against Burlingham and Lovell, who were also included in the blanket indictment. They, it was said, were specifically charged with the substitution of inferior material. Presentation of false vouchers was said to have entered into the case.

The Civil Service.

City.

Applications for transit man, Grade C, will be received until 4 P. M. on Dec. 10. Candidates must be at least 21 years of age. The subjects and weights of the examination will be: Experience, 2; technical, 5; mathematics, 2; citizenship, 1. A qualifying physical test will be given. Candidates must have two years' experience as instrument man or engineering assistant. There is a vacancy in the Plant and Structures Department, at $2,500 a year.

United States.

The Commission announces the postponement to Dec. 7 of the close of receipt of applications for the examination for master ship fitter, male, age above 30, at the Naval Station, New Orleans, La., at $12 per diem. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on physical ability, 10; education, training and experience, 90. Applicants must have had at least five years' supervisory experience as ship fitter, boiler maker and loft man. Special credit will be given those who have graduated from a standard high school or completed a course of study equivalent to that required for such graduation. Age limits do not apply to persons entitled to preference because of military or naval service. Classified employes who have reached the retirement age and have served fifteen years are entitled to retirement with an annuity.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The northeast storm has passed beyond the field of observation, and pressure has risen decidedly over New England and the Canadian Maritime Provinces. A trough of low pressure extended from Lake Superior southwestward to Texas Friday night, and it was attended by cloudy, unsettled weather in the region of the lower lakes, the Central Valleys and the West Gulf States.

A storm of marked intensity was central off the Northern Pacific Coast, and it was attended by rain and southerly gales along the coast of Washington.

The temperature was higher Friday in the region of the lower lakes and the Central Valleys, and it was above normal over practically all sections east of the Rocky Mountains except Northern New England.

The outlook is for cloudy weather in the States east of the Mississippi River during Saturday and Sunday, with rain in the region of the lower lakes, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the East Gulf States Saturday, and in the Atlantic and East Gulf States, the lower lake region and the upper Ohio Valley Sunday.

The temperature will rise in the Atlantic States Saturday, while somewhat colder weather will overspread the region of the lower lakes, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the East Gulf States Saturday night and Sunday, and the Atlantic States Sunday night.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND SUNDAY.

Northern New England—Unsettled and warmer Saturday, probably rain or snow; Sunday rain.

Southern New England—Cloudy and warmer Saturday; Sunday rain.

Eastern New York—Cloudy and warmer Saturday; Sunday rain; colder in west and northern portions.

New Jersey—Cloudy and warmer Saturday; Sunday rain.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

BOY OF 3 DEFIES TRAFFIC AND POLICE

Causes a Jam in Times Square When He Tries to Cross Broadway.

RUNS INTO ARMS OF LAW

Hits Officer in the Eye When Snatched From in Front of Auto —Pacified by Policewoman.

William Duffy, 3 years old, was held in the West Forty-seventh Street station last night for violating the traffic and whatever other laws there were within his reach. In addition, he is accused of resisting an officer, to which misdemeanor scores of people who were in Times Square at 5 o'clock last night can testify. The officer concerned is Traffic Policeman William O'Donnell, whose duty it is to see everything that comes and goes in all directions at Forty-third Street and Broadway.

Just at 5 o'clock, when taxis, sightseeing buses, homegoing autos from downtown, trucks and an occasional hack are sharing Times Square and the neighboring streets with the movie and matinee crowds, William Duffy abandoned his colored maid, Bessie, and his baby sister at the northeast corner of Forty-third Street and Broadway and started across Broadway.

Right here William ran into the arms of the law, for after he had blocked the traffic a great big policeman snatched him from in front of an automobile and, without even asking him if he wanted to go there, carried him to the Seventh Avenue side. Then the big policeman, with the aid of a dozen or so good women, asked William where his mother was and what he was doing alone out in the street and where he lived and various other things. William, never having seen any of these people before, quite naturally refused to talk. On two things he was resolved, however. He would never let the big policeman or any of the rest of his questioners have his shiny red rubber ball nor would he let them take him away from Times Square, where Bessie and the baby were.

So when the policeman said, "Well, sonny, I guess you and I will go over to the station house and find mamma," and picked William up to carry him, he protested. He not only protested but he kicked and smote big Bill O'Donnell in the eye with the shiny red ball and he howled so lustily that the policeman had to call a taxi.

"I'd never have got him to the station house without one," O'Donnell said afterward. "He's a mighty husky kid, that one, and he fought like a good 'un all the way over."

At the West Forty-Seventh Street Station William protested so vehemently to Lieutenant Scannell, refusing absolutely to tell the Lieutenant anything that might incriminate him further, that he was turned over to Policewoman Brown and to her alone would he tell his name and explain that he merely wanted to watch the pretty lights and that Bessie would take care of the baby all right without him.

A hour later William's mother came and took him away after he had promised Lieutenant Scannell never again to be afraid of a policeman, since, as William informed his mother, "He didn't hurt me at all and he gave me some candy."

TO PROTEST CHARGES MADE BY DR. KILLILEA

Loyal Societies Accused of Spreading Bolshevism, Says Czechoslovak Official.

E. F. Pranter of 106 East Nineteenth Street, Executive Secretary of the Czechoslovak Chamber of Commerce, declared yesterday that the two organizations mentioned by Dr. Thomas R. Killilea, Municipal Civil Service Commissioner, in a speech before the Allied Patriotic Societies in Fraunces's Tavern as responsible for the spread of Bolshevist propaganda in the Yorkville section, were really athletic organizations, loyal to the United States Government, and bitterfully resentful of the charge against them.

Mr. Pranter said that the Czechoslovak Chamber of Commerce would take the initiative in calling a mass meeting of citizens to be held either tomorrow or Monday in National Hall to protest against the charges. He said he would offer and urge the adoption of a resolution demanding the removal of Dr. Killilea by Mayor Hylan.

Mr. Pranter said that Dr. Killilea had referred specifically to the "Red Turners" and the "Blue Turners" in his speech at Fraunces's Tavern, and said that these were the popular names of the Workingmen's Gymnastic Association of New York, located at East Seventy-second Street and Avenue A, and the Czech Gymnastic Association at 420 East Seventy-first Street. He explained that the terms "red" and "blue" bore no relationship to the political beliefs of the members, but were derived merely from the color of their gymnasium uniforms.

"These organizations, for which I am authorized to speak, emphatically resent charges of Bolshevism," said Mr. Pranter. "There may be a few members in their ranks with radical beliefs, as there are in all sorts of organizations, but certainly in no way is either of these organizations as a body engaged in any movement aimed at law and order or in any way hostile to the Government of the United States, to which they are absolutely loyal."

Mr. Pranter said he was supported in his statement by all the members of the Czechoslovak Chamber of Commerce living in New York City. Dr. Killilea could not be reached last night at his home, 545 West 148th Street.

CROPSEY ATTACKS HYLAN.

Justice Denounces the Mayor for Vacillation in His Policies.

Justice James C. Cropsey in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday dismissed the suit of the Bergen Beach Land Corporation to compel the City Administration to carry out a contract entered into with the Mitchel administration in connection with the Jamaica Bay improvement plan. The decision criticised the Hylan administration for its "policy of vacillation" and suggested that the only remedy for the Bergen Beach Company was a suit for damages.

After stating that he believed the contract between the Mitchel administration and the Bergen Beach Company, entered into in 1917, to be valid, Justice Cropsey said he did not believe the city should be ordered to carry out the contract.

$15,000 Hold-Up in St. Paul Centre.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 3.—Two bank messengers, carrying bonds said to be valued at $15,000, were held up and robbed by two bandits near the St. Paul post office, in the heart of the downtown district, shortly before 6 o'clock tonight. The bandits escaped.

ARRESTED IN AUTO THEFT.

Bridgeport Man Accused in $100,000 Robbery in Detroit Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 3.—Jack White was arrested today in connection with alleged theft and sale of automobiles valued at $100,000 from the Cadillac factory in Detroit, and James C. Burroughs and Eugene F. Shanley were served with papers notifying them that true bills have been found against them by the Federal court in Detroit. Bonds were fixed at $2,500 in White's case and at $7,500 in the case of Burroughs and Shanley, who have been out on bonds since their arrest several weeks ago.

White's arrest was a surprise to him. He had appeared as a witness in the case against Burroughs and Shanley and had arrived here only a few days ago from Detroit. He is charged with having assisted in driving some of the stolen cars across the State line.

The indictments against the three Bridgeport men, with the papers served on them today, call for their appearance before the Federal court in Detroit on Dec. 7. It was expected that their attorneys would today ask for a hearing before Commissioner Lavery Dec. 6 to ask for a postponement.

BOMB SET IN BRIDGEPORT.

Explodes in Vacant Lot Near Plant Which Enforced Lockout.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 3.—Residents in Dewey Street were awakened this morning by the explosion of a bomb near the Siemon Hard Rubber Corporation's factory. Hundreds of people living near the factory rushed out of their houses believing that an attempt had been made to blow up the factory. They found only a crater in a vacant lot near the plant where the bomb had been detonated.

Police were rushed to the scene of the explosion, but could find no trace of the person or persons who had exploded the bomb.

It is the police theory that the bomb was being carried to the plant where several hundred employes were locked out nine weeks ago.

Pencil Stripes Wanted.
In the better grades of clothing which have been offered at wholesale for next Spring the chief call is said to be for pencil stripes. These are wanted on solid grounds of black, brown and blue, the stripes arranged about a half inch apart. This demand for "pencils" is even felt in cassimeres. Formerly these designs were confined chiefly to worsteds. There is a sprinkling of other patterns taken for the new season, it is said, but no other development worth mentioning.
